WATER DIVERSION AT NIAGARA.

International Commission Takes Up the Question at Once.

Toronto, March 7.—The International Commission on Waterways held a session at the King Edward Hotel yesterday. The whole morning was spent in the discussion of the question of regulating the quantity of water to be taken from the Niagara River for power purposes.

The members of the Canadian and United States sections are a unit upon the desirability of preserving the falls as one of the great wonders of the world. The chief difficulty in the way of arriving at an agreement upon the regulations to be adopted is the divergency between the engineers' reports as to the quantity of water that may be safely abstracted from the river without impairing the scenic beauty of the great waterfall.

The commissioners are devoting themselves to the task of reconciling these differences and arriving at the actual facts. When this has been accomplished it is anticipated that the guiding principle to be observed in framing the restricting regulations will be speedily agreed upon, and the drafting of the regulations will be a mere matter of routine. It is hoped that a conclusion will be reached at to-day's session.

The regulation of the quantity of water to be diverted from the St. Mary's River for power purposes at Sault Ste. Marie and the preservation of the level of Lake Superior will probably be taken up when the Niagara question is disposed of.

The Canadian section of the commission is composed of Mr. George C. Gibbons, K. C., London, chairman; Mr. Louis Coste, Public Works Department, and Mr. W. F. King, chief astronomer, Ottawa; secretary, Mr. Thomas Cote. The United States section is composed of Gen. O. H. Ernst, Washington, D. C.; Hon. Geo. Clinton, Buffalo, N. Y.; Hon Geo. Y. Wisner, Detroit, Mich., and S. C. Sabin, Buffalo, secretary.

C. P. R. IS CHARGED.

Complaint of Unfair Discrimination Against Coast Cities.

Ottawa, March 7.—The Railway Commission yesterday morning met to consider the complaint of the Boards of Trade of British Columbia that the C. P. R. discriminated against the Pacific coast cities, alleging discrimination in rates between Vancouver and interior points as far east as Calgary.

There was also taken up at the same time the complaint of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the New Westminster Board of Trade charging that the C. P. R. unjustly discriminated against the Pacific coast cities, in charging higher rates on freight originating in eastern Canada, as compared with rates to Winnipeg by the main line of the Crow's Nest Pass.

Hon. Joseph Martin appeared for the complainants and Hon. A. G. Blair for the Canadian Pacific.

F. H. Phippen of Winnipeg appeared for the Winnipeg Board of Trade and co-operated with the C. P. R. Charles Drinkwater and W. R. McInnes were also present for the C. P. R., and C. N. Bell for the Winnipeg Board of Trade.

Mr. Blair first addressed the board, taking the ground that there was no discrimination, as provided by the statute creating the board.

THEFT AND ABDUCTION.

Charges Against London Man Arrested At Brantford.

Brantford, March 7.—Garnet Westfold, a young man of London, was arrested here yesterday on a charge of theft of watches, and also of running away with Mabel Moore, a London girl, under sixteen. The two landed here a week ago, and have been living together since. The girl was taken back home, and Westfold must stand trial on two charges.

Detroit, March 7.—Arthur B. Elubert, a young Detroiter, who left this city eight months ago to work in the mines at Sprague, Ont., was instantly killed by a train which he had gone to the depot to meet, expecting to greet his father, who had wired him to expect a visit.

Carnegie Gives $30,000.

Halifax, March 7.—A despatch from Wolfville yesterday states that at Chapel service President Trotter announced that on Friday last he had received from Andrew Carnegie of New York, the written promise of a gift of thirty thousand dollars, for a new science building for Arcadia.

The TERRIBLE PANGS OF DYSPEPSIA CAN BE CURED

To be dyspeptic is to be miserable, hopeless, confused and depressed in mind, forgetful, irresolute, drowsy, languid and useless.

Constipation, headache, heartburn, sour stomach, distress after eating, belching of wind, faintness, and fullness and distention of the stomach are a few of the many distressing symptoms of the poor, weary dyspeptic.

Dyspepsia is a disease that in one way or another resembles nearly every other disease, and the only way to get rid of it is to tone up the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. This will be quickly done by the use of

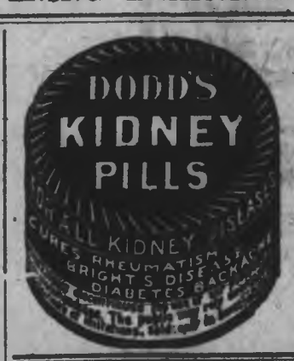
It regulates the stomach, stimulates the secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, removes acidity, purifies the blood, and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. M. A. McNeil, Brook Village, N.S., writes: "Last winter I was very thin and was fast loosing flesh owing to the run down state of my system. I suffered from dyspepsia, loss of appetite and bad blood. I tried everything I could get but to no purpose. I finally started to use Burdock Blood Bitters, and from the first day I felt the good effects of the medicine and am strong and well again. I can eat anything now without any ill after effects. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, for I feel it saved my life."



COLONIES AND THE NAVY,

Lord Brassey Discusses Admiralty Policy—Colonies Should Build, Man and Own Their Own Navy.

London, March 7.—(C. A. P.)—In discussing the Admiralty policy in the House of Lords yesterday Lord Brassey said that proposals were under consideration in Canada and Australia for the creation of naval forces for local defence which gave promise of far-reaching results in the future. It was vain to look for contributions to the Imperial exchequer. The taxation necessity for such a purpose would be unpopular in the colonies. The true policy was to encourage the colonial Governments to organise naval forces for local defence, with or without the express agreement that colonial forces would aid in the defence of the Empire in any emergency.

Discussing Lord Brassey's statement The Post says: "The plan of encouraging every colony to build, to man and to officer its own ship is the quickest and best plan, giving the colonies a grasp of the nature of British or Imperial strategy."

The Cattle Embargo.

London, March 7.—Two hundred representatives of the agricultural interests appealed to the Earl of Carrington, president of the Board of Agriculture, yesterday afternoon against altering the law prohibiting the importation of Canadian store cattle. They do not object to the importation of cattle to be slaughtered at the port of entry, but strongly opposed any step which introduce disease into British herds. The earl in a non-committal way replied that the Government was now in possession of the views of both sides and the Cabinet, therefore was in a position to decide the question on its merits with a full realization of the importance of its decisions to the live stock industry of the country.

Army Estimates Still Heavy.

A memorandum attached to the army estimates was issued last night.

It estimates the expenditure for the current year on the army of $148,630,000, which is a reduction of only $85,000 on the previous year. As in the case of the navy, the new Government has simply adopted the estimates prepared by their predecessors.

Thus, including $180,000,000 for the navy, the nations defence bill is nearly $330,000,000, which destroys any possibility of a large budget surplus or a substantial reduction of taxation.

HERB. GEIZER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Suicide Discharges Gun by Means of String Tied to Trigger.

Halifax, N. S., March 7.—A tragic suicide was discovered Monday evening in the woods, about 200 yards back of C. P. Mitchell's house, on Bedford road, the dead man being Herbert Geizer, caretaker of Mr. Mitchell's property. He was only 22 years old, unmarried, and no reason can be assigned for the act.

From the position of the dead man, it was concluded that he had taken a string and making a loop at one end of it, in which he placed his foot, had tied the other end to the trigger of a gun, then placing the muzzle close to his head he had only to stretch out his leg to cause the weapon to be discharged.

When he fired he was in a sitting position and received the discharge in his head, the top of which was completely blown off.

THE MOROCCAN CONFERENCE.

Reported From St. Petersburg That Germany Accepts Russian View.

Algeciras, Spain, March 7.—Reports were in circulation last night relative to further developments in the police question before the conference on Moroccan reforms. Austria, it is understood, has prepared a proposition favoring the German view. It is, however, possible that this will not be presented at the conference, the German delegates pressing the opinion that it does not sufficiently support their contentions.

Germany Accepts?

St. Petersburg, March 7.—A special despatch from Algeciras yesterday says that Germany has accepted the Russian proposition that the control of the force for policing Morocco be entrusted to France and Spain jointly as a basis for an agreement.

ONE CONTRACT DISCHARGED.

Magistrate Denison Reforms Mrs. Dickson's Contract Out of Existence.

Toronto, March 7.—Magistrate Denison yesterdty began the work of reforming the high interest loans made by the companies which Crown Attorney Curry has been prosecuting. The defendant was Robert McHarrie, manager for Anderson & Co.

In most cases the witnesses did not appear, in others they said they were satisfied to pay what they had signed to pay, and in a few they repudiated the contracts.

One loan, that of Mrs. Emma Dickson, on which two payments at the rate of 125 per cent. of $5.90 each remained to be made, was discharged; and in another, where $334.15 had been paid for $144.50, his Worship reserved his decision.

Toronto, March 7.—Joan McDermott, 4 Claremont Place, an aged man, employed at the Swansea Forging Co., Windermere avenue, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the pond near the works. Mr. McDermott had been sifting ashes close to the pond behind the works, and must have accidentally stepped through a hole in the ice. Life must have been extinct before he was discovered, for the persistent efforts to revive him utterly failed.

Swept Over the Dam.

Montreal, March 7.—Joseph Tremblay, an employe of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co., lost his life at Chambly Falls Monday. Floating ice, which had come down the river, was jammed on top of the dam and Tremblay went out on this ice to the middle. When other employes in the power house caught sight of him the ice was being swept over the top of the dam and Tremblay went with it into the whirling rapids below. A number of men immediately went to his rescue, but despite most heroic efforts, they were unable to reach him. The body was tossed about for a few moments in the seething water and then was carried down stream and disappeared.

RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Ontario Bill Provides One Similar to That at Ottawa.

At the organization meeting of the Railway Committee yesterday Hon. Mr. Hendrie of Hamilton, who was re-elected chairman, made an important statement.

"You know," he said, "we are to have a new railway act. Among the changes in that act the Government is introducing a railway commission similar to the one appointed by the Ottawa Government. I would suggest to the committee that in regard to the bills that come before us we might, after consideration, pass the preamble, the clauses referring to the directorate, bonding and stock, and the route. We will not report the bills until the Government railway bill is passed. It will then be found that the railways can all be incorporated under five or six clauses of the new railway act. Last year we were delayed very much by the form in which the bills were presented to us. They were not in complete form, and the law officers and counsel were engaged often until midnight redrafting bills for legal gentlemen who had not properly drafted them."

To Mr. Downey, Hon. Mr. Hendrie said that the bill covered all kinds of railways. The Government had not yet considered the size or personnel of the commission to be appointed.

Dairy Inspection.

A joint deputation representing the Eastern and Western Dairymen's Associations waited on Hon. "Not one."

"How do you keep her home? My wife belongs to half a dozen and goes to them all, though I have forbidden her time and again."

Milk Crust, Tetter, Ringworm, and Scalled Head, and Every Form of Torturing, Disfiguring Humours from Infancy to Age,

SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter, and salt rheum — all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the civilized world.

CAPT. GRAHAM'S CURE

Of Distressing Humour by Cuticura. Doctors Took His Money, But Did No Good.

Captain W. S. Graham, 1321 Eoff St., Wheeling, W. Va., writing under date of June 14, '04, says: "I am so grateful I want to thank God that a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment to me. I suffered for a long time with sores on my face and back. Some doctors said I had blood poison, and others that I had barbers' itch. None of them did me any good, but they all took my money. My friends tell me my skin now looks as clear as a baby's, and I tell them Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment did it."

Havelock Won A Rough Game

Defeated Norwood in Havelock on Friday.

Special to The Examiner

Norwood, March 6.—The Norwood hockey team journeyed to Havelock on Friday evening to play a friendly game with the team of that place, but it turned out to be anything but friendly. The Norwood team had twice defeated the Havelock aggregation already, in Havelock, by the score of 6—2, and in Norwood by 8—6, so Havelock determined to win this last game at all costs and were successful, owing to the weak line-up which Norwood were compelled to take down. Kempt, Nichol and Robison were unable to go, so the team was badly crippled. Only four of the seniors played, Waunsborough in goal being a substitute for Power, who played centre and McCleary and Morrow substituted for Nichol and Robison. It was a game of chop and the best choppers won. Rathwell was about the only man on the Havelock team who played the game, the others resorting to tripping and slashing. For Norwood, Doherty and Pearse played the most effective games. The referee, Mr. Gordon McIntosh, could not keep the players in check. The line-up was as follows:—

Umpires — W. Smith and H. Mathewson.

Newbro's Herpicide Destroys the Pestiferous Cause of Annoying Dandruff.

Does your head itch? Is your coat or dress full of white flakes after dressing your hair? That's the effect of dandruff. Is your hair thinning? Are you beginning to get bald in spots? Are you already, in fact, rapidly becoming bald? If so, that is the effect of a measly, little parasite that burrows in at the root of the hair, and throws up the scalp in dandruff and eats off the hair at the roots. Science's latest discovery is a destroyer of that pestiferous germ. That destroyer is contained in no other hair preparation on earth but Newbro's Herpicide. Try it, and be convinced. A delightful dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Ormond & Walsh, Special Agents.

From an inquiry conducted among the manufacturers of Western Massachusetts, the Springfield Union has reached the conclusion that about seven hundred manufacturers in every thousand are satisfied with present tariff conditions. For reciprocity with Canada the sentiment is distinctly favourable.

Mission Meanderings In Forest Depths

Rev. Thos. Dodds, writes Interestingly from Kenora—A South Monaghan "Boy's" Exciting Experiences in the North West Mission Fields.

Rev. Thomas Dodds, formerly of South Monaghan, now in the North West mission fields in the interests of the Presbyterian Church, writes a long and interesting letter home regarding a recent typical missionary mission journey. From this letter the following excerpts are made:—

I am down among old friends again, having left Elgin two weeks ago. The purpose of my being here to examined when I tell you that Rev. Mr. Rochester came west to Elgin and interviewed the session and congregation, asking for six weeks leave and it was granted.

I left on the 14th with a good deputation at the station to say farewell. Passing through Winnipeg took dinner with Rev. Mr. McMillan, had three or four of the Winnipeg ministers at the station to see me off to the rock bound country around Kenora. (Rat Portage.)

On Friday afternoon started out on the Lake of the Woods with a team of Indian ponies and driver, who was just recovering from a big drunk and I was very much afraid he would soon be seeing things. The first camp was carried on by Mr. Blackie, a grand nephew of Dr. Blackie the great divine of Scotland. My old time camp spirit arose and soon I was discoursing from the text Job 7.17. As it is a matter of fact, the best and largest pine has been cut in the forest and the trees that sheltered under their shadows have not taken their place. Have we to conclude that when the servants of the past were fallen, those of the present were not taking their place. However, time came for sleeping in the camp, and with a pillow and blanket rolled up in the lower bunk to wake to a 6 a. m. breakfast.

And then start across the lake some 35 miles, meeting en route an old man I formerly had preached to on the railway work also an old conductor of the Port Arthur, Duluth and Western Road. The booze had brought him to cooking in a stopping place.

Then away across to Gardiner's Camps. A "bum outfit" as the present generation would say. My driver was getting wild—on the way through the forest he got ferocious wild. Got mad at the horses and raving at me. He got out a revolver which he had with him. Now I am not afraid of a mad man with a revolver. I am more afraid of a woman with a lying tongue. I reasoned with him. He threatened to shoot. I told him to go on, and shoot away. He fired two shots, both of which went wide. In a few minutes I had the man straightened up, and on our way he put the revolver into his overcoat pocket, in which was a hole and it dropped in the snow and we bid farewell to it. We got to the camp, a pretty rum looking crowd. Got promise of meeting. Met old John Gardiner, 78 years old. He believes in a Supreme Being and a future state. The meeting was hearty and good singing. I lay down to rest on the floor on a pile of oat sacks and a robe made of over 300 rabbit skins cut in strings about one inch wide, woven and tied. It was six and one-half feet one way and seven the other.

I visited Joe Pendicia, a Frenchman, and his squaw, who is an Episcopalian when she is not drunk. Joe was very entertaining. Oh, Minister, only for whiskee I would be far gone away high for sure. My Mary, she my Squaw from White Dog. It does seem queer that he was with his father he had to work hard, but when Mary marry white man—not and live like one little queen. Mary got sick; no wonder. Speaking of politics he was not sure who he voted for, that is the local candidate; but I know he said "I voted for Laurier, Laurier she the bon fellow for sure".

Leaving here next morning — Sunday —drove back ten miles to Kendal's Camps and had a 10.30 meeting. When asking for the use of the sleeping camp one fellow said if I would not interfere with the poker game, but I made a compromise with him and got the building. Had a good meeting and good attention. Many are anxious, inquiring as to whether I did not know their lives. What a rugged lot of men some of them are, and what a useless, good-for-nothing outfit the rest.

From there across the lake to Tom Robison's Camp. Another squaw man and Smith, a fine young fellow that I met some time ago when I was among the navies, has married a squaw and these are going down the hill. I also met a Mr. McLean, who had been running a camp for Harty, but had come to grief through drink, also old Davie Thorn, a former cook at the Scramble Mine.

From there I drove to Mackie's camp and found half of the camp were Swedes, but found one Christian among them who conducted part of the Lutheran service in Swede and I conducted the rest in English. We talked long into the night, but were ready for breakfast at 6.30 a. m. and away at 7.60 across White Fish Bay up to the stopping place where I found an old South African veteran, who had not been in church for 10 years.

Then left for a hard drive up McDonald Lake and into Cameron Lake. The snow and slush were fearful—about 30 inches deep. What a tiresome ride but came to Jimmie McMillan's camp and Fraser, the clerk, had a grand reception and good meeting. A collection of $14.80 from 20 men. Met a number of the boys and listened to a Gelician singing, the next morning, one of the hymns used—"There is a Happy Land"

Leaving there at 7.00 a. m. drove to the stopping place again and to the old Regina Mine for noon. Met my old friend Major Wilkinson and got the office with a stove in it. Made a warming fire. Retired, to waken to a 10 degrees below zero morning. Breakfasted on white fish and raspberries. Started across the portage to Snake bay, where we saw the first track of wild game, Moose. Drove down through a beautiful green island, dotted snow fields till we arrived at the Combine Mine to meet Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, then to proceed up the Arizona Mine for a dinner.

After dinner I went out to the mine slipped and sprained my ankle terribly. Had it treated then started on a six and a half mile tramp up to the Combine Mine to arrange a meeting, then back to the Landing, where I had to decline an invitation to supper with Mr. Hoover and Harry, limping to the Arizona Mine and took a cup of tea and biscuit and then at 6.30 addressed the men, leaving at 7.45 p. m. to go to the Combine, 11-2 miles further on, where I found Mr. and Mrs. Hoover with a goodly number of men. How I sweat making that one and one-half miles. It was a hard trip, but at 10.30 o'clock p. m., closed the meeting and was soon into bed for the night.

Next morning ordered my team and started for Kelly's camps, 15 miles down the lake and 30 miles from Kenora. Came to the meeting to find a goodly crowd, all interested. Spent a good night and started on a 45 mile drive next day. Had to dinner out and feed horses. It snowed but enjoyed dinner and got to Jolly's camps for night. The office boy somewhat alarmed me with his French, "Put yourself home", meaning make yourself at home. Spent the night here and drove to McCammon's Camps next day, had one of those heart searching meetings, one young fellow coming out strong for Christ and the right.

I am expecting to meet many in the Kingdom. What a grand lot of fellows for Christ if they only knew him they would have Him. What a farewell I got, from the boys and then to a Frenchman's camp through the forest down to Ougoshung Bay and to the South West Big Island where the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. are getting out timber for making barrels. The men saw us approach and thought it was the doctor. How glad they were when a religious service was to be held. What a hungry congregation. How hearty the singing. How reverent they all were and meeting them personally inspired many a life to better things.

Leaving there drove to Jolly's, then to Joe McEwen's and had a final gathering.

Meeting an Indian towering home a dead Moose we tried to get some, but he had none for sale. "Buckele". "Buckele". That is hungry Indian. Came to Oliver's, took dinner, expecting to take in three other camps, but was wearied and started for Kenora and am now under Mrs. Rochester's care.

Our expenses were very heavy. Had to pay $5.00 per day for team and driver, but as we were out for 17 days had collections equal to $135.00. So we are $65.00 to the good. We drove about 300 miles visited 400 men, held 16 meetings. I will rest a few days and away I start again.

Very truly yours,

TOM.

For Prevention Of Smut and Apple Scab

Some Simple Methods of Getting Rid of This Scourge of the Apple Crop—Millions of Dollars Lost Each Year Through Smutty Grain Alone—May be Prevented by Use of Simple Means.

Spring is approaching and farmers will soon be planting the seed for the season's crop. With some crops clean seed means good crops, and dirty seed poor crops. It is important, therefore, to take a few simple precautions, especially when it is known that these precautions will save much money.

Now, smut is very prevalent in many oat and wheat fields, and the loss to the province by this disease alone amounts every year to two or three million dollars. Smutty oats and wheat are caused by planting seed oats and wheat that have smut spores attached to them. These spores are so small that it is impossible to see them on the seed with the naked eye.

Perhaps the simplest and most effective method that has been devised for killing these attached spores is to sprinkle the seed grain with a dilute solution of formalin, made by pouring half a pint of formalin into ten or twelve gallons of water. The formalin can be procured at almost any drug store for 25 cents. The seed grain should be spread out on a clean floor or wagon box, and the formalin solution sprinkled over it by means of a sprinkling can. The seed should be thoroughly shovelled over and mixed while it is being sprinkled so that every grain receives some of the solution. Ten gallons of solution will suffice for 20 or 25 bushels of grain.

When the grain is dry, it should be put into clean bags to prevent the entrance of fresh spores of smut, which are always floating in the air of barns.

If this method is carefully followed, no smut heads of grain will be found in the crop.

Apple Scab.

Apple scab is one of the most serious diseases of the apple. It can be prevented by spraying the trees with with bordeaux mixture. Four applications should be given, the first just as the leaves are unfolding, the second just before blossoming, the third after blossoming and the fourth two or three weeks later. If the season is a wet one, it is advisable to give another application in July or August. The formula for bordeaux mixture is as follows:—Copper sulphate (blue stone) 4 pounds; fresh stone lime, 4 pounds; water 40 gallons. Make a stock solution of blue stone by dissolving 25 pounds in warm water in a barrel and add water to make up to 25 gallons. Every gallon of this solution in this barrel contains one pound of blue stone.

Into a second barrel put 25 pounds of fresh stone lime, and add with stirring small quantities of water to slack it. When fully slaked make up 25 gallons by adding water. Every gallon of milk of lime in this second barrel contains one pound of lime.

To prepare the bordeaux, empty four gallons of blue stone solution into the spray tank or barrel, which already should have 25 or 30 gallons of water in it; stir the milk of lime thoroughly and empty four gallons of it through the strainer into the spray barrel with constant stirring; then add water to make up to 40 gallons.

The codling worm may be controlled at the same time if six ounces of Paris Green are added to every barrel of the bordeaux mixture used in the application made after blossoming.

The Scotchman Was Frightened

When a Kind Friend Volunteers to Relieve Him of Devils.

A peculiar story, and one that is very amusing, is told of a demented man labouring under a religious mania, and a stalwart Scotchman, who, in spite of his sturdiness received, and quite naturally, too, a fright that jarred his nerves considerably, and made him probably think that he was being dealt with by the Evil One.

A short time ago the Scotchman referred to above, went to bed in the hotel at which he boarded. — it is unnecessary to state the name of the hotel — and retired for a quiet night's rest. He woke up in the middle of the night to find somebody, or something, he didn't know which, standing over him, with a candle and pitcher, and heard him muttering mysteriously. The canny son o' Scotia very naturally was much startled, and was admonished by the strange being to keep still, as he had chased away all the devils but one. Further details of the story are not known, but it is said it took a considerable length of time to restore the man from the heather country to his origina. state of peacefulness. It transpires that a man whose mind is susceptible now and again to religious impressions, under which he becomes fanatical, had taken a water pitcher, filled it with what he imagined was holy water, and getting a candle went to the room of the unsuspecting Scotchman, and commenced his charitable mission of driving from that gentleman the devils, which had been conjured up in the fantastic mind of the temporarily insane individual. To add to the grotesqueness of the situation, the party with the candle had a black cross made upon his forehead, chin and both cheeks, presumably out of soot.

The Scotchman is in no way superstitious but in spite of the proprietor's arguments, left the hotel the next morning.

TAVERNOLA DESTROYED.

Rock Wears Away and Collapse Follows—Only One Death.

Rome, March 5.—The Village of Tavernola, built on the perpendicular cliffs above Lake Iseo, in the Province of Brescia, was almost entirely destroyed yesterday morning by the rocks suddenly giving away, apparently because the lake had eaten into the base of the cliffs.

Fortunately the disaster was preceded by a loud roaring sound, which alarmed the 1,000 inhabitants. One fisherman was killed.

About 200 feet of dock and the houses on it were swallowed up by the lake.

Fishing Embargo Is Lifted.

Ottawa, March 5.—Fishermen along the Georgian Bay have appealed to Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the Dominion Government, to raise the embargo against fishing east of a line from Cape Hurd to the mouth of the Spanish River and to this request he has acquiesced. A reservation, by an order-in-council passed in 1899, prevented the Provincial Government from issuing licenses without the sanction of the Dominion Government.

License Fees $800.

Hamilton, March 5.—Hon. J. S. Hendrie is the authority for the statement that the Government's legislation in connection with amendments to the License Act will provide for the raising of the license fee from $375 to $800, and that the fixing of the number will be left wholly with council and commissioners.

Croup Absolutely Cured.

"There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more promptly than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of croup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. McGee, 49 Wright avenue, Toronto, Ont.

5-MINUTE REIGN OF TERROR.

Sun It Wrecked Meridian, Caused Million Loss and Lost 20 Lives.

Birmingham, Ala., March 5.—A staff correspondent of The News wired his paper Saturday afternoon from Meridian that the total list of dead from Friday night's tornado numbers 19, with one missing, and perhaps several bodies under the debris. The number of injured is about 50.

The entire south side of Front street and the east and west sides of 22nd avenue, from Front to Railroad streets, suffered severely, many buildings being demolished.

Many persons are also reported missing, and are believed to be dead under the wreckage in the business district.

The property loss by storm and fire will be in the neighborhood of one million dollars.

It was about 6.10 p. m. the clouds began to gather. They came hurriedly, and hovered close and black over the city. At 6.27 the storm broke. It was of four minutes' duration. During this time the reign of terror was over everyone.

Canadians Guard Halifax.

Halifax, March 6.—One hundred and twenty-six Royal Engineers in charge of Major Cartwright, the last of the imperial unit on this station, marched from their barracks, Sackville street, yesterday morning to the deep-water terminus, where they embarked on the C.P.R. liner Lake Champlain, for Liverpool, which sailed yesterday afternoon.

The Halifax Garrison is now controlled entirely by Canadians. The band of the Royal Canadian Regiment played the engineers to the ship.

British troops have garrisoned Halifax for over 157 years.

City's Private Bill
WAS LEFT OVER FOR WEEK
By Bills Committee

Opposition Was Aroused Against the Fixed Assessment Clauses and Also Against the Proposal to Purchase the Sugar Company's Property--Claim of City for Right to Develop and Sell Electric Power Was Not Considered.

The City's Private Bill came before the Private Bills Committee at Toronto yesterday morning, and although some of the clauses went through without amendment, there was strong opposition against several others, which were laid over for a week. Peterborough's deputation was introduced by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, who spoke strongly in favour of the bill. The deputation consisted of City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, Ald. McWilliams, chairman of the Manufacturers' and Legislation Committee; Ald. Adams, Duncan and McIntyre. The Water Commissioners were represented by Messrs. T. F. Matthews and W. H. Moore, while Mr. R. M. Dennistoun was present in the interests of the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company.

The first half dozen clauses of the bill after explanations had been made and many questions answered, were assented to. They concerned matters of local interest only. The first two affected the debentures to pay for the Ashburnham sewer and the Collegiate Institute, in both of which it had been found necessary to ask for an extension of time. These with the clauses providing for the diverting of the creek in Ward Five, and in Wards Three and Four, were passed without amendments.

Opposition was, however, aroused over the clauses fixing the assessment of the Central Milling Company and the Downham Creamery, and also the clauses providing for the purchase of the Sugar Company's property. These were all regarded by some of the committee as bonuses and at once the representatives of rival places were inclined to oppose the granting of this privilege to Peterborough. As the law stands at present a bonus may be granted by a vote of the ratepayers, provided that two-thirds of all possible voters turn out and vote in favour of the bylaw. This is absolutely impossible in a place the size of Peterborough although it can be done in a small place. The only other alternative is to pass a bylaw and have it confirmed by the Legislature. This has frequently been done at the request of manufacturing centres including Peterborough, on previous occasions. The Committee appointed by the new Government last year followed the practice of previous years, but now some of the members are anxious to put a stop to the proceeding. Chairman Carscallen of Hamilton, said that the bill was one of the most important that would come before the Legislature and whether granted or refused would establish a precedent that would have to be applied to all other municipalities in the future.

Peterborough's representatives contended that the requirements of the Act made it impossible and if the practice were to be allowed at all to any municipality the conditions ought to be modified. This view was supported by a number of members of the committee and on the suggestion of the chairman the bill was left over for a week to allow the members to come to a decision on what stand they would take. Mr. Carscallen stated that he would consult the Premier and members of the Government to get their views on the matter. The bill will be heard on Tuesday next.

The claim of the city to be given the right to develop and sell electric power was not considered. The Water Commissioners presented a claim to have their jurisdiction extended to more than the present limit of three miles above the intake to prevent the pollution of the water in Lake Katchewanooka and Stony Lake. The proposal was discussed at some length, but nothing was settled as the Provincial Board of Health intend to deal with the matter all over the province.

Mr. S. A. Oke Was Robbed Last Night

Thief Broke Into Store by Removing Pane of Glass in Back Door.

A robbery was committed last night at Mr. S. A. Oke's fruit store, apparently by a juvenile. An entrance was effected some time after 10 o'clock, when the store was locked up for the night. A pane of glass 12x16 inches was removed from the back window which looks out into the lane, by which a back entrance to the store from Simcoe street is made.

A small sum of money which Mr. Oke left in his office drawer in a tin box, was taken, and probably some small articles such as candy and fruit. Nothing in the store was broken or destroyed. The affair has been reported to the police, who are at present working on the case. There is no clue as to the identity of the thief.

THE GOLD WATCH WAS RECOVERED

A short time ago the loss of a lady's gold watch was announced in these columns, and an advertisement, asking for its return, was inserted. Within 24 hours the watch was returned to this office and is still here. The lady who lost it has evidently not much faith in the value of advertising, for she has not yet called to ask for her property. If she will call at this office she will be given her watch. Too many people advertise for articles lost and then forget all about it. They seem to forget that advertising, especially in The Examiner, brings results.

The Mission Band reported $39.45 for Home, and $40.39 for Foreign Missions.

Royal Welcome Given TO VICTORIOUS
Hockey Champions

O. H. A. Winners Were Met at the Station by Thousands of Wildly Excited People--Greatest Reception in the History of Peterborough Was Accorded--Big Procession --Fireworks and Bon Fires Were Among the Features.

Never before in the history of the city, has there been such a demonstration, or such a spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm, as that which greeted the champion Peterborough hockey team on their arrival home from Goderich last night. It was thought that the celebration on Mafeking night, was something out of the ordinary, as indeed it was, but last night's reception surpassed anything of the kind ever seen in Peterborough before. The city simply went wild with delight over the victory of the team, and it seemed as if every one was on hand to welcome the champions. Fully eight thousand people gathered at the station and on George street, and the scene was such as would stir the most sedate citizen to lose sight of his dignity and join with the crowd that assembled to do honour to the boys, who had so successfully represented the city this season. As a noise-producer the crowd was a record-breaker. Everything that it was possible to make a noise with was pressed into service, and the result was a continuous din such as has rarely been heard here. Foghorns, bugles, tin pans, megaphones, and everything else that the ingenuity of the crowd could devise, were used, and the clamour was ear-splitting. Bon-fires blazed at the street corners, and fog-horn bands paraded the streets for hours. The old battle song:

Hurrah, hurrah, we're champions again,
Hurrah, hurrah, bring on some better men;
We're not afraid to beard the lion in his den.
Hurrah, hurrah, we're champions again.

Was sung hundreds of times during the evening, and was the one most frequently heard from the assembled thousands, and from those who took part in the procession and the after-demonstration.

The scene at the C. P. R. station, as the local from Toronto pulled in, with the team on board, was one that will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it. The station platform and the large square behind,

North Monaghan Farmer Fell From His Waggon

Wm. Whitfield Was Somewhat Badly Injured on Tuesday Night--Horses Shied and Threw Him Out.

William Whitfield, a farmer residing in North Monaghan, was somewhat badly injured by falling out of his wagon on his way home from the city on Tuesday evening. It is supposed that the team shied at something and threw Whitfield out of the wagon. He was severely cut about the face and head and badly shaken up. The injured man was carried into the residence of Mrs. Johnston in North Monaghan, near whose place the accident occurred. Afterwards he was removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Eastwood. He was able to leave the hospital to-day.

House Of Refuge Question Re-opened

County Councillor Moloney Asks the Warden to Do So—Says He Was Misinformed as to Quality of Soil on Preston Lot—Finds it is Unsuitable for the Purpose of House of Refuge—Wants an Opportunity to Remedy Matter.

The question of the County House of Refuge site will be re-opened in all probability. County Councillor Moloney calls upon the Warden to re-open it. He writes a letter to the Examiner in which he states that he was incorrectly informed as to the quality of soil on the Preston farm, the one selected by the Council as the site for the new institution, and is now of the opinion that it is unsuitable for the purpose.

Mr. Moloney does not accuse anyone of wilfully misinforming, but states that there was misrepresentation, and he wants an opportunity of remedying it. The letter, which fully explains his position is as follows:—

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I find since giving my vote in favour of the Preston site for the House of Refuge, that I was misinformed as to the nature and depth of the soil and other matters. It was impossible for myself or any of my fellow-Councillors to arrive at a correct conclusion in this respect at this time of the year, the ground being frozen and partly covered with snow, and when I gave my vote in favour of this site I was misguided by statements made, but on inquiry from reliable authority I find that these statements were not correct. Representing a large section of the ratepayers of the County, I wish to put myself right in this matter before it is too late. And must ask the Warden to bring the question of the site up for further consideration of the Council.

Mr. Editor, I don't wish for a moment, that you, or the public should think I accuse any one, of intentionally misinforming me, but the fact remains that I was incorrectly informed, and in the interest of the County, at large, I am compelled to take this course.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your valuable paper, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
D. MOLONEY.

Some Trent Canal

STATISTICS FURNISHED

By Dept. Blue Book

About 160 Miles of Direct and Lateral Navigation--The Project of a Canal From Bay of Quinte to Lake Huron Proposed Many Years Ago--First Started in 1837 by Imperial Government--The Progress of the Work--Only Small Portion Remains to be Completed.

The Superintendent of Railways and Canals has issued a blue book giving the the canal statistics for the year 1904. In the appendix some information in reference to the Trent Canal is given. It says:—

The term "Trent Canal" is applied to a series of water stretches, which do not, however, form a connected system of navigation, and which, in their present condition, are efficient only for local use. By various works this local use has been extended, and by others, now in progress and contemplation, this will become a through route between Lake Ontario and Lake Huron.

The series is composed of a chain of lakes and rivers, extending from Trenton, at the mouth of the River Trent, on the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, to Lake Huron.

Many years ago the utilizing of these waters for the purpose of through water communication between Lake Huron and Lake Ontario was projected. The course, as originally contemplated and modified, is as follows:—

Through the River Trent, Rice Lake, the River Otonabee and Lakes Clear, Stony, Lovesick, Deer, Buckhorn, Chemong, Pigeon, Sturgeon and Cameron to Lake Balsam, the summit water, about 165 miles from Trenton; from Lake Balsam by a canal and the River Talbot to Lake Simcoe; thence by the River Severn to Georgian Bay, Lake Huron; the total distance being about 280 miles, of which only about 15 or 20 miles will be actual canal.

The full execution of the scheme, commenced by the Imperial Government in 1837, was deferred. By certain works, however, below specified, sections of these waters have been made practicable for navigation, and the whole scheme is now being carried out. A branch of the main route, extending from Sturgeon Lake south, affords communication with the town of Lindsay, and, through Lake Scugog to Port Perry, a distance of 190 miles from Toronto.

The following table gives the distance of navigable and unnavigable reaches:—

	Navigable Miles.	Unnavigable Miles.
From Trenton, Bay of Quinte, to Nine Mile Rapids ...	—	9
Nine Mile Rapids to Percy Landing...	15 1-2	—
Percy Landing to Healey's Falls dam	—	14 1-2
Healey's Falls dam to Peterborough	5 3-4	—
Peterborough to Lakefield	—	9
Lakefield to a point across Balsam Lake	61	—
	132 1-4	32 3-4
Total distance, Bay of Quinte to a point across Balsam Lake		165
From Sturgeon Point on Sturgeon Lake, 45 3-4 miles from Lakefield, the branch through the town of Lindsay to Port Perry at the head of Lake Scugog		27

The works by which the Trent navigation has been improved comprise canals, with locks and bridges, at Young's Point, Burleigh Rapids, Lovesick, Buckhorn Rapids, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls and Rosedale; also dams at Lakefield, Young's Point, Burleigh Falls, Lovesick, Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls. By these works there is afforded communication between Lakefield, 9 1-2 miles from Peterborough, and Balsam Lake, the headwaters of the system; opening up a total of about 160 miles of direct and lateral navigation.

At Lakefield, 9 1-2 miles from Peterborough, the dam at the head of the Nine Mile rapids of the River Otonabee, maintains navigation on Lake Katchewannoe up to Young's Point.

At Young's Point, 5 miles from Lakefield the dam between Lake Katchewannoe and Clear Lake controls the water level through Clear and Stony lakes up to the foot of the Burleigh canal. The lock here, it should be observed, is (was) controlled by the Provincial government.

At Burleigh Rapids, 10 miles from Young's Point, a canal, about 21-4 miles in length, passes the Burleigh and Lovesick rapids, and gives communication between Stony Lake and Deer Bay.

At Buckhorn rapids, 7 miles from Burleigh rapids, there is a canal about one-fourth of a mile long.

At Bobcaygeon, 15 3-4 miles from Buckhorn rapids, a dam, 552 feet long, controls the water level at Fenelon Falls.

At Fenelon Falls, 15 miles from Bobcaygeon, a canal about one-third of a mile in length connects Sturgeon Lake with Cameron Lake.

The following is a list of the locks with their dimensions:—

1.—Lock at Rosedale, (maintained by the Ontario Government) 100 feet by 30 feet by 4 feet 6 inches to 6 feet 6 inches depth water on mitre sill.

2.—Locks at Fenelon Falls, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 7 feet 6 inches depth water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Lindsay, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 7 feet 6 inches depth water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Bobcaygeon, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet 8 inches to 7 feet, depth of water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Buckhorn, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 9 feet, depth of water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Lovesick, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 9 feet 4 inches, depth of water on mitre sill.

2.—Locks at Burleigh, 134 feet by 33 feet by 6 feet to 8 feet, depth of water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Young's Point, (a Provincial Government work) 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 14 feet depth water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Peterborough, 134 feet by 33 feet by 5 feet to 10 feet depth water on mitre sill.

1.—Locks at Hastings, 134 feet by 33 feet by 7 feet to 10 feet 6 inches, depth of water on mitre sill.

The Famine in Japan

The attention of the entire civilized world has been drawn to the serious condition of affairs in Japan where a famine now exists due in a great measure to the failure of the rice crop. This plucky little nation of brown men, still staggering from the effects of their long drawn out war with Russia, is now face to face with war's sister calamity — famine. The situation is most serious, and the Dominion Government is sending several thousand bags of Canadian flour to Japan in aid of the famine sufferers. A package of Royal Yeast is enclosed in each bag of flour, together with a circular printed in Japanese characters, giving full directions for making bread so as to ensure successful results.

Strong Plea For Higher Ideals At St. Louis

Rev. Canon Davidson's First Sermon in Missouri City as Reported by the Post-Democrat —Bishop Tuttle is Warmly Praised — Peterboro' Clergyman in the South is Well Received—Consecrated Christian Lives the Theme.

LENTEN SERVICES OPENED ON SUNDAY

The St. Louis Post-Democrat of Monday has the following reference to the first sermon preached in that city on Sunday by Rev. Canon Davidson, who went there in connection with the Lenten services:

Words of warm friendship and praise for Bishop Tuttle were spoken as his first utterance in St. Louis yesterday by the Canadian canon, J. C. Davidson, of Peterborough, Ontario, who has come to St. Louis to conduct the noonday services of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. He preached yesterday morning at Christ Church Cathedral, and, after modestly introducing himself as a clergyman of the Anglican church, whose first duty while here would be obedience to the rules of the diocese of Missouri and to the authority of Bishop Tuttle, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, Canon Davidson continued:

"I must further express the gratitude on my part that I am once more privileged to come in contact with him who is indeed a prince of the church of God; whose name is known throughout the Anglican communion, and whose personality is loved everywhere he has gone."

The sermon was on the subject of yielding to holy influences, especially as shown in the church. A Scripture text was taken, representing man as cast into a mould, there to form the pattern of Jesus Christ, and the mould was explained as typifying religion and the church. "So beautiful, so divinely effective is the mould when we look into it," said the preacher, "that we are impelled to ask 'How is it that the mould does not do better work?' The answer lies in the character and disposition of many members of the very great multitude of members of our church."

Here the minister described the attitude of certain persons whose pride of self prevents their "yielding themselves to God," and whose attitude, even in the house of God, seems a challenge. "My message to you this morning is, now that you have assembled in the house of God, to yield yourself to these holy influences, forgetting the world, forgetting that rugged independence on which you have taken pride. Yield yourselves, so that you may fall easily into every part of the great mould which lies before you.

"Yield yourselves in this season of Lent. Do we not sometimes think our whole duty is done in Lent when we say, 'I will give up this pleasure' or 'I will attend some extra service?' How can Lent do its work under such circumstances? Let us all resolve that we will wholly give ourselves for the balance of the forty days to the influences of the church, and let us welcome one of the greatest opportunities which comes to us in the whole Christian year with open arms."

Grafton & Co. Buy Another Store

A special from Brantford, dated March 2, says: "A big real estate deal was closed here this afternoon by which the Grafton syndicate purchased the large store occupied by Andrew McFarlane, clothier, Colborne street." Grafton & Co. conduct one of their largest branch stores in Brantford, and own the building they occupy. This more recent purchase, following so soon after the Woodstock purchase a week or two ago, gives them control of another valuable addition to their store property, all of which have followed their first successful venture in this line in Peterborough.

Stone Smashed The Plate Glass

The plate glass window in front of Mr. Milton Porter's butcher shop, George street, met with a disastrous accident last night during the wild demonstration. It was struck about the centre, presumably by a stone, and was cracked in three directions.

It will be reaplaced as soon as possible by the Hand in Hand Plate Glass Insurance Company, under Mr. W. H. Hill.

Body Was Disinterred After Many Years

Interesting Story in Connection With the Death of a Former Cobourg Resident--Is Revived by Death of Franklin House, Which Occurred in Toronto Monday.

Lying on a truck on one of the platforms at the Union Station yesterday afternoon was a rough box, on which was fastened a card bearing the following inscription:—"This box contains the remains of Sophia House, born September 17th, 1785; died Feb. 10th, 1864." The box was addressed to Bennington, Vermont, and was being sent from a Cobourg undertaking establishment.

Upon inquiry it was found that the remains were those of the mother of the late Franklin House, Cobourg. Mr. House died on Monday last at the home of a cousin on College street, and the two bodies were being taken to Bennington, Vermont, the former home of Mrs. House and the birthplace of Mr. Franklin House, to be interred together.

Mr. House was born on August 26th 1825, and was in his 81st year. He was for sixty years in the banking and brokerage business in Cobourg, being well known not only in that vicinity but in Toronto as well. He retired from business about seven years ago, but continued to live in Cobourg until quite recently.

Nearly 58 years ago his mother, Sophia House, had come from her native town of Bennington, Vermont, to live with her son in Cobourg. After residing in Cobourg for about 16 years, she died at the age of 78 years, and her body was interred at Cobourg. It had, however, always been the intention of Mr. House to have the mother's remains removed to her native town in Vermont, and he had decided that this should be done this spring.

Died in Toronto.

At Christmas he came to Toronto for a visit to his cousin, intending to go from here to Vermont as soon as the warm weather came. While here, however, he contracted an illness, from which he at length became aware he could never recover. He accordingly gave strict orders that the body of his mother should be at once exhumed, and that at his death, his own and his mother's bodies should be taken to Bennington, Vermont, and interred together in a plot which he purchased there two years ago. Yesterday the long-deferred mission was fulfilled. The body of the mother, who departed this life over 40 years ago, was accompanied by that of her son to their final resting place in the little Vermont town.

An interesting feature is the fact that the body of Mrs. House when exhumed was almost as perfectly preserved as though it had been interred only the week previous. Even the clothing, it is said, was in perfect condition.

The Mid-Week Lenten Services and Sermons

ST JOHN'S.

(Rev. A. P. Barr, Preacher.)

There was a large congregation at the second of the series of mid-week Lenten services at St. John's last night. The address which followed the shortened form of Evening Prayer, was given by Rev. A. F. Barr, M.A., curate of All Saints', Toronto, who delivered an excellent address, taking the place of Rev. Canon Baldwin, who is confined to his room with a severe attack of sciatica. The speaker based his remarks upon the first verse of the fourth chapter of St. Mathew's gospel,—"Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil." The preacher pointed out that as a parallel to human experience, Christ's great temptation came in connection with the period of spiritual exaltation associated with His baptism, when he felt the need of seclusion and meditation. His temptations and trials came from the very outset of his ministry. There was a great difference between the Jewish conception of God's kingdom under the Messiah, and God's conception. God's idea was a struggle and victory. The three-fold temptation to which Jesus was subject meant, generally a short cut to success. He resisted, and chose God's way, the way of suffering and trial, and Christ came triumphant through the forty days' temptations, equipped for all those which followed. He was just as much the Son of God when under temptation as in the triumphs of His baptism, and all His children, in their hours of temptation, could count upon the help of the Son of God. The struggle in the wilderness was not a sham fight but a real struggle in which the tempted did not yield to the three-fold temptations, which, in general, were all of the same character:— to yield to the short and easy way, to realize the Messiahship. Such, too, was the general nature of the temptations that assailed men—to take the easy way—our own way, instead of God's way, the way of trial and suffering. The same test that Satan presented to Christ is presented to us do-day—to take the easy way of self-indulgence, or God's way, the narrow and difficult way. Christ met temptation by using God's word—the sword of the Spirit, and that was the weapon that would help us to resist temptation. The temptation of Christ was real, and therefore He can sympathize with us—tempted as we are, yet without sin. He was tempted as a man, and triumphed, and so many we, trusting in His strength, obtain the victory.

ST. LUKE'S

(Rev. C. J. James, Preacher.)

The Rev. C. J. James, M.A., rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, was the special preacher at St. Luke's Lenten service last night. The rector read the prayers. A goodly number of people were present, and the service was heartily and devoutly rendered.

The reverend gentleman took for his text St. John I., 29 to end. He endeavoured to draw some helpful lessons from the call of St. Andrew to the ministry, as well as pointing out very helpful thoughts from the character of St. Andrew. Of him the only thing mentioned in this chapter was that he was a brother. But he made good use of being a brother by bringing his brother Simon to Jesus. Besides this he brought the Greeks to Jesus, of whom he said that their desire to see Him had glorified him. Again Andrew found the lad with the loaves and fishes and brought him to Jesus. In all these incidents Andrew took hold of the little things and used them for the glory of the Lord. The lesson was that we should do our duty in whatever was nearest, even in small things! These disciples spoken of in the first chapter of St. John were all seeking the Lord Jesus, and, seeking Him, they found Him.

People are too apt to seek for worldly advantage rather than for Christ, for being well spoken of and liked and applauded by their fellowmen. He instanced a case from his own experience in Hamilton, where he knew a young man for many years. He was much liked and had many friends because he was generous and a man well met. But he courted the applause of his fellowmen, and for that sake he left the path of rectitude and honesty, and obtained the favour of his friends by becoming a thief. He gave up position and reputation, brought disgrace upon his family because he did not seek the Lord, but rather the favour of men with the unrighteous mammon dishonestly obtained.

Mr. James urged upon the people the necessity for heart-searching work during the solemn season of Lent, to come face to face with God and their own soul, and to improve their spiritual life. Mr. James is a forceful speaker, who enlists the sympathy of the congregation by his earnest appeals. His thoughtful address was listened to with great attention and conviction.

The next Lenten service will be on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, with an illustrated lecture on the history of the Church of England.

Welcome Given Hockey Champions

were crowded with thousands of people, and the crowds extended up George street. Such a crowd it is probable, had never been seen at the station before, and it seemed as if the whole of Peterborough had gathered to welcome the champions.

As the train pulled in sight the 57th Band struck up a triumphal air and the crowd gave round after round of cheers, which almost drowned the playing of the band. To add to the clamour the whistles of all the nearby factories began to toot jubilantly, and as the team issued from the train they were greeted with an ovation such as has never before probably been given Peterborough citizens.

The champions were eagerly pounced on by the crowd, and on the willing shoulders of some of their admirers were carried to the cabs in waiting for them at the rear of the station. The procession was then quickly formed and, headed by the 57th band, moved triumphantly up George street.

The order of the procession was as follows:

57th Band, in uniform.
Fire Brigade.
Players and officers of the club, in carriages.
City Council, in cabs.
Peterborough Press Club, in bus.
Canadian Chorus, C. G. E., tool room, in bus.
Kazoo Band, in bus.
George Stevens' Rough Riders — mounted.
Citizens in carriages.

The spectacle presented as the jubilant parade advanced up George street, was indeed a stirring one. The pavement was packed with people who greeted the players with a tremendous outburst of cheering. The band played gay music in front, and from the carriages came an almost continuous shower of fireworks. The gaily decorated vehicles with blue and white prominently displayed everywhere, and the flags and hunting with which George street was adorned, and the excited multitudes that thronged the pavements, or followed the carriages, presented a scene such as is not easily forgotten.

The procession passed up George street to Hunter, and down that street to the Oriental, where the champions were the guests of Mr. G. N. Graham at a very enjoyable and informal supper. A pleasant time was spent, and the hospitality of Mr. Graham, than whom the team has no better friend, was greatly appreciated by the players.

The procession disbanded after reaching the Oriental, but the fun was not yet over—in fact it had hardly begun. For hours afterwards the noise was kept up and the enthusiasm displayed was intense. In a few minutes after the players had arrived at the Oriental bon-fires were blazing in front of the hotel, and at other points on the main street, and the crowd proceeded to celebrate the victory in a good-natured, although noisy, manner. Foghorn and tin pan bands were formed and paraded up and down George street, while cheer after cheer rent the night air. Until ten o'clock the excitement was kept up, and the streets remained thronged with merry-makers until that hour. The din was simply deafening, and when at the conclusion of the supper at the Oriental, the team was driven around the front streets, the uproar might have been heard for miles. It was certainly a great ovation, but not a bit too good for the boys who have won so glorious a victory.

To every one that aided in the procession is great credit for the success of the demonstration is due, and especially to those who contributed rigs, and other features of the occasion. The reception showed that the people of Peterborough possessed the right spirit and that they properly recognised the fine record achieved by the hockey team.

The business men of the city showed that they were in sympathy with the team by the manner in which they decorated their stores. Nearly every store on George street was decorated in some manner or other, and the street presented a very gay appearance. Peterbrough's colours, the good old blue and white, were of course the predominant feature in the decorations although many flags were used. Stretched across the street from F. A. Clarke's store hung a line of blue and white lights, while a streamer underneath bore the inscription "Peterborough is proud of her Hockey Boys." J. J. Turner & Sons, had their factory gaily decorated and other business places elaborately decorated were R. Hall & Sons, T. Hooper, M. Connors, Thos. Barrie, Grafton & Co., Ormond and Walsh's, Bank of Ottawa, Crown Hotel, Commercial House, Examiner Office, Munro House, and many others. Blue and white were displayed everywhere, on the street cars and on the delivery and cab horses during the afternoon, and nearly every citizen wore the team's colours.

Echoes of the Demonstration.

Have you any voice left?

The crowd was a record-breaker and the team was certainly given a grand reception.

Many people who waited above Hunter street were disappointed when the procession turned down to the Oriental, instead of coming up farther. However they had their chance to cheer afterwards.

The crowd was out for a time and bound to have it, and they did have it.

The favourite song was Champions Again, and it was sung by every bunch in the parade.

The procession was a good one considering the short notice and some of the decorations were very effective.

The crowd was a good-natured one and although there was plenty of horseplay it was received in good spirit.

A favourite amusement for some of the merry-makers was stopping the street cars by pulling off the trolley poles. The street car men got used to the game and only slowed up when absolutely necessary.

Merchants found many empty crates missing this morning. The bonfires on the street corners explained their disappearance.

The fun was kept up for hours and long after the greater part of the crowd had gone home, bands of enthusiasts paraded the streets.

A satisfactory thing in connection with the celebration was that scarcely any damage has been reported.

The large window in Porter's butcher shop was, however, broken during the evening.

The newly organized Press Club was conspicuous in the parade. The noise made by the newspaper men equalled anything in the way of din produced last night. The Club is greatly indebted to Dr. McKercher and J. J. Turner & Sons, the former for providing the conveyance and the latter for supplying the banners with which the rig was decorated.

The fog-horn band, marshalled by C. H. Sawle, of the Review, and led by two 57th buglers [illegible] the features of the cele[illegible] press was well represented among the musicians.

The cast-iron chorus of the C.G.E. tool room made a lot of noise in the parade.

Geo. Stevens' Rough Riders on horse back, were prominent in the parade.

The Fire Brigade always the first to turn out to honour the hockey team, had their wagon and horses gaily decorated with blue and white.

A portion of the crowd serenaded Captain Whitcroft at his home on Aylmer street. A huge bon-fire was built in front of the house, and in other ways the crowd showed their admiration for Peterborough's star.

A bunch of merry-makers picked up a young man who had an altercation with one of their number and carried him to his boarding-house on Queen street. The young man did not appreciate this distinction and appeared on the scene with a revolver. Acting Chief Adams hove into sight, however, and the crowd quickly dispersed.

A man named Reid fell in front of the Oriental and had his nose badly broken. His injuries were attended to by Dr. Coughlin. This is the only mishap reported in connection with the demonstration.

Burleigh Falls Power Wanted At Bowmanville

Mr. J. A. Culverwell Promises to Supply Peterboro' and Towns Along the Front With Electric Power From Burleigh Falls—Is After the Lighting Business in These Towns—Construction Work to be Started by Middle of April.

HEALEY FALLS FOR EASTERN TOWNS

The Bowmanville Statesman says: Mr. J. A. Culverwell, managing director of the Central Ontario Power Co., was in Bowmanville a few days ago. He stated that obstruction that had been in the way of the successful operations of the company were now removed and he was satisfied that before the middle of April work of construction would be started at Burleigh Falls. In the meantime he asked the citizens not to sign any new contracts with the local electric light and telephone companies for incandescent lighting and thereby shut out his company from doing business. He did not notice that the local company were giving any better service than before, and did not see that citizens should rely on promises.

Burleigh Falls power would be transmitted to Peterborough, Bowmanville and Oshawa, and as it is plain to everyone what benefit electric power is for the individual progress of the community, he looked for the support of citizens. He stated it was not the intention of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co. of which he is also managing director, to come farther west than Cobourg and Port Hope. Healey Falls would supply the east, and Burleigh Falls would supply Peterborough and the western lake front.

Cobourg, Port Hope, Colborne and Brighton citizens generally, and Pidsburg capitalists (summer residents of Cobourg) were stockholders in the Healey Falls Company. The people in that district were determined to secure electric power to bring factories. The least he expected Bowmanville citizens to do for Burleigh Falls power was to support them by giving them the lighting business. He was not asking bonuses as manufacturers do — but cheap electric power would attract factories, and therefore invited support of citizens.

BE READY FOR CROUP

AND INSIST ON HAVING THE TIME TESTED MEDICINES.

It is not a question of whether you will need a treatment for coughs, colds and croup in your homes, but the question is will you select the most effective medicine or simply be satisfied to take whatever your druggist happens to hand out to you? Time and experience have proven that you can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at all times.

It is only necessary to remember this when the critical time comes and to insist on getting what you ask for.

Should you have children that are subject to croup you had better keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house for when the choking spasm comes on there is little time to send for doctor or medicine.

It seems scarcely necessary to dwell on the merits of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, etc. Most of us have known it from childhood up. It is almost as familiar as Dr. Chase's Receipt Book.

Mr. G. N. Morrison, 81 Fuller street, Toronto, Ont., writes:

"Gentlemen, — If it should be of satisfaction to you to know (as it certainly has been to me in the past) permit me to say that I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in my family for years, and have found it from experience to be the best cough medicine. I suppose that I have used eight bottles this past winter; my children will have nothing else, and the best of results invariably ensue. I have also recommended it strongly. If this unsolicited testimonial be of any service to you the pleasure is mine in transmitting it."

Being pleasant to the taste, it is readily taken by the children. Because it brings quick relief to the suffering from asthma, bronchitis, whooping cough, and all the more serious disease of the throat and lungs, it is invaluable as a household medicine. 35 cents a bottle at all dealers. 8

NO WALK-OVER.

The Opposition in the Ontario Legislature is something like a game bantam cock, small, but full of fight, and the Government benches with their numerical superiority, can be given many a bad quarter of an hour, and be made very uncomfortable unless they keep somewhat near the correct line. The Liberal opposition is like a well skilled hockey team, say, like the champion Peterboroughs; they put on a fine combination, and make the Government goal defender keep his feet close together, and both eyes open. On Tuesday last the Opposition stirred up a lively little hornet's nest, in which the Minister of Crown Lands, the Premier, and the Minister of Education, got not a few stings. In one sense, it makes little difference what party name a Government bears. The Whitney Government should govern Ontario beneficially, which it promises to do in some ways, by following the successful practices and policy of its Liberal predecessors, especially when kept to the mark by a well-organized Opposition. The Whitney Government gave promise of a good regime, till it surrendered to the spoilsmen — something that many of its most ardent supporters condemn as a vicious and dangerous introduction of Yankee methods.

CANADA'S RAILWAY STANDING

There is no higher material test of the advanced civilisation of a country, than the approximate perfection of its transportation facilities, and no stronger evidence of advancement can be offered than that afforded by advance in transportation matters. Judged by this standard Canada is going forward rapidly. The advance in railway mileage, and the associated conditions, is something to be grateful for. In 1861, six years before Confederation, Canada possessed but 1,880 miles of railway, with a paid-up capital of $38,278,986. Those lines carried 1,825,000 passengers, handled 1,459,446 tons of freight, and earned a net sum of $1,046,316, the aggregate earnings being $6 722,606. On June 30th last there were 20,601 miles of completed railway in the Dominion, an increase of 990 miles over the previous year, besides 3,632 miles of sidings. The paid-up capital amounted to $1,248,666,414; there were 25,288,723 passengers carried, and the freight traffic was represented by 50,893,957 tons. The gross earnings amounted to $106,467,199, and the net earnings to $26,489,025. Comparing the two periods, it will be seen what enormous strides Canada has made in 44 years; and this and the next few succeeding years will show a still greater advance, and go a long way towards putting our railway mileage at the 25,000 mark.

VACCINATION.

The members of the Toronto Board of Education have voted against vaccination, an action which medical men regard as a display of ignorance of the crudest type. Among the best of our medical men who have paid special attention to the subject, vaccination is accepted as an effective prophylactic against smallpox, one of the most loathsome of diseases—perhaps next to leprosy, the most to be dreaded. If vaccination, as a general thing, protects us against this disease, then it is desirable, and, as the doctors would say, "indicated." True, there are instances of vaccination being followed by disastrous results, but it is probable that these are not due to vaccination properly performed with pure lymph—but to careless vaccination with impure lymph, and upon patients with, perhaps, constitutional weakness and inclination to disease. No doubt a strong case can be made against vaccination, and many instances can be given of its having led to undesirable results, but mountains of testimony can be piled up to show the benefits of vaccination properly performed. It is best, in case of the doubt that is created, to trust to medical science. The probability is that it is in the right in upholding vaccination. Medical science has made great advances and done much to alleviate the sufferings of humanity, and is generally entitled to public confidence, and generally anxious to heal or prevent disease. The medical profession is doubtless honest in its advocacy of vaccination, deeming it the best protection available against smallpox.

Mr. Wm. Preston Defends Choice Of His Property

Believes That the Protest of "Douro Ratepayer" is Unwarranted—Says His Farm is Well Adapted to the Uses of a House of Refuge—Says Results Will Show That Farm is a Good One—Quotes Figures to Show Its Value.

SOME INFORMATION OF PUBLIC INTEREST

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—In reference to an anonymous letter that appeared in the Review some days ago over the signature "Douro Ratepayer" I ask respectfully space for the following:—

He says that the soil on my farm is not good, that it is not more than twenty feet above "Lakefield Marshes" at the highest point. It is not necessary for me to contradict that, for it is well known to everybody acquainted with the facts, that such is incorrect. He states that he would like to see the "County Money" invested in a farm that would give good results. I might say for the information of that gentleman that I do not know who he is, but I would like to compare results as to the returns from his farm and mine. My father raised ten children on the same farm and I have been working it since his death and met all of the current expenses besides unforseen expenditures such as that in connection with sickness of long duration, etc., and also have expended $1,700.00 outside of my own time on out-buildings recently that would cost labour included to-day at least $1,600.00. I have not yet sold any of last year's crop and if "Douro Ratepayer" knows any gentleman or perhaps himself, that requires some money on a loan, I will accommodate him if the proper security is given. I just mention the above over my own name to show to the public the wrong impression thrown out by "Douro Ratepayer". It was generally conceded by the public until after the council had decided to buy not less than 100 acres, that Mr. Braden's farm would be selected and you will remember the letter that appeared with reference to his farm, also one of the best farms in the county.

You will notice that two or three sites in the vicinity of Lakefield have been attacked and I was just thinking that the third site has escaped and that the owner is very lucky in not having his property spoken of as a probable site and escaped being falsely represented.

The last report I read in one of the Peterborough papers of "News Items" from Lakefield read like this:—"The people of the vicinity of Lakefield are highly satisfied with the selection of the Preston property as a location for the House of Refuge. Now would "Douro Ratepayer" tell us what site he would choose.

Assuring "Douro Ratepayer" that I have nothing but the friendliest feelings and sympathy for him, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
WM. PRESTON.

To the Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—With the exception of the medical men everyone in our go-ahead town is aware of the growth of the south end. A large number of the residents agree that there is a first class opening for a doctor south of the C. P. R. and west of George street. We hope to see some clever M. D. in this district soon. This is where the town is growing fastest and will continue to grow.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, innoculated a rabbit with dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause—you remove the effect."

Did You Lose This?

From the Warkworth Journal.

ABOUT TWENTY YEARS ago a pocketbook containing a snug sum of money was found on Front street in Campbellford. It was advertised in the Campbellford Herald, but the finder failed to return it to the owner. Now, after the lapse of all these years, the finder is anxious to discover the person who lost it, in order that he may make restitution. He has sent the money to Mr. J. T. Vosper, and with it a letter promising to pay interest on the amount from the time it was lost up to the present. The interest alone will reach the sum of $32.

"But," said the friend, "the place is empty; I don't see any patients."

A Successful Tea Meeting

Held by the Methodists of Eden Church, South Burleigh.

A very pleasant and successful tea meeting was held by the Methodists of Eden church, South Burleigh, on Friday evening, Feb. 16. Tea was served in the school house by the ladies with their usual liberality and then an adjournment was made to the church, where Mr. John Hull, of Lakefield, was called upon to fill the chair. A short programme, to which the choir of Zion church, Dummer, ably contributed, was then given. There were a number present from Warsaw, Apsley, and other places, with the usual large crowd of our Dummer friends. The occasion was honoured by the presence of Rev. Mr. Leggott, of Lakefield, Rev. Mr. Nickle, of Warsaw, and Rev. Mr. Crowe. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $55.41. Eden church was opened in January, 1901, and is now free of debt.

Prospects for to-night's association football meeting are very encouraging. About fifty enthusiasts are expected to turn to the organization meeting at the Y.M.C.A. and assist in the election of officers. Also there will be considerable discussion on matters which were referred to at the meeting last week together with numerous other considerations.

With the material that the Peterborough Quakers will have this season there should be no difficulty in landing the Midland League Championship and there are many in the city who take this optimistic view.

The meeting will be held to-night at 7.45 and all interested in the game are requested to be on hand as the future success of the club greatly depends on the issue of to-night's meeting.

Trent Canal Contractors Lose Case In Court

Messrs. Corry and Laverdure Defeated by Their Solicitors.

On Tuesday morning W. L. Scott, Ottawa, Master in Chancery, gave judgment in the case of Charles Murphy and Harold Fisher vs. Corry & Lavendure, contractors. They sued for a balance of $1,227, alleged to be due for legal services.

The Master gave judgment for the full amount and costs. The case has been in the courts for some time.

When Corry & Lavendure contracted to do large construction work on the Trent Canal for the Dominion Government in May 7, 1896, the first price mentioned was $275,000. On account of many changes, more work to be done, etc., the price reached was $653,883. Murphy and Fisher were solicitors for the contractors in their negotiations wth the Government and it is claimed that largely through their efforts the contractors got more for their work than the figure first mentioned.

Their charge was $3,500, and of this $2,273 was paid; the balance, $1,227, was disputed, and Corry and Laverdure claimed the Ottawa lawyers has been paid sufficient.

They differed with them and went to law about the matter. In course of time the point at issue was referred to the Master and he gave judgment in Murphy and Fisher's favour, contending that their charges were not excessive, that the work required special care and great attention and that the claim was a just and fair one.

Local Curlers At Bobcaygeon

Peterborough was represented in Bobcaygeon yesterday by two rinks and although they were defeated 12 points yet they had a very pleasant outing and report the 'Caygeon curlers as right jolly good fellows. Two games were played in the afternoon and two in the evening.

The ice was very sticky and was not conducive to scientific curling yet the jolly time spent more than compensated for their defeat.

After the evening's games the Peterborough boys were tendered an oyster supper at the Rockland House. Speeches replete with witticisms were given by all the members of the two clubs who were present which added greatly to the evening's enjoyment.

The following were the games and results:—

The Hockey Team To Be Banquetted

Citizens Will Tender Them a Banquet on Monday Night at the Oriental--125 Tickets Will be Issued--Citizens Will Join in Showing Honour to the Team Which Brought Championship to Peterborough--Details of the Programme--O. H. A. Officers to be Here.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of citizens was held in the Oriental Hotel parlours for the purpose of making arrangements for the banquet which will be tendered the members of the hockey team on Monday night next. It was unanimously decided that their victory should be signalized in a suitable manner, and this was considered the most fitting way.

Those present at the meeting were Messrs. W. McIlroy, W. S. Davidson, Alex. Elliott, A. P. McDonald, T. H. Hooper, A. A. Hollingshead, Roland Donne, D. Davidson and M. J. Hutchinson.

The principal business was that of appointing the committees to complete the arrangements and to carry them into effect.

The Honourary Committee was appointed as follows: Hon. J. R. Stratton, chairman, and who will preside at the banquet; R. R. Hall, M. P.; T. E. Bradburn, M. P. P.; Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P.; Mayor Best, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, R. A. Morrow.

The General Committee is as follows: W. S. Davidson, chairman; R. Donne, A. P. McDonald, M. J. Hutchinson, T. H. Hooper, D. Davidson, Dr. Wightman, Alex. Elliott, John Crane, W. McIlroy, secretary, A. A. Hollingshead, treasurer.

Sub-committees were appointed, including one on programme and printing, composed of Messrs. A. P. McDonald, Alex. Elliott and John Crane.

The General Committee will meet again on Saturday night at 8 o'clock to complete arrangements. It was decided to limit the attendance to 125, and the price of tickets was fixed at $2. These tickets will be issued to the treasurer and will be on sale at the Bank of Ottawa, Ormond & Walsh's, and the C.P.R. city ticket office. Members of the committee will also have tickets for sale.

The banquet will commence at 9 o'clock and the intention is to make it entirely informal. Very few speeches will be given, but the programme will consist largely of music and recitations, the best artists in the city having consented to contribute. It is expected that the president, secretary and treasurer of the O.H.A. will be in the city and will attend the banquet and present the Dunlop Cup, emblematic of the championship.

This is entirely a citizens' affair, and it is hoped that they will turn out well to show that they appreciate the work of the boys in bringing honour to this city. They have played good hockey this season through good report and ill, and deserve all the credit they can be given.

The Hoodlums Again Get In Their Work

The Police Report Considerable Damage to Property Last Night.

The police are complaining of the way the populace of Peterborough, or at least a certain portion of it, celebrated the homecoming of the Intermediate champions. The celebration as carried out by some was in many cases too expensive to property holders to be appreciated by them, and it is doubtful if the hockey boys appreciate their welcome any more because of the wanton destruction of property. There is such a thing as going to extremes and that was certainly shown by last night's devastation that many thoughtless and criminally inconsiderate persons. Many panes of glass in the windows of the Wm. English Canoe Company's factory were broken, waggons that were standing in front of Mr. John Craig's blacksmith shop, East City, waiting for repairs were taken and were left at the residences of some of the citizens. About 10.30 o'clock last night, two Italian boys came rushing up to the police station to report that the fence in front of the Italian boarding house next to Larocque's hotel, was being demolished. When the police reached the scene of the depredations the fence had been completely torn down and after being thrown into the roadside, was set on fire and burned up. Acting Chief Adams had to put out a fire on George street that was lighted in the middle of the road on the street car track, and which, had it become beyond control would have impeded the passage of the cars for some time. These are only a few of the offences that the police were called upon to investigate and all were annoying in the extreme and altogether uncalled for. The next time there is a celebration like that of last night the local force will probably be reinforced by a large corps of special police and there will be no hesitancy in collaring the offenders and bringing them to justice. They had less though of honouring the hockey boys than indulging in a spirit of mischief The hockey boys played clean hockey and would appreciate a clean homecoming.

WEDDING BELLS

WESTLAKE—MANN.

A wedding of much local interest took place at the residence of Mr. Thos. Young, Smith, it being the occasion of the marriage of Miss Annie Melrose, eldest daughter of Mr. Philip Westlake, to Mr. James A. Mann. Exactly at five o'clock the bride entered the drawing room, leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Mildred Mann, sister of the groom. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss Isabelle and the groom, by his brother, Robert, of Toronto. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. J. W. Bunner, of Newtonville. The bride as gowned in cream crepe de chine, beautifully trimmed with all over lace, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in cream lustre and carried a bouquet of pink roses. After the wedding ceremony the guests to the number of about sixty, sat down to the usual wedding supper. The presents were numerous and costly and were a distinct recognition of the high esteem in which the contracting parties were held. Among the presents was a handsome fur coat, the gift of the bride's father. The groom's gift to the bride and bridesmaid was a pretty gold brooch.

The bride was an active member of the Bridgenorth Methodist church, and her absence will be greatly felt. Both parties are members of the same community and very highly respected, and carry with them the heartiest and best wishes of a large circle of friends. They leave on March 13th for their home in Elgin, Man., going by way of Chicago and St. Paul. The groom is a prosperous farmer in Manitoba and operates a large farm at Elgin.

DICKSON—MARTIN.

Yesterday evening at the parsonage of Rev. Dr. Torrance, a very quiet wedding took place when Miss Jennie Martin, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. C. Dickson, of Otonabee. The Rev. Dr. Torrance officiated. Mr. and Dickson will reside in Otonabee.

EVANS—RENWICK.

The residence of Mr. Jno. Renwick, of Lang, Otonabee, was yesterday evening the scene of a charming wedding, when Mr. Renwick's daughter, Miss Annie, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Evans, also of Otonabee. The Rev. D. D. McDonald, of the Keene Presbyterian church, conducted the ceremony. The bride was handsomely gowned in a pretty navy blue silk costume adorned with beautiful lace. The flower girl, little Miss Annie Garvin, was costumed in white organdie. The bride and groom were unattended. The numerous beautiful and useful presents testified to the high esteem in which the contracting parties were held. Mr. and Mrs. Evans will leave next Monday for the Northwest, where they will reside.

French Cabinet Leaves Office At Critical Time

Premier Rouvier's Ministry Comes to a Dramatic End.

LIKE BOLT FROM CLEAR SKY

Deputies Were Asked to Approve Government's Conduct in the Cases of Taking Church Inventories—All Classes of Oppositionists United and Voted Down Resolution by 357 to 234—Ministry Resigned.

Paris, March 8.—Like a bolt from a clear sky the Rouvier Ministry was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies last night and immediately resigned.

The Cabinet crisis comes at a most dramatic moment, when the French-German contest has reached a decisive stage, and may exert an important adverse influence on the Algeciras conference and European affairs.

The defeat of the Government came on a comparatively minor debate over the church disorders. The Government succeeded in holding only 234 votes, while the various elements in opposition, Clericals, Socialists and Nationalists united and polled 267 votes, thus placing the Ministry in a minority of 33.

Premier Rouvier, with all his colleagues, immediately proceeded to the PREMIER ROUVIER.

Foreign Office when a joint letter of resignation was prepared. Later M. Rouvier presented this letter to President Fallieres, who accepted the resignations. The President announced his intention of consulting the presidents of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies to-day relative to the formation of a new Cabinet.

Debated Bloody Riot.

The debate in the Chamber of Deputies was upon the bloody riot Tuesday during the inventory of a church in the Village of Bosschep, resulting in the death of a manifestant. Various orators severely criticized the Government's course, asserting that it threatened to precipitate religious warfare.

Premier Rouvier responded:

"The Government has the duty to apply the law. "It will apply it without weakness, but also with prudence, tact and wisdom consistent with public tranquility. I ask the adoption of a resolution approving these resolutions of the Government."

The resolution was thereupon put to a vote and defeated. The result was due to a combination of opposition influences. The vote was more expressive of a personal antagonism to the Ministry than of opposition to church inventories.

Rouvier Explains.

Replying to one of his followers, Premier Rouvier, who displayed not the slightest emotion, remarked:

"I regard it as a point of honor to fulfil the task I had undertaken. The Chamber's vote has relieved me of a burden, the weight of which had begun to make itself felt. I do not regret it.

"I should have received 350 votes had I declared for more vigorous action; but the sentiment of the Chamber was against the Cabinet's remaining in office until the election and the struggle would have begun again to-morrow. It was better to finish immediately."

The meeting of the Cabinet at the Foreign Office lasted half an hour. After exchanging views with reference to church inventories, it was decided to suspend operations in that regard until a new Cabinet has been appointed.

Berlin is Apprehensive.

Berlin, March 8.—The fall of M. Rouvier, the French Premier, awakens certain misgivings here lest it shall lead to a resumption of the foreign policy of M. Delcasse.

It is pointed out that the majority against M. Rouvier was composed chiefly of Nationalists. Much curiosity and some anxiety is indulged in respecting the effect of the change in the Government on the Algeciras conference and it is feared that fresh complications will follow or that at least there will be a period of uncertainty and delay in the proceedings.

French Proposals.

Algeciras, Spain, March 8.—The French police project was distributed late last night among the delegates to the conference on Moroccan reforms. The proposition, which will be presented to the conference to-day, consists of five paragraphs.

The result of to-day's sitting of the conference is awaited with interest. Reports relative to the probability of an agreement are circulated on all sides. Conciliation certainly is in the air, and continued efforts in that direction are going on.

No Concessions to Miners.

Chicago, March 8.—No concessions will be made by the Illinois Coal Operators' Association to the United Mine Workers of America. This was decided on yesterday at an executive meeting of the operators, who adopted resolutions declaring their willingness to face the threatened strike on April 1 rather than grant the demands of the miners.

Elevator Fatality.

Buffalo, March 8.—George Ehrman was instantly killed and two other men were seriously injured yesterday when a freight elevator in the plant of the Dold Packing Co. fell.

Churchill's Secretary.

London, March 8.—(C. A. P.)—Winston Churchill has appointed Hamar Greenwood his parliamentary private secretary.

Probable Issue Of Provincial Railway Bonds

Provincial Treasurer May Sell Bonds of Ontario.

THE LICENSE BILL DEFERRED

Will Not Be Introduced Till Next Thursday—Progress Made on Estimates—Mr. Hoyle's Prospectus Bill Read a Second Time—Promoters to Be Compelled to Keep Faith —Anti-Treating Bill Read.

Toronto, March 8.—Inquiring as to the probable progress of public business at the close of the Legislative sitting last evening, Hon. Mr. Ross asked when the budget speech might be expected. Hon. Mr. Matheson replied: "Certain events which I hope will take place will make it more satisfactory ten days from now." The events alluded to are doubtless connected with the sale of Temiskaming Railway bonds. Considerable progress was made with the estimates in Committee on Supply, some $360,000 of the civil government votes having been agreed to so far.

Questions Answered.

Hon. Mr. Monteith gave Mr. Sutherland some information regarding the production of milk at the O. A. C.

The Provincial Secretary told Mr McDougall that Henry Morey was appointed license inspector at Mattawa on March 24, 1904. A schedule showing the commodities he had supplied the Government on the Temiskaming Railway Commission was laid on the table.

Sale of Bonds.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt moved for a return of correspondence in any way relating to the sale of the Temiskaming boads, stocks or debentures, and particularly of all offers for the sale of the securities, and the replies thereto.

The Provincial Treasurer asked that the motion be withdrawn as the offers and correspondence were to be considered confidential.

Mr. Harcourt concurred. He drew attention to the fact that the Premier had been reported in one of the newspapers as saying that no offer had been received for the purchase of the bonds. Presumably that was a mistake. The Premier probably said there had been no offer at a fixed price. One newspaper had perhaps copied the Premier's remarks from another paper and had accidentally omitted the important part.

The Premier said he had never stated and to his knowledge was never alleged to have stated, that no offer had been received by the Government for the bonds.

Mr. Hoyle's Bill.

Mr. Hoyle, in moving the second reading of the bill which will compel companies to furnish full particulars of operations in prospectuses issued, said that the intent was not to take in merely companies incorporated under the Ontario Companies' Act, but all companies whether under Imperial, Dominion or patent charters. He spoke of the flamboyant methods of certain promoters, and the need of protection from promoters to the investing public. He had not found a moment's publication that disapproved of his bill, which he had brought up every year since 1902. The amount of cash each provisional director had invested should be set forth, and the contracts entered into, though there would continue to be gold-bricks forced upon the public no matter what legislation might be put through. He referred to a company in having obtained $300,000 in good stock for its promoters without their investing a dollar. At present shareholders wanting recourse had to institute a civil suit, but under the proposed measure they could bring up the promoters before a police magistrate, and have them fined. Mr. Hoyle claimed that prominent legal advice had assured him that the Legislature had power to amend the act, and that it would insure a refund of money to mislead shareholders. The bill would be hailed with general satisfaction and would help to build up the legitimate industries of New Ontario.

Government Bill Coming.

Hon. Mr. Hanna said a similar bill was introduced last session, but was withdrawn as a general revision of the Companies' Act was contemplated. However this year the Government had requested Mr. Hoyle to re-introduce his bill. There was necessity for it owing to conditions in New Ontario, but the Government bill would be brought down and given a first reading in order that it might be distributed so that it might be added to as conditions were suggested.

Mr. Harcourt suggested also a revision of the Ontario Insurance Act.

Mr. Pratt, in discussing the bill, referred to the Cramp steel organization in strong terms. He also attacked Joseph Stratford's operations.

Mr. Preston (Brant) sympathised with the object of the bill, but resented the attack on Mr. Stratford of Brantford, who was connected with a binding machine company, which had paid dividends of 60, 90 and 100 per cent.

Mr. McGarry's bill to amend the Municipal Act was also read a second time, as was Mr. Gamey's bill to amend the High Schools Act.

First Readings.

Only four bills were read a first time. When Mr. McNaught submitted his measure to prohibit treating there were cries of "carried" and considerable laughter showing the humor of the House. Mr. Macdiarmid had three bills. The first, to amend the Municipal Act, deals with section 569 and gives power to municipalities that have constructed gas, electric light or water plants to pass bylaws for extensions without the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor. An amendment to the Municipal Light and Heat Act is for the purpose of providing that unpaid light or heat be made a lien on the land effected. He also introduced a bill to amend the act respecting boards of education in certain cities.

Manufacturers Not Obliging.

On going into Committee of Supply Mr. Little was called to the chair.

Mr. Preston, on the item of $3,150 for the Bureau of Labor, under the Public Works Department, suggested that more weight would attach to the request for information addressed to manufacturers if the circular were signed by the Minister for Public Works instead of the secretary of the bureau. The Manufacturers' Association had advised its members not to supply information. Without it the returns were incomplete and practically worthless.

Hon. Mr. Reaume said there was no law to compel the giving of such information, and it could not be exacted without legislation.

Hon. Mr. Ross criticised the appointment of several new stenographers.

Hon. M. Reaume said they had been temporary clerks, some of them for years, and keeping them from year to year was more expensive than putting them on the permanent list.

Premier Whitney said this was a splendid illustration of what he had already referred to. Instead of being straightforward with the public and putting on the clerks permanently, the ideas of statesmanship of the late Government were better carried out by deceiving the public by these concealed appointments paid for out of the contingency fund. The only difference in the staff was that the Government was now telling about it. The people, continued the Premier, were beginning to understand its policy.

Boasting Before a Fall.

Hon. Mr. Ross declared that hearing so much about the people was becoming nauseous. The Premier boasted about the people. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall," quoted Mr. Ross. An example had been given in the estimates the previous day of how the people were treated.

The vote of $49,150 for the Public Works Department was adopted.

On the vote for the Treasury Department, in reply to Mr. Graham, Hon. Mr. Matheson stated that there was a standing offer on the statute books to the other Provinces and to other countries for an arrangement by which estate duties would only be exacted in the Province in which they were situated. He had been trying to arrange it so that only one tax would be payable.

The treasury vote of $28,400 was agreed to.

Record Of Peterborough HOCKEY CLUB IS LONG And Creditable One

Short History of Hockey in Peterborough—This City Has Always Been Noted for its Fast Hockey Team and Has Nearly Every Season Been Represented by a Good Team--Something About Championships Already Won.

The Peterborough hookey club has had a long and glorious record in the O.H.A., one that doubtless has not been equalled by any other team in that organization. They have won in all five championships, three junior and two intermediate and have been on two other occasions in the finals for the junior honours. For over sixteen years Peterborough has been noted as a hockey town and every season has seen Peterborough represented by a team which, if it did not win out has at least made a most creditable showing. What is more Peterborough is known as always having a strictly amateur team, made up of home-brews, playing the game for love instead of for money. Never in their long service in the O.H.A. has there been the faintest breath of suspicion against the amateur standing of the club, and no better proof of this can be offered than that Peterborough has never been called upon to defend a protest. Such a record is one of which every citizen of Peterborough should be justly proud and makes their victory this season all the more creditable.

Hockey in Peterborough has had a long and eventful history and the older fans have many tales to tell of the famous struggles that took place in the early nineties. Most of the players that were the stars then have have long since quit the game, although Ernie Wasson the veteran goal-keeper, this year's championship team contains a player who started in 1890. In the early history of the O. H. A. Peterborough was renowned for its junior team. In those days there was no age limit for the junior series and the so-called juniors of that period would astonish the present-day fans by their size and age. Peterborough won the junior O.H.A. championship in 1894 by defeating Toronto Granites 14—0 and in 1895 they won again from the Granites by 7—6. In 1896 the same teams were in the finals, but the result was different, the Granites winning out by 7—3.

In 1897 Peterborough's senior O. H. A. team came to the front and although two championships were won the seven gained the reputation of being a very fast team. Montgomery, Hollingshead, Roger Davidson, Lionel King and Walter Phelan were some of the stars of that period. At this time or a little later Chris Graham, W. Crowley and Robbie Glover of the present team broke into the game. The memorable struggle with Queen's University, who were defeated here for the first time in years by the locals by a score of 5-4 is still fresh in the minds of many citizens, who also recall the games with the Toronto Wellingtons, and the notable occasion on which Peterborough, after being defeated here by Varsity went to Toronto and administered a defeat to the collegians on their own ice.

In 1899 the famous Colts, that were destined to win much renown for Peterborough, first came into prominence. From this team have graduated Harry Morgan and Fred. Whitcroft, of this year's champions, and Harold Armstrong, now one of the best known players in Ontario. The Colts were fairly successful in 1899 being defeated in the semi-finals by Upper Canada College. In 1900 they went one step farther and reached the semi-finals, only to be beaten by the Stratford juniors in a series of home and home games by 12-9. The next year Peterborough had their revenge. The Colts travelled through the series with scarcely a defeat and again reached the finals with Stratford. The first game was played here, the locals winning by 12-9. Elmer Smith, of the local forward line was taken ill on the way to Stratford, and the game was played with Peterborough one man short. They managed to hold the score down to 7-0, and won the round by 12-7.

In 1902 the intermediate team was prominent. It was composed of Harold Armstrong, Roy Armstrong, Whitcroft and Morgan, of the Colts, and Wasson, Glover and Graham, of the intermediates. The team were defeated by 5-4 at Lindsay in extra time in the first game, and after that did not lose another game that season. Port Hope, Lindsay, R.M.C., Newmarket and Galt were defeated in turn. The fight with the latter team in the finals was a bitter one. Peterborough winning at home by 4-3, and tieing Galt at Galt by 3-3.

The success of the team in 1902 so aroused the enthusiasm of the citizens that it was decided to build a new rink, and the present structure on Brock street was erected. The first year in the new rink was a disastrous one to the team, and they went down in the first round, losing to Port Hope and Belleville on their own ice.

In 1903-04 Peterborough had undoubtedly the strongest team that has ever worn the local colours. They, however, failed to win out their district. They lost at Picton by 6-3 and at Belleville by 2-1, and won their home games by 15-7 and 7-4, respectively. Late in the season Peterborough defeated the Marlboros of Toronto by 20-4 and the St. George's by 15-3.

Last year's team, composed almost entirely of this year's players, reached the semi-finals and lost to Berlin. The record of last year is too fresh to need recalling.

From this brief sketch it will be seen that Peterborough has a record as a hockey town of which any place might be justified in feeling proud.

Outside Press Comment ON GREAT VICTORY OF Peterborough's Champions

Bouquets From Journals in Different Parts of the Province —Port Hope Congratulates Peterborough on Bringing Another Victory to the Midland District—Showing of Team Surprised Western Critics.

The Ontario press yesterday paid a few tributes to the Peterborough Hockey Team, the new Intermediate champions. Here are a few of them:

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

It has been said that the Peterborough team should have been playing senior this season, rather than Intermediate. Their showing last night at Goderich seems to give strength to the claim. Any team that can go to Goderich and hold the Sailors that close should have been in the Senior series. Woodstock held them 6 to 4 with an Intermediate team, but the Sailors have improved since that time. The result last night was a very great surprise to all concerned, it being conceded that the game would be all Goderich with a slight chance for the latter to overcome the seven goal lead.

Toronto Star.

The crowd was probably 1200 or 1300. Very few Peterborough supporters were present as few could spare the time to make the long trip. Both teams were in good shape having on full strength. The ice was in good condition despite the recent soft weather. The feeling before the game was that Goderich had a very hard proposition in trying to pull down Peterborough's lead from the first game. They had great confidence in them, however, and people from all the surrounding towns came in to see the game. It is seldom that two as heavy teams have come together in any final game and in this respect the teams were very nearly equal. Both teams played very clean hockey.

After the game a crowd of hoodlums threw missles at Peterborough on the way from the rink. The better element was satisfied that the better team won the championship. Peterborough's good condition told, and as soon as they got on to the ice they completely outplayed the home team.

Toronto Telegram.

As expected the Intermediate O.H.A. championship goes to Peterborough. They didn't win in Goderich last night but they kept the Sailors from overcoming the lead they obtained in Peterborough. And from all accounts Peterborough ought to get back to its old place in the Senior series next year, and thus recall the glad days when Liney King and Walter Phelan were right and left bowers.

Port Hope Guide.

Well done for Peterborough! They have brought another championship to the Midland District, and no doubt had there been a Senior team around this part the Senior championship would have been brought down too. You can't beat the old Midland District for fast hockey players, and we are pleased to see it so well to the front for the season of 1906. Peterborough has played a strictly home-brew team all season and their splendid showing is very creditable. Last night was their first defeat of the season, Goderich doing the trick by the score of 5—4. Peterborough, however, wins the round by six goals and had it been necessary to win last night's game the chances are they could have done it. Port Hope extends congratulations to the new champions.

Lindsay Post.

The last game in the O.H.A. was played last night and as a result the Intermediate championship, along with the Junior honours, will reside in eastern domains till next season. The Peterborough band, who were playing "Onward to Victory," have changed the tune to "See the Conquering Heroes Come," and "Peterborough has a Hockey Team, a Hockey Team," etc.

Armstrong The Best Individual

Ottawa Journal Says He Was the Best on the Ice.

The Ottawa Journal of yesterday in reporting the first Stanley Cup game, between Smith's Falls and Ottawa, speaking of the work of Harold Armstrong, says:—

"Armstrong at cover point, made a decided impression on an Ottawa crowd by his speedy work and daring hurdling and stick handling. Armstrong had already proved himself the best individual hockeyist on the ice and gave a showing very similar to the work of Lester Patrick, of the Wanderers, whose stick handling his much resembles."

Harold Armstrong's Star Stick Work

The Smith's Falls team are essentially a team of individuals. As such they excel the Ottawas and they played fast and loose with the much vaunted defence. Pulford and Moore looked very small potatoes many times last evening and this was particularly the case when Armstrong was on his way to the other end with the puck.

Armstrong has once or twice shown what a stickhandler he is, and the Ottawa defence began to be afraid of it. They seemed determined to knock him out by fair means or foul, and so Pulford suffered the penalty for cross-checking him.

Armstrong got into his stride and executed another wonderful piece of individual play. He outwitted McGee, left Westwick looking foolish, passed Moore, easily skated around Pulford and had nothing left to do but tip the puck into the net. It was a masterly run, and a great roar went up as it was seen that Smith's Falls were in the lead for the first time in the match. Back again came Armstrong and again beat Moore and Pulford and how Hague managed to save the shot was little more than a miracle.

Armstrong was soon penalized which assisted Ottawa, for the cover point had been ever too much for the opposition.—Montreal Daily Star.

The following was the winners' line-up:—

TERRIBLE PAINS ACROSS BACK

SUFFERED EIGHT MONTHS WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE. WOULD HAVE TO STAY IN BED FOR THREE DAYS AT A TIME

Doan's Kidney Pills CURED HIM

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, Haseldean, Ont., writes us as follows: "I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble for eight months. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. I would have to stay in bed for three days at a time and could not do any work. I tried several remedies but of no avail, and also plasters but they were of no use.

One day a neighbor of mine advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so much discouraged I told him I was tired of trying remedies, but he urged me to try one box so I purchased one, and before I was through using it, I found a change for the better so I got five boxes more, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. I would not be without Doan's Pills in my house."

It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They quickly relieve the congested, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

COD LIVER OIL and IRON

Add PHOSPHORUS and you have FERROL

For many years it has been recognized by physicians everywhere that Cod Liver Oil and Iron should be given in combination if possible, as where one is required the other is in all probability needed, too, each enhancing the value of the other.

Strange to say, although many attempts have been made, no one ever succeeded in combining the oil and iron until, quite recently, a Canadian physician, after some years of study and experiment, managed to solve the problem He then added just a little phosphorus; the result is which contains in an elegant, palatable and easily digested emulsion Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus, the exact constituents necessary to Increase the Weight, Enrich the Blood and Build up the System.

No argument is needed to prove the value of such a preparation in the treatment of Bronchitis and Pulmonary Diseases, Scrofula, Rickets, Anæmia and wasting diseases of any kind.

For Croup, Whooping Cough and Chronic Coughs and Colds Ferrol is an absolute specific.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians, It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanatoriums, etc.

Social Evening Spent At Sons' Of England Hall

High Chief Companion Mrs. Rigge, of Toronto, Gave an Address—Outlined Benefits of the Companion Circle—Pleasant and Lengthy Programme—Mr. Jno. Carey Chairman—Refreshments Served at Intermission.

LADIES ASSISTED BY COURT STANLEY

The Sons of England Hall was, last night, the scene of a very pleasant social time. The members of Court Queen Alexandria Circle, A. O. F., gave an At Home and despite other attractions the hall was well filled to hear the delightful entertainment arranged by the ladies. Probably the most interesting number of the programme was the address given by High Chief Companion Mrs. Rigge, of Toronto. She arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and was honoured by a reception from the ladies of the Alexandria Circle. In company with a number of the officers of the Circle.

Mrs. Rigge was driven around the city and visited many of the prominent places.

In her address last night she spoke in the interests of the order cleverly outlining the benefits obtained by being a member of the Companion Court. Her talk was exceedingly interesting from beginning to end and intellectually, benefitted her hearers. Mrs. Rigge also gave a recitation which was much enjoyed.

Mr. Henderson's comic songs were a feature of the entertainment and he had to respond repeatedly to encores.

Refreshments consisting of cake and coffee were served, during intermission in the programme, by the ladies and this, as usual, formed a prominent part of the evening.

The following programme was presented by Chairman Mr. Jno. Carey, who officiated in his customary happy manner:—

Great praise is due the committee of the At Home composed of Mrs. H. Hanwell, Mrs. A. Cook, Mrs. S. Adlam, Mrs. J. O. Moss, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Stevens.

The Circle will meet at residence of J. C. Hamilton, to-night, when several candidates will be initiated and a banquet will be tendered the High Chief Companion, Mrs. Rigge.

Mrs. Rigge will give an address to members of the Circle, also the officers of Court Stanley, A.O.F.

Had a Bad Leg.

"For twelve years I was a great sufferer from eczema on the inside of the leg. There was a raw patch of flesh about three inches square, and the itching was something dreadful. Dr. Chase's Ointment completely cured me, took away the itching, and healed up the sore." — Mr. Alex. McDougall, postmaster, Broad Cove Marsh, N. S.

The exterior of the car bearing the players was decorated with blue and white bunting, while "Peterborough" was inscribed on a banner on each side of the car.

Captain Fred. Whitcroft GIVES HIS OPINION OF THE Team In Goderich Game

Says Reports Misrepresented the Play--The Boys Acquitted Themselves Particularly Well--Every Man on the Line-Up Played With Dash and Energy.

When Captain Whitcroft was interviewed last night by the Examiner in their negotiations with the Gov. in Goderich, he said:

"The play of the locals was entirely misrepresented by the despatches to the Toronto papers, and the description of the match was inaccurate in many details. Every man on the Peterborough team played the game of his life, and Goderich on the play was beaten all through the contest. Graham and Cavanah on the wings followed up fast, checked well and shot remarkably accurately. They had their checks discounted all the time, and both played better than in any match they have played this season. Morgan at centre excelled himself and was very fast and effective. He was on the puck all the time and never lost an opportunity to shoot on goal. His check never got away from him once and he assisted the defence on many occasions. Altogether he played about the best game he ever did. Contrary to the reports in the Toronto papers he was not off the ice once, and he easily stood the pace during the entire game. Crowley at cover was in splendid form, and his showing was a revelation to the rail birds. He carried the puck from one end of the rink to the other in many of his fine end to end rushes, and never lagged once during the progress of the battle. He played a much better game in Goderich than he ever has done here and was always in the right place at the right time. Glover at point did better in Goderich than he did here, and it was generally conceded that he was much better when the Sailors and the locals met in Peterborough than he ever was before, so it may be seen that he put up a better game in Goderich than he has ever done, and that's going some. Wasson in goal had his eye on everything, and the shots that beat him out were almost impossible for any goal-tender to keep out of the nets. It certainly was his night on.

Two of the goals credited to Goderich were away off-side, and one that Peterborough obtained was not allowed. The umpire subsequently admitted that had he held up his hand his life would have been in danger. The players don't recognize the result of the game in Goderich as a defeat and consider they have landed the intermediate championship of the O.H.A. with a clean sheet. The team has played good, clean, consistent hockey all winter, and I consider it an honour to have captained such a worthy aggregation of first-class sportsmen. They have played hockey that has marked them as easily fast enough for senior company."

Mr. Fitzgerald's Illness Very Much Regretted

Lindsay Cheese Board Passed Resolution of Condolence.

The annual meeting of the Lindsay Cheese Board was held in the Council Chamber Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

President—Mr. Thos. Robertson.
1st Vice-President—Mr. John Kennedy.
2nd Vice-President — Mr. John Staples.
Secretary—Mr. E. E. Shyne.
Treasurer—Mr. Geo. E. Rea.

President Robertson in his opening remarks stated that at this the eighth annual meeting, of the Board, he was pleased to report that the quality of the cheese sold on the Board for the past season had given good satisfaction. The price received was good, although not quite as high as the prices obtained on the Peterborough Board. Fifteen factories had boarded 16,020 cheese, which at 80 lbs. per cheese totalled 1,281,600 lbs., and at 10 7-16c per lb. equalled $153,767.00, which does not include perhaps 200 cheese boarded at Red Rock. Messrs. Flavelle, Fitzgerald and Brown had bought all the cheese, Mr. Cook being at the meetings only once, and as there were only 611 cheese boarded at that sale he did not bid at all. In closing, President Robertson said he was very sorry to learn of the sad affliction of Mr. Fitzgerald, who had been a buyer on the Board for the last seven years. A resolution of condolence will be forwarded to Mr. Fitzgerald.

Smallpox Situation Becoming Serious In Bowmanville

Capt. W. C. King, Well Known in Military Circles in Peterborough, is the Latest Victim—His Case Said to be a Serious One—The Epidemic is Spreading.

A special to The Examiner to-day from Bowmanville states that smallpox, which broke out in that town a few days ago in a mild form, has developed into a more virulent form. Captain W. C. King, one of the best shots in Canada, and a member for years of the Canadian Bisley team, and the man chosen this year as adjutant, is one of the latest victims, and the statement is made that his attack is a serious one. The Bowmanville News, in its last issue, says: Since our last issue two cases of smallpox have developed in town. The Board of Health met on Saturday and decided to close the public schools, as pupils from both the infected houses had been attending each school. The household of each place has been quarantined and every effort is being put forth to prevent the disease spreading. One case has been traced to Newcastle and the other to Oshawa. There seems to be a diversity of opinion as to whether it is the proper thing to shut an entire household up in the same house with a case of smallpox, or to remove the patient to a suitable place and have one doctor and a proper nurse isolated with the patient. There have been several cases outside the town, and already three different doctors have been mixed up in attendance on these and the two town cases. The disease seems to be of a very mild type, and the patients, none of them are sick enough to stay in bed.

Late Senator Fulford's Daughter Is A Widow

Special to The Examiner.

Brockville, March 9.—George A. Sherriff, who two months ago married Martha, daughter of the late Senator Fulford, died at St. Vincent De Paul Hospital this morning. He was taken seriously ill a few weeks ago and last week submitted to a surgical operation in the last hope of saving his life. Mr. Sherriff was a son of Mr. Chas. J. Sherriff, of the Sherriff Manufacturing Company, Brockville, and was 30 years of age. He was formerly, for some years, in the service of the New York, Ontario and Western Railway, eventually becoming auditor, but resigned at the beginning of this year and returned to Brockville, establishing, in connection with others, a manufacturing concern.

Home Circle Gathering Promises To Be A Success

Annual Convention Will be Held in Peterborough Next Week—About 400 Delegates are Expected to be Present—Arrangements Completed for Their Reception.

Arrangements are being completed for the annual convention of the Supreme Circle of the Canadian Order of Home Circles, which will be held in the court house here on Tuesday and Wednesday next, March 13 14. Four hundred delegates from all parts of the Dominion are expected to be present for the occasion, and will be guests at the leading hotels. The local Circle, No. 193, are preparing an address of welcome to be read and everything possible is being done to give the visitors a pleasant time during their stay in the city.

The convention promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

The reception committee, which is looking after the local end of the convention is composed of Dr. Morgan, Messrs. Wm. Kemp, Walter Oke, Rd. Manning, Dr. McFall, F. S. Schneider, W. H. Meldrum, W. E. Conway, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Oke, Mrs. Roszel, Mrs. Barraclough and others.

Mayor Best and the City Council have been asked to extend the freedom of the city to the delegates. Among the features of the occasion will be the souvenir pledges which will be prepared and which will bear a picture of the lift lock. Arrangements are also being made for drives around the city to visit the various points of interest.

Arranging For 57th's Visit

The Dufferin Rifles Will Give Them a Good Time.

The Brantford Expositor says:

No official notification has been received from Peterborough of the acceptance of the invitation here. The exclusive information in last night's Expositor will be acted on by the officers, however, and arrangements made for the visit of the Peterborough regiment. A deputation will be sent from Peterborough to meet the local officers and complete arrangements. Until that is done, very little can be undertaken here. The matter of holding a tattoo will not be gone into until after the Peterborough people have been consulted.

Would-Be Horse Thief Escaped

An attempt to dispose of a livery horse to-day was timely nipped in the bud. A gentleman, whose identity is unknown to the local police as yet, rented a horse from a local livery man and drove no farther than the Little Windsor on Brock street, where the brazenly tried to sell it. One of the bystanders, however, knew the animal and the owner, and quickly made the latter acquainted with the fact that his horse was being disposed of.

As the proprietor came in view the would-be horse thief rapidly disappeared and has not been apprehended as his name is unknown.

Methodists To Erect A Church

Campbellford Methodists Will Spend $20,000 on New Structure.

The official representatives of the Campbellford Methodist Church have again started a canvas for subscriptions towards the erection of a new church to cost about $20,000. They are meeting with great success, and many have already subscribed liberally to the fund. The present church has become too small for the congregation and especially for the Sunday school. If the officials succeed in getting enough subscribed the church may be erected this summer. The new church will be built on the site where the old one stands. —Despatch

None of the honours shown the victorious hockey team on their return from Goderich were more highly appreciated than the action of Mrs. McAllister, who, as the team arrived at the Oriental on Wednesday night, presented them with button-hole bouquets of roses.

The Branch Terminals

Belief is General in That Town That the Terminal Point of the Georgian Bay-Peterborough Line Will be Located There—Railway Matters of Interest From the Railway Town—Many Belmont Farmers Will Remove to the West This Spring—Some Business Changes—Prospects for Labour are Good.

(Special Staff Correspondence)

Havelock, March 9th. — The question of the divisional point, and terminus of the new Georgian Bay-Peterborough C. P. R. line, and its diverging point from the main line, are sore points with the people of this town. That the company would for a moment think of making Peterborough the divisional point, at any place, other than their town, is not entertained by the Havelock people, who naturally think their town the best adapted for this purpose, and feel that its location here is practically assured now.

Whether the diverging point will be at Peterborough or at Havelock, is a matter which they profess to care very little about, but should any other town attempt to claim the shops and divisional point, there will be trouble.

The C. P. R. is the pride of the people of this town, and that they should feel a peculiar interest in it, and its concerns, is not to be wondered at, since, without it, Havelock would be a minus quantity. The company is reported to contemplate spending a considerable sum of money in this vicinity this summer. They have already spent considerable — a new machine shop has been erected and the round house enlarged. This summer the company is said to have completed plans to cut ten miles off the line to Smith's Falls. The road will be straightened, and Madoc and Marmora will be placed on the line. Central Ontario Junction will be cut off by the divergence of the line, the work on which will be done this summer, it is said.

Electric Smelting Of Iron Ore Practicable

Dr. Haanel's Success at the Soo Not Over-stated--Success of Process Means Great Future for Canadian Iron Industry.

Ottawa, March 7.—Dr. Haanel, Superintendent of Mines, returned this morning from Sault Ste. Marie, where he carried out experiments which successfully demonstrated that Canadian magnetic iron ores can be successfully smelted by the electric process. Dr. Haanel is suffering from the mental and physical strain consequent upon the prolonged attention which he had to give to the experiments, but it is hoped that he will be thotoughly restored by a short period of rest. He is overwhelmed with invitations to deliver addresses upon electric smelting and with requests from various companies and corporations for detailed information with respect to the process. The Canadian Club of Toronto has invited Dr. Haanel by telegraph to deliver an address on Monday, but whether he will be able to do so is at present in doubt.

Understated The Facts.

The Superintendent of Mines refuses to say anything for publication until he has seen the Minister of Mines. It is believed, however, that his telegram to Hon. Frank Oliver understates rather than overstates the facts. Not only was pig iron of the purest quality being produced in the electric furnace at Sault Ste. Marie from magnetite, but a very fine quality of nickel pig was obtained from roasted pkyrrotite. For this, it is believed, there will be a great demand in Europe. As to the cost of producing pig iron the exact data is not yet forthcoming. The cost per horse power of electric energy in this locality has been estimated at $6; in Sault Ste. Marie the cost was taken at about $9 or $10 per horse power. Accepting this figure, pig iron could be manufactured by the electric process for $3 less per ton than in the blast furnace. The great outstanding fact, however, is that ores which by reason of a large sulphur content could not be handled in the ordinary blast furnace and were literally valueless can now be treated by electricity, the sulphur and phosphorous eliminated and a splendid grade of iron turned out.

Will Electrify Plants.

The Algoma Steel Company are said to be making arrangements to purchase the electrical plant erected by the Government. It is believed the company will electrify their iron and steel plants, and as soon as possible begin the manufacture of pig iron, nickel pig and steel by electric process.

Canada has gained a tremendous scientific achievement and attracted the attention of the world by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars. In comparison with the result obtained, the expenditure, had it been on a much greater scale, would have been insignificant. As it is, there will be a balance on hand.

The Settlers Condemn The Hounding Of Deer

A bill in the Legislature to prevent the hounding of deer may be regarded as the settlers' retort against the general tendency to frame game laws in the interest of sports from the cities. The settlers have naturally regarded the game as their own, and have been inclined to grumble at restraints that preserve the deer for the men from the cities. The early open season has been designed for those who shrink from the hardships of the advancing winter, and the short season is specially the privilege of the city man. The situation is complicated by the generosity of the city sport in hiring the settler for a guide, paying a large board bill without complaint, and buying two deer at a fancy price to attach to his coupons. But the settler feels that he is not getting the full benefits of his position, and consequently favours the bill to prevent hounding.

Without the aid of hounds the average city sport would spend many seasons in the woods before he would kill a deer. If he can watch on the runway and shoot the hunted deer during a frightened pause he is doing well indeed. But still-hunting is an art that is acquired only by years of experience in the bush. It requires a training of the eye that cannot be retained in city life. An experienced woodsman can tell the novice by his noise long before he comes in sight. To call his efforts "still-hunting" would be a joke. His eagerness to shoot at every moving object makes him much more dangerous to other hunters than to the deer that are warned of his approach. The bill to abolish hounding will be sustained by all humane considerations. It will also give the settlers an advantage that few would like to deprive them of. The proposed change is in the direction of all recent changes, as it aims at greater restrictions in preserving the big game of the province.—Globe.

The Provincial Commander At Lodge Meeting

Peterborough Tent No. 69 K. O. T. M. Addressed Last Night by Mr. S. W. Trustler, Head of the Order in Ontario—An Enjoyable Evening Was Spent by Local Maccabees—Other Prominent Members of the Order Were Present and Gave Addresses.

DELIGHTFUL BANQUET AT W. McCALLUM'S

At the close of the regular review of Peterborough Tent No. 69, K.O. T.M., last night, in the S. O. E. Hall, a meeting of the Lady Maccabees and Sir Knights was held, at which a very interesting programme was given.

Sir Knight C. A. Yule, Colborne, District Deputy, occupied the chair, in his usual able manner.

After a few opening remarks, he called on Miss Maud Titterson for a recitation, which was well received, and she had to respond to an encore. This was followed by an instrumental on the piano by Miss Jennie Titterson.

The chairman then called on Mr. S. W. Trustler, Camlachie, Provincial Commander, to address the meeting. Sir Knight Trustler on rising, ing received a great reception.

After a few remarks on the pleasure it gave him to meet the Sir Knights and ladies of Peterborough Tent, Sir Knight Trustler gave an excellent address on the merits of the order of Knights of the Maccabees of the World, which was listened to with great interest.

This was followed by a solo by Miss Maud Titterson.

Short addresses were delivered by Sir Knights T. E. Pratt, John Titterson, R. Morrison, Dr. J. A. Morgan; and Ladies, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Titterson.

The next on the programme was a solo by Miss Maud Titterson.

A vote of thanks was then given to Sir Knight Trustler for his able address, and also to the Misses Titterson for their part in the programme.

The meeting was brought to a close by all singing "God Save the King," after which all adjourned to McCallum's restaurant, where an excellent oyster supper had been prepared by Mine Host McCallum.

After this had been disposed of the toast list was taken up, Commander Sir Knight Titterson acting as toastmaster.

"Our King" was heartily drunk, all joining in singing "God Save the King."

"The Ladies" was responded to by Sir Knights S. W. Trustler and C. A. Yule by excellent speeches.

Short speeches were then delivered by Ladies Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Morrison, and Sir Knights J. J. Cocks, C. Blewitt, F. A. Sisson, D. Minnecola, W. Mitchell, Geo. Williamson, O. S. Matchett, G. Smith, J. Cruickshanks, T. E. Pratt, H. Miller, A. Fletcher, Robert Morrison, J. Symons and S. W. Lowry.

The toast, "Mine Host McCallum" was responded to by all joining in singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. McCallum responded by a short speech.

Under the able local officers it is expected ere long that Peterborough Tent, K.O.T.M., will rank as teh banner Tent of the Province.

Peterborough Hive is also in excellent condition.

"Pete's" Inquiry Is Answered

"Chicago" Says He Can Start on $500, All Right.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The following is clipped from your paper:—

Dear Sir, — I have read with interest the various letters in your valuable paper on the $16-a-week question, but what I would like to know is: Can a man furnish a house, say, three bedrooms, parlour, dining room, kitchen and halls, comfortable, for $500—no taking into consideration a piano? Kindly express your opinion, and oblige, yours truly,

PETE.

I am sure it must be from the "gifted pen" of my "old college chum" "Pete" Corkery. Please don't say that I am wrong. Tell "Pete" that by all means he can furnish a house on less than $500.00. Of course he will not wade knee-deep in Turkish rugs and when he is through furnishing the house with the $500 advise him not to live too riotously on the balance left over. Whatever you do, encourage him. Why not try the plan $1.00 down and $1.00 per month.

There is another young (?) man in Peterborough, who should be encouraged. "I'll mention no names" but he is prominently connected with a Simcoe street manufacturing institution.

Yours,

CHICAGO.

Charged With Stealing $20

Dennis McGrath Appears in the Police Court on a Serious Charge.

Robert Eastwood and Samuel Newhall were fined the customary $2 and costs on the charge of being drunk and disorderly, to be paid in 10 days, and in default of payment 10 days in jail.

They had an altercation at a local hotel a short time ago, in which both men mixed it up pretty furiously. Both pleaded guilty to the charge. In Eastwood's case the assessment amounted to $5.40, and in Newhall's, $4.60.

Dennis McGrath pleaded not guilty when accused of stealing $20 from Patrick Murphy. The prisoner admitted taking the money from Murphy, but said he had returned it to him.

"Did you take the money with the intention of stealing it?" asked His Worship.

"No, I didn't calculate to steal it," replied McGrath. "I thought it was a charity to keep the money for the man. I found him drunk on the street."

"There's a good deal of this emptying drunken men's pockets," said the Magistrate.

The accused elected to be tried summarily, and, as the prosecution were not ready to proceed with the case, he was remanded until next Tuesday.

You have No Reason for Not Using

Zutoo

Some people think that all headache cures are alike—that they all undermine the health, even if not perceived at the time of taking them.

Well, we'll admit that the drug cures do this, but that is no reason why you should not take Zutoo.

Zutoo is a harmless vegetable remedy. One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda that our grandmothers used to take to settle the stomach, when they had sick headache. And there is nothing better.

The principal ingredient—the one that stops the headache, is a vegetable ingredient, imported for us from Japan. It wont hurt you any more than will the soda.

There is absolutely no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

If you suffer from headache there is every reason why you should.

Taken in time, two tablets will ward off a headache. Taken later, they will stop it in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling good every time.

If you are using a drug remedy, why not discard it?

Zutoo will cure just as quickly and will save you the penalty, that all must sometime pay, who take the drugs which these cures contain.

If you will give Zutoo one trial, you will never take any other headache remedy again.

Sunday School Workers

HELD TWO PROFITABLE AND Well Attended Sessions

Institute Met Yesterday in the Y. M. C. A.—Messrs. E. A. Hardy, B.A., and Thomas Yellowlees, of the S. S. Association, Were the Special Speakers—General Discussion on Various Topics Was of Great Benefit to Those Present.

The Sunday School Institute held two very interesting and profitable sessions in the Y.M.C.A. Hall yesterday. Both were well attended by the Sunday School workers of the city and could not fail to be of benefit to all present as discussion on some of the topics was of a general nature. The speakers were Mr. E. A. Hardy, B. A., Toronto, the Teacher Training Secretary of the Ontario Sunday School Association, and Mr. Thomas Yellowlees, of Toronto, Extension Secretary of the Association. Both have a wide, practical knowledge of Sunday School matters and their addresses at both afternoon and evening sessions were appreciated by the audience to whom the suggestions given were of great value.

Afternoon Session.

The various Sunday Schools of the city were well represented at the afternoon session, about forty teachers being present. Rev. J. G. Potter acted as chairman and the meeting opened with devotional exercises by Rev. J. G. Lewis.

Mr. Thomas Yellowlees was the first speaker, his subject being "The Home Department." He briefly explained the aim of the department which the said was to bring the Bible more into the home life. It afforded an opportunity for those who could not come to Sunday School to become acquainted with the lesson. The opportunity offered to do good in this way was a glorious one, and society might be revolutionized by active work.

Those present were invited to participate in discussing various topics in connection with the home department and responded to the invitation in a satisfactory manner, the resulting discussion being most profitable to all concerned. Among the questions considered were the following: "For what class of people is the Home Department intended?" "How should the Home Department officers and visitors be selected?" "What are the duties of a Home Department Superintendent?" "What can the pastor do for the Home Department?" "Is the Home Department worth the time, thought and energy necessary to organize and operate it?"

Mr. E. A. Hardy followed with an address on the "Preparation of the Lesson," which was full of valuable suggestions which if carried out would greatly benefit the Sunday School.

Another subject that created much helpful discussion amongst the audience was the address on "House to House Visitation," conducted by Mr. Yellowlees. The meeting closed with the Doxology.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening meeting was very interesting, and Mr. Yellowlees and Mr. Hardy gave two very interesting and helpful discourses. Mr. Yellowlees, the first speaker, whose subject was "The Forward Movement," referred to the great work the association was doing in aid of the Sunday school work. He said there was still room, however, for much improvement. The cleverest and greatest men and women in the country are those engaged in Sunday school work, men and women who will press forward for the very best the world offers. The temperance cause is one that deserves greater attention than it receives, and, in Mr. Yellowlees' opinion, every Sunday school should have a pledge. He himself took the pledge many years ago, and abstinence from liquor, he said, has saved him from many a snare and pitfall in life. A cradle roll is also another thing that has proven very beneficial wherever used. As soon as a child is born its name is placed upon this roll, and as it grown older has the comforting knowledge that the church is taking an interest in his or her spiritual welfare. The object for which the Sunday school is labouring is to bring the children to Christ. The speaker spoke at some length on the benefit of a house to house visitation. This method in aid of Sunday school work has been adopted and carried on successfully all through the Province and its beneficial results are very perceptible. Thousands of people, the speaker said, are lost for the want of a helping word. By a visitation of the different houses greater interest could be aroused in Sunday school work. Such a plan of campaign would be a great blessing, Mr. Yellowlees stated, for a city like Peterborough, and he urged that the matter be given most serious consideration. The association was under a heavy expense, he added, and while he did not wish to give the impression that he was begging, he and his brother worker, Mr. Hardy, having come here of their own accord for the furtherance of the great work, at the same time he stated that any aid would be gratefully received and much appreciated.

Rev. Mr. Potter, who occupied the chair, spoke in favour of the house to house visitation method, and said that he was sure all present had been greatly helped by, and were grateful for, Mr. Yellowlees' address. He said that he did not think the movement for house to house visitation was ready to be carried out this year.

Col. F. B. Edwards was of a different opinion, however, and a motion made by him as to whether or not those present were in favour of having the visitation carried on in the near future, resulted in a show of hands in favour of the proposed movement being commenced early.

Report Presented.

Mr. A. J. Johnston, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Sunday School Association, presented his reports for the past year.

The following officers were elected for 1906:

President, Mr. R. Lees.

First Vice-President, Col. E. B. Edwards.

Second Vice-President, Mr. M. W. Matchett.

Secretary, Mr. G. G. Pratley.

Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. A. J. Johnston.

Superintendent of Primary Department, Miss Agnes Williamson.

Executive Committee—Messrs. Morrison, Cunningham, Rev. J. G. Lewis, D. Spence, D. Hughes Charles, T. H. Hooper, M. W. Matchett, Anderson, R. J. Kidd, G. W. Powell, S. Simpson, W. Madill, Sheriff Hall, Miss M. Mann, Col. E. B. Edwards, Harry Stock and R. C. Braund.

Teacher Training.

Mr. Hardy spoke very interestingly on teacher training, after the election of officers had taken place. The three prominent points in connection with this important work are: What it is, what it is for, and, will it work? During his able argument in favour of the teacher training courses he satisfactorily proved that it was most desirable that every Sunday school teacher should take a teacher training course. The Bible is the only text book for the teacher. Other aids were all right to be used by the teacher for home study, but the Bible was the only text that should be used on Sunday. Mr. Hardy gave a description of some of the course of study for teachers. The Sunday school, he said, is among the greatest institutions of the world. The very choicest people are engaged in its work and exert a most beneficial influence upon the young. Great progress is being made in Sunday school work, but the results are very much impaired by inefficiency on the part of the instructors. The speaker, to bear out the truth of this latter remark, cited several examples that had come under his personal supervision. The teachers don't really, in most cases, lack ability, but they have not mastered the art of imparting their knowledge to their pupils. Teaching is one of the fine arts. It is infinitely more important to have an adequate teacher in a Sunday school than in a day school, because, in the first case, the instruction is for the improvement of the mind, in the latter for the development of the soul. The teacher training course is obtaining a hold all over the Province, and the speaker strongly recommended its adoption in Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Potter complimented Mr. Hardy on his address, and seconded him in the recognition of the value of teacher training.

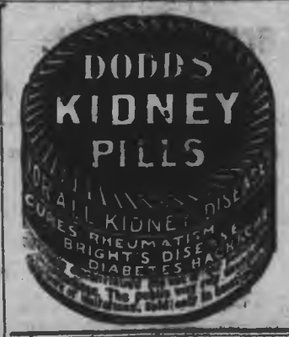
WEDDING BELLS

MASSON—O'CONNOR

St. Mary's church, on March 6th, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, the contracting parties being Mr. Edward Masson, son of Mr. John Masson, and Miss Margaret O'Connor, daughter of Mr. Thos. O'Connor, all of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Casey, none but the immediate friends being present. The bride, who looked very pretty in a navy blue gown, and carried a prayer book and beads, was attended by her sister, Miss Minnie, who looked smart and pretty in a navy blue suit, with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by his nephew, Master Jas. Hutton, who performed the duties like a veteran.

After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs Frank Hutton, Caroline street, where about 30 of their friends had assembled to give them a little surprise, Mrs. Hutton being a sister of the groom. A pleasant evening was spent with music and games, after which a sumptuous supper was served, to which all did ample justice. After wishing the young couple God speed on their journey through life all dispersed to their homes, well pleased with the pleasures the evening had afforded. The presents to the bride was a handsome and useful, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. They will reside in Lindsay.



Havelock Cinched Branch Terminals

The work will require a large number of men, and they are already here, waiting to start work, as soon as spring opens. This work will entail the expenditure of a large sum of money, from the expenditure of which Havelock will derive considerable benefit.

At the present time well on to 300 men are on the pay roll of the company here. There are 43 train crews, comprising a total of 215 men, and, in addition to this number there are 60 on the mechanical staff, car-repairers, locomotive fitters, boiler-makers, etc. Then the station and operating staff brings the number up to the 300 mark.

General Conditions.

The past winter has been a hard one for labouring men in Havelock, and the opening of spring will be warmly welcomed by this class. The lack of snow has prevented farmers from taking out timber, and, as a consequence, many men who in other years have found employment at this work have been idle.

The prospects for the coming season, however, are reported by men who are in touch with such matters, to be very bright. The Examiner was informed that there would be a very large amount of building done this season, and in fact, at the present time a number of houses are seen in the course of construction — carpenters were working outdoors—bareheaded—and construction work was in full swing.

Judging by the number of auction sale bills seen in the hotel sitting-room the farmers of this vicinity are not particularly satisfied with their lot. This spring will see the largest number of farmers' sales in years, and the rather peculiar fact is noted that invariably the reason assigned for the sale is that the one selling out is "going to the West."

Business Changes.

It appears, too, that those selling out and leaving for the West are not confined to farmers. A number of business changes have taken place here recently, and in the majority of cases the late proprietors are going to the West, too. One of these changes is that of Mr. H. T. Andrews, general store, who, on the 1st of March, transferred his general stock and good will to Mr. J. W. Bryans, town clerk, who will in future conduct the business, in addition to his many other business enterprises. Miss M. Johnston will have charge of the store and will be assisted by Mr. Bryans' daughter and son. With his wide acquaintance and his business ability, Mr. Bryans is certain to make a success of the business.

Mr. Bryans is the Havelock manager for Swift & Co., and has charge of their large ice-house here. It has just been stacked with ice for the coming season, 6,000 tons being here stored, a considerable increase over that of 1905, the increase made necessary by the larger number of cars supplied with ice here. The present number is about 50 cars a day.

A new jewellery store is to be opened in Havelock in a few weeks. Mr. Jas. Fowler, of Peterborough, will come here and open a business for which there is a good field. He also has taken the store premises of a man who expects to go to the West or to Cobalt.

Electric Lighting.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Havelock Electric Light Company will be held on the 15th of this month, and in all probability the meeting will be an interesting one. The president and general manager of the company is Dr. J. H. Holdcroft, and the secretary Mr. John Rose, the other directors being Messrs. George Young, W. Fairman and W. Webb. There are 63 shareholders in the company, and it is understood that an effort will be made by the majority of the shareholders, who, however, are holders of a minority of the stock, to issue more stock. The authorized capital is $20,000, but it is understood that only about $12,000 of this has been issued. There is a debt of about $11,000 on the property, which is an exceedingly valuable one and yields a good net revenue each year, about $2,500 being the profit for 1905, it is said. Some of the shareholders, so report goes, and, it happens, those who hold the majority of the stock, want to use the profits to reduce the indebtedness, while the remaining shareholders want the balance of the stock issued and dividends paid out of profits. The prospects for the company are said to be very bright. The profits at the present time are sufficient to pay good dividends while the number of persons using light is steadily on the increase, and the smaller shareholders, with big dividends in sight, want a slice of the unissued stock.

Choral Society At Springville

Held Very Successful Concert There on Tuesday Night.

Springville, March 8th.—(Special)—The concert under the auspices of the Springville Choral Society, held in the village on Wednesday night, was one of the most successful ever held here. The hall was well filled with an appreciative audience. Mr. Albert Sanderson occupied the chair in his usual efficient manner. The following was the programme rendered:

Vocal solo... ... ...Miss Kidd

Duet, ...Mrs. Miller, Miss Kidd
Recitation... ... ...Miss Howden
Chorus, "Good Night"... ... ...

Miss Miller's violin solos were very much enjoyed, and she was forced to respond. The solos of Miss Kidd were also favourites of the programme and were very much appreciated. Miss Howden's readings were also well received. Great praise is due Mrs. Miller, conductor of the Choral Society, who was instrumental in arranging the programme. She early proved her ability as a conductor and entertainer, and the class speak very highly of her.

Mr. G. F. Clarke, who has lately become a benedict was honoured on Tuesday night by a midnight serenade. Tin horns and pans, formed the band and a delightful evening was the outcome.

Miss Clark of Peterborough, is visiting her son here.

Mr. Jonathan Smith left the village this week for Peterborough where he has retired. He will reside on Bolivar street.

Nervous Diseases No Longer a Fad

ALL CLASSES NOW SUFFER FROM EXHAUSTED NERVES—SPLENDID RESULTS OBTAINED FROM THE USE OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

"The breakdown of the nervous system is no mere society ogre from which it is fashionable to suffer, but is becoming a national calamity which bids fair to rob our descendants of many of those qualities which have done so much to make this empire what it is," writes Dr. Guthrie Rankin, an eminent London physician.

The keen competition of life is now felt in all grades of society, and as the result prostration, paralysis and insanity are becoming more and more common as the natural outcome of exhausted nerves.

Sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, headache and general lack of energy and ambition are among the early indications of nervous troubles, and with women the result is not infrequently derangements and irregularities of the feminine organism.

If a committee of experts on diseases of the nerves were to prescribe for you they would give you just such a formula as that of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for this medicine is composed of the most powerful nerve restoratives known to medical science.

This is no idle boast, as we shall be pleased to prove to you, if you will have your physician call at these offices and examine the formula.

What we consider as better proof of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do for you is to be found in the letters of recommendation published from time to time in Dr. Chase's Almanac and in the newspapers of this country.

Naturally and gradually this great food cure forms new, rich blood, the substance from which the brain creates new nerve force. This is the only means by which diseases of the nerves can be actually cured. Stimulants and narcotics give temporary relief, but with great expense to the nervous system. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food slowly but certainly revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and by filling the body with vitality overcomes weakness, sickness and disease.

A favourite means of proving this is by noting your increase in weight while using this medicine. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1906.

WHEN CREDIT IS DUE.

Every day accumulates evidence of the wisdom of the course of the late Ross Government in coming to the aid of the languishing, dormant industries of the "Soo" by guaranteeing a loan of two million dollars. Mr. Whitney and the Opposition said that the money might as well be thrown into the lake. The Government, with faith in the resources of the Province tributary to these enterprises, contended that there was no risk that the loan, which would put the industries on their feet, would be repaid promptly, and that the Province would not lose a cent. This has all come true—the Province has not lost a cent, nor will it, for the loan is practically repaid out of earnings of the revived industries. Not only that, but the money which "might as well have been thrown into the lake" has worked a miracle of manufacturing activity. A despatch to the Mail and Empire, which denounced the aid to the "Soo" industries with a veritable madness of intensity, states that Mr. C. D. Warren, president of the reorganized "Soo" industries, received word last night that the steel works there had yesterday surpassed all records in the history of steel-making in Canada. Eight hundred and two tons were rolled in one day under their contract with the C.P.R. The normal capacity of the works was supposed to be about 500 to 600 tons per day, but has been greatly increased. Eight hundred and two tons represents about 2,500 rails. The credit of this rests primarily and chiefly with the Liberal Government of Ontario. But for its prompt and timely help the "Soo" would be dead and we should not now have millions of capital giving life to an immense industry and employment to thousands of hands, and not have Ontario the pioneer steel-rail producing Province of the Dominion. The people saw fit in a moment of pique to overthrow the Ross Government, but in the conditions cited the country has a great deal to thank the late Government for. The party represented by the present Government opposed these things and cannot take any credit for the great industrial results reached.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Globe states that the demand for normal schools is active—normal, so to speak.

The ways of the diplomatic politician are hard. Now, Premier Roblin of Manitoba, is accused by the Orange element represented by the Orange organ, with truckling to the Roman Catholics. Whatever truth or otherwise there may be in this charge it shows that the course of the Roblin Government is being closely watched.

Political stumpers will perhaps sooner learn to be moderate in their statements by taking to heart the lesson given to Mr. W. H. Bennet, M.P., who has been mulcted in $100 damages and costs for slander of a Midland livery man, Mr. W. H. Wilson. Mr. Bennet is a lawyer, and doubtless more than one witness who has suffered from the abuse privileged lawyers are inclined to practice in their attitude to witnesses in the box, will be rather pleased, than otherwise, to note that one lawyer has been taught that there is a limit to what may be safely said in criticism of decent people.

The Minister of Education is inclined, to use the language of the street, to "go it blind." He told a press interviewer that he intended to make institutions for the blind, "schools, not prisons." There is nothing in the present conditions to warrant the insinuations of the Minister that children at the Institute for the Blind, are kept in cells. The Institution for the Blind at Brantford is a school, pure and simple, and the pupils are, and always have been, well treated in every way. Hon. Dr. Pyne has subjected himself to the suspicion that he is willing to stretch a point to discredit his predecessors and to "glorify himself.

"Behind the Speaker," in the Globe, has the following: "Hon. G. W. Ross makes an excellent leader of the Opposition, alert, keen, critical and, at the same time, good natured. The dreary duty of criticising the estimates, so necessary at the outset of what promises to be an era of extravagance, is faithfully performed. The ex-Premier shows in this a versatility that was scarcely expected after years of attention to the larger problems of public affairs. The strength of an Opposition does not lie in numbers, as anyone will discover who counts the forces to the left of the Speaker. But in that compact organization, there is the power that holds the majority to the straight path."

The decay of Great Britain is a rather deliberate process. Croakers have been prophesying the commercial decadence of Great Britain for years and years, yet the tough old kingdom refuses to decay. The total British imports for February were £47,628,835, an increase of £4,683,698 over February, 1905. The exports were 28,781,123, an increase of £3,512,080 over February, 1905. This is not a bad showing for a moribund kingdom. But Britain is renewing her youth. She is taking a leaf out of the book of the colonies, and has decided to give members of Parliament an indemnity of $1500. After the members taste this little tid-bit they may rise to the level of the Ottawa legislators by adding another thousand.

Bell Business Has Gone Ahead

Great Growth in Peterborough During the Past Two Years.

It is interesting to note the effect which the granting of a second telephone franchise in Peterborough has had upon the business of the Bell Telephone Company in this city.

The Peterborough council granted the Canadian Machine Telephone Company a franchise in May, 1904. At that time there were 520 Bell subscribers in Peterborough. Although the rates of the latter company have not been lowered it has, in less than two years, increased the number of its subscribers nearly 35 per cent., or to over 700. During the same period the long distance revenue of the Bell Company at Peterborough has increased nearly 25 per cent.

In addition to the development within the city limits, the Bell Company has greatly extended its rural party line service. Many outlying points have been thus connected with the Bell's Peterborough exchange, and the large farming community tributary to the city given the advantage of both exchange and long distance connection. Nearby points, which have been connected in this way with Peterborough are Indian River, Conroy's Corners, Best's Station, Springville, Ida and Fraserville.

Of course there has been little real competition in Peterborough, but these results in spite of prospective competition, are interesting. Then too, by thus refusing the Bell Company an exclusive franchise Peterborough is losing annually the $400 and five free telephones offered by the Bell Company.

Queen Alexandra Circle Meeting

Enjoyable Evening Was Spent Last Night.

A very pleasant event took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, Brock street, it being the regular meeting of Queen Alexandria Circle, Companions of the Forest, A.O.F. About twenty-five persons were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

High Chief Companion, Mrs. A. H. Riggs, of Toronto, who was present, occupied the chair, and made some very interesting remarks concerning the work of the Companions of the Forest. One person was initiated and three propositions for membership were received. After the business of the evening was concluded, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton tendered a delightful banquet to Mrs. Riggs and the members of Queen Alexandria Circle. The well filled table was decorated with lillies and ferns and a beautiful Hardanger centre piece constituted part of the decorations. After the banquet speeches were delivered and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the host and hostess.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '09, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead, and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and to-day my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Ormond & Walsh, Special Agents.

Carnegie Library Is Again Proposed

A Citizen, and One Associated With Present Library, is Convinced That a Free Library Should be Established Here—Believes That Carnegie's Offer of a Grant Should be Taken Up—Time Has Come When the Library Should be Free to the Citizens.

A prominent citizen to-day spoke to the Examiner in reference to the establishment of a free library in Peterborough. He is associated with and has been a prominent member, an officer, in fact, of the present Library Board, and while he believes that the present Board is doing the best it can with the means at its disposal, he is convinced that the time has come when this city should have a new library, and furthermore he is of the opinion that it should be a free library.

He is inclined to favour accepting a grant from John Carnegie, if one can be secured, for the purposes of erecting and equipping a free library.

This gentleman confessed that when the question of applying for a grant to Mr. Carnegie was discussed some time ago, he was not favourable to the proposal, but has since come to see the matter in another light, and is convinced that it would be a wise act to secure the assistance from the Steel King.

Peterborough has reached a stage now, he thinks, when it should have a free library, and while the acceptance of the Carnegie money would mean that the city would have to spend some money, the law provides that the council can levy one-half a mill on the dollar for the support of the library, and in this way with the present revenue, the cost of maintenance could be met easily.

The library already has over 10,000 books, a very respectable number for a city of this size, and if they were housed in a better building, and the privileges made free, the library would become much more popular.

The discussion on the question of the free library was brought about by the mention of the fact that the sixth annual meeting of the Ontario Library Association will be held in the Canadian Institute, 198 College Street, Toronto, Easter Monday and Tuesday, April 16th and 17th. The chief feature of the programme is a study of the new library buildings of Ontario and United States, illustrated by lantern views of exterior and interior of the buildings and floor plans. For library boards contemplating building this will be most helpful. The papers will be: "The One-Room Library and Its Possibilities," by Mrs. F. Edith Jones, Newmarket; "Chess, Checkers and Smoking Room," by D. Forsyth, Berlin; "Treatment of Periodical and Pamphlet Literature," by Miss A. G. Rowsome, O. A. C., Guelph; "The Public Library and the School," by O. J. Stevenson, St. Thomas. The Association is growing in usefulness and serves as a valuable agency in uniting the library workers of the Province. Programmes can be had on application to the Secretary, E. A. Hardy, 65 Czar street, Toronto.

Shrapnel Shell Makes Claret Jug

A curiosity which is exciting no little interest is on view in the window of Mr. Alex. Gibson's jewellery store. It is in the form of a claret jug devised from a nine-inch shrapnel shell used in the battle of Tamasi in the Egyptian Campaign. It was designed by the owner, Mr. Lambert Lynn, Civil Engineer, at the present time on a survey party and was, during the campaign in Egypt, a Royal Engineer.

The handle is composed of immaculate ivory with beautiful silver mounts. The Egyptian Star is sunk in the lid of sterling silver, and the outside of the jug is embossed in gold with the different coats of arms of the regiment. A silver Egyptian medal for active service, stands on the top of the handle.

The original shell is burnished and and altogether the shell presents a very attractive appearance.

Committee May Make Some Easier Conditions

Than a Favourable Vote of Two-thirds of the Qualifed Ratepayers on the By-law to Purchase the Sugar Company Property—The Private Bill of the City in the Legislature--Matter Will be Up On Tuesday.

The citizens are deeply interested in the fate of Peterborough's Private Bill in the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature on Tuesday to which day its consideration was postponed from last Tuesday, and the prospects are that there will be a number of citizens present to watch the progress of the bill. The greatest interest is being taken in the clause in reference to acquiring the Sugar Company property. It is recognized that if the committee insists upon the provision of the act on bonusing being carried out—that of obtaining two-thirds of the qualified ratepayers in support of the proposal, it is recognized that it means the defeat of the by-law, because with a city the size of Peterborough it is utterly impossible to secure such a vote as this. When it is remembered that at the last municipal election, on the license reduction question, a question which aroused great interest only 45 per cent. of the electors voted, and on the money bylaw to raise money to build the fire hall, the total vote, both for and against the bylaw, was 52 per cent. of the qualified ratepayers, it will be seen how impossible it is to secure a favourable vote of two-thirds of the ratepayers on this or any money bylaw.

It is hoped, however, that the Committee will make some lighter conditions than those in the present act.

The Macklin-Farrell Pew Ejection Case

The Defendant Claims He Was Insulted--Plaintiff Even Went the Length of Calling Him a Methodist--An Interesting, Legal Tangle.

In the Macklin-Farrell ejection case, reference to which was made in these columns a few days ago, and the particulars of which are familiar to the readers of this paper, a special to the Toronto Globe, in which the case is reported, and the defendant's side is given says:

Mr. Farrell is reported to have pleaded that he acted with propriety and within his rights as churchwarden, having warned Mrs. Macklin before she entered the church that the pew had been re-rented, and moreover, that she had offered another seat, only to be confronted with insulting language even to the extent of being called a Methodist.

The parties had several witnesses before the court, including the Rector, Rev. Mr. Dennis. After hearing the evidence judgment was reserved.

Chief Roszel Is Truant Officer

A "Citizen" Writes Letter on This Subject.

Peterborough,
March 8, 1906.

Editor Post Card Column:

As there has been considerable talk about town as to who is Truant Officer would you permit me to say that Chief Roszel is our present Truant Officer, and that his term of office never runs out and that he has been doing his duty faithfully and fearlessly. As his business is private permit me to say that is the reason a great many people do not know his affairs. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, would you be so kind to state in your columns if the above is not the facts in order to quiet some of the people in the dark.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

New Justices Are Appointed

Clerk of the Peace for Peterboro' County Receives List

Mr. R. E. Wood, Clerk of the Peace, has received to-day from the Attorney-General a list of the Justices of the Peace appointed for the County of Peterborough. There are some few changes in the list from those who held office under the late Ontario Government, but the changes are not numerous.

Take A Lesson From Peterboro'

A subscriber to the Lindsay Watchman-Warder writes: What's the matter with Lindsay? We all know that power costs 23 per cent. per horse-power more in our little town than in Peterborough. True, we have a Board of Trade, but what have they done to improve the financial standing of the people? This is the line of talk indulged in, by many of the groups you see along Kent street. I was in Downeyville last week and I saw several loads of grain pass through the village. Did they go to Lindsay? No. All went to Omemee. Can Lindsay live on the bunch of retired farmers we have in our midst and from the agricultural community which surrounds it? Wake up and take a leaf from our new councillor's books, progress and improvement, also cheap power, which is available.

Mr. W. Bunten returned last night from Cobalt, where he went on Monday in charge of the party of capitalists who went there to look at the Douglas-Lacy silver mine, the Silver Leaf. About 20 gentlemen were in the party and they were delighted with what they saw at Cobalt, and the Silver Leaf mine.

Will Speak At St. Patrick's Society Banquet

A High Tribute to Worth of Well Known Local Barrister.

A flattering recognition of the ability of Mr. D. O'Connell, the eloquent Peterborough barrister, has been paid him by the St. Patrick's Society of Montreal, a city which is the metropolis of Canada, and one of the leading literary centres of the Dominion, in selecting that gentleman to reply to the toast of Ireland, which will be proposed by Mr. Geo. Molnerney, K.C., a clever barrister of St. John's, N.B., at the annual banquet of the society on the 17th of March next, commemorating its 50th anniversary. The occasion is always graced by the elite of Canada's Irish literary men and orators, and Mr. O'Connell is very highly honoured in being chosen to respond to the leading toast of this patriotic assembly, the most noteworthy held in honour of Ireland's national day, the 17th of March. Wit and eloquence always mark the gathering, and many of the speeches delivered are veritable gems, expressed with the inimitable grace and humour of the sons of the Emerald Isle.

Not only is Mr. O'Connell honoured by being asked to speak at this most important function, but Peterborough as well may feel proud that one of her citizens is so highly favoured.

The event is invariably a very brilliant one, and Canada's most representative Irishmen assemble each year aground the festive board on these occasions. The celebration will be held at Windsor Hall, Montreal, and special efforts are being made to have this gathering the most memorable in the history of the society.

Conspicuous among the invited guests are Hon. Sir Alexander Lacoste, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Quebec; Sir Melville Tait, of the Superior Court, Montreal.

The toast to Ireland is invariably proposed and responded to by distinguished and gifted gentlemen. Other toasts, prominent among which are the "King," also are honoured, and clever speech-making, that has characterized the assemblies, is a feature of the meetings of St. Patrick's Society.

The last edition of the Utica Saturday Globe contains a splendid cut of Mr. O'Connell, and refers to him as a "widely known and a brilliant young lawyer and speaker." The same paper also contains the following complimentary despatch from Ottawa:

Ottawa, March 8.—Daniel O'Connell, barrister of Peterborough, is to be the principal speaker at the St. Patrick's Society banquet in Montreal on St. Patrick's Day. He is to respond to the toast "Ireland," and those who have had an opportunity to hear this brilliant young lawyer speak in public, are looking forward to a great treat.

Mr. O'Connell was born in the Cape of Good Hope, Africa. He studied in Toronto University from which he graduated in arts. Afterwards he took up law and is a member of the Bar of Ontario.

Fine Team Bought By G. W. Green

One of the best matched team of horses that ever came out of Ennismore was purchased by Mr. G. Walter Green, of the Ontario Foundry and Pump Works, a few days ago. They are a well matched pair of bays, rising 4 and 5 years, and weigh 2,200 pounds. The team was bought from Mr. Edward Corkery, who prized both horses so highly that it took a good round sum to induce him to part with them.

Amended Application to Parliament

Woman Who Won't Talk.

Three Rivers, March 9.—Mrs. Sclater yesterday resolutely refused to say a word. Before she could be examined, counsel for McCraw, who is on trial for the murder of her husband, demanded to know whether she believed in God, to see whether she was fit for a witness. She simply and repeatedly declined to answer, and was promptly sent down by Judge Cannon for contempt of court, to stay in jail until she should become more communicative. Mrs. Skeene was then put in the box, and to Mr. Guerin told in detail the story of the fatal night.

Forged Mining Certificates.

London, March 9.—Harry Samuel Simons and Franklin Everhart, Americans, were arrested here yesterday and were each remanded in $10,000 bail on charges of conspiracy and obtaining large sums of money by fraud. The prisoners who are described as stock and share brokers, are alleged to have issued forged shares and certificates in connection with Alaska, Oklahoma, Cripple Creek and Manitoba mining companies.

Auto Kills Marchioness.

Rome, March 9.—The Marchioness of Corsini, formerly Princess Harberini, was killed last night by the overturning of an automobile, in while she was riding with her husband, who is King Victor Emmanuel's master of horse. The marchioness, who was 63 years of age, was driving the automobile, her husband, aged 69 years, sitting beside her. The maquis and the chauffeur escaped without a scratch.

The Wornout Nerves, The Weak Heart, The Tired Brain, The Wasted Strength.

What a multitude of women there are who feel that these words exactly suit their case. From early morn until late at night they have been on the go, year in and year out, attending to the daily household duties, looking after the wants of her children and spending the rest of her time attending to social and church work. Is it any wonder then that sooner or later there comes a general collapse? The action of the heart becomes weak and palpitating, the nerves become unstrung, the brain feels in a whirl half the time and the usual forces of vitality is lacking.

It is at this time a woman should look after herself. If she does not, serious female disorders may set in and often cause weary months and years of helplessness and miserable suffering. What she wants is something to build up her system. For this purpose there is nothing to equal

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

I bought two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after taking them I found that my trouble had all passed away. I am now strong and healthy again."

Parliament Of Canada Opens In The Capital

Ceremony Brilliant and Crowd of Spectators Large.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Lord Grey Opens the Second Session of the Tenth Parliament of Canada at Ottawa—Measures Which Will Be Submitted For the Consideration of the People's Representatives —Important Legislation.

Ottawa, March 9.—The Senate Chamber presented a scene of great brilliancy yesterday afternoon, when the ceremonies took place in connection with the opening of the second session of the tenth Parliament of Canada. Great numbers of visitors from distant points were present, and they filled the chamber, making it resplendent with many colored dresses. The customary procedure was carried out with the regulation pomp, and the session was duly opened by the reading of the speech from the Throne.

Speech From the Throne.

The Governor-General read the speech from the throne, as follows:

Hon. gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In again summoning you to meet for the despatch of business I am glad to be able to congratulate you on the prosperity prevailing throughout the Dominion.

The severe bereavement which Queen Alexandra has sustained through the death of her father, the King of Denmark, has occasioned much sorrow throughout the Empire, and I am satisfied that the warm sympathy of the people of Canada will be readily extended to Her Majesty.

The New Provinces.

It afforded me much pleasure as the representative of His Majesty to take part in the inauguration of the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan as constituent members of the Confederation. The universal rejoicing on the assumption of provincial autonomy everywhere visible was gratifying to witness, and I venture to say that in no part of the world could a more contented population be found. The universal sentiment was one of abounding confidence in the future.

Bountiful Harvest Stimulates Trade.

The bountiful harvest with which we have been blessed the past season, together with the continued development of our industries and transportation facilities, have so stimulated business in all parts of Canada and have given such an impetus to our exports and imports that the trade both with the United Kingdom and foreign countries for the current fiscal year gives promise of being the largest on record.

The Immigration Wave.

The flow of immigrants seeking homes in the three prairie provinces still continues, and, from the present outlook, the number will be in excess of any previous year, and it is gratifying to note the increasing proportion from the British Isles.

Treaty With Japan.

A treaty on behalf of Canada has now been concluded between the United Kingdom and Japan, which, it is confidently hoped, will largely increase our trade with the people of that progressive empire. When the formal documents have been received they will be laid before you.

Preservation of Forests.

The rapid destruction of our forests now going on will, unless the operations of the lumbermen be prudently regulated in the future and a system of reforestation adopted, result in grave consequences, affecting the uniform flow of our rivers, and limiting our valuable water powers to a few months in the year. A bill will be submitted for your consideration, empowering the Government to set apart forest reserves on lands under its control.

Defence of Great Fortresses.

In accordance with the offer made by my Ministers to the Government of the United Kingdom, the Imperial Treasury has now been relieved from the cost of garrisoning Halifax, and arrangements are in progress for taking over the defence of Esquimalt, and hereafter detachments from the permanent force of Canada will have charge of both those important stations.

Change in Fiscal Year.

You will be invited to consider the propriety of making such a change in the fiscal year as will bring it more into harmony with the active business season.

The Insurance Inquiry.

The result of the investigation into the administration of leading life insurance companies in the neighboring republic has naturally created some uneasiness in the public mind as to the condition of Canadian companies. A commission has, therefore, been issued to inquire into and report on the management and financial standing, not only of companies holding Canadian charters, but also of all companies doing business under license in Canada.

Transcontinental Surveys.

Satisfactory progress is being made in the exploration and surveys of the eastern division of the National Transcontinental Railway, and it is expected the contracts for the construction of two important sections, embracing together about 400 miles, will shortly be executed.

Waterways and Transportation.

The interim report of the Canadian section of the International Waterways Commission will be laid before you. The work of the joint commission has been somewhat delayed, owing to a doubt as to the jurisdiction of the American section. The great development of commerce on the waters dividing the two countries, and the opportunities for the generating of electric power at many points necessarily involve questions which can only be dealt with by international arrangement or treaty. At Niagara the commission will have to consider how best to preserve the scenic effect of the falls while not unduly restricting the use of the flow of the Niagara River, so valuable for power purposes.

A report has been received from the Transportation Commission, containing several important recommendations. The document will be laid before you.

The legal experts appointed to revise, classify and consolidate the public general statutes passed since the revision in 1886 have completed their task, and it is expected that the volumes will be ready for distribution before July.

Lord's Day Observance.

A measure for the better observance of the Lord's Day will be submitted for your consideration.

You will be invited to consider among other subjects bills to amend the railway act, the fruit marks act, an act respecting usury and also the Dominion elections act.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts for the past year will be laid before you, the estimates for the nine months embracing a portion of the proposed fiscal year terminating on 31st of March, 1907, will be submitted for your approval at an early date.

Hon. gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I invite your earnest attention to the several subjects I have mentioned and to the general business that will come before you, and trust your deliberations will be guided by wisdom and moderation.

In the Commons.

After returning to the Commons' chamber, these new members were introduced: Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Postmaster-General; Mr. W. Chisholm, Liberal, Antigonish, N. S.; Mr. E. D. Smith, Conservative, Wentworth; Mr. F. F. Pardee, Liberal, West Lambton; Mr. A. B. Hunt, Liberal; Mr. W. E. Knowles, Liberal, West Assiniboia, Sas.; Col. Worthington, Conservative, Sherbrooke, Que.; Mr. Geo. E. McCraney, Liberal, Saskatchewan, Sas.; Mr. J. A. Verville, Labor, Maisonneuve All were cheered by their respective sides.

Auditor-General's Report.

Mr. R. L. Borden, when the adjournment was moved, asked when the Auditor-General's report may be expected. He also asked that the commission which has been issued for the investigation into the operation of life insurance companies be laid on the table, and the information as to whether it was the intention of the Government in connection with the insurance investigation to pay out of the public exchequer for services of counsel.

Sir Wilfrid's Reply.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who appeared to be in the best of health and full of vigor, on rising to respond was greeted with cheers from the Government benches. He reminded the leader of the Opposition that the Auditor-General was an officer of Parliament, and he was confident the provisions of the statute would be complied with. The Premier frankly stated that it had been the Government's intention to have a revision of the tariff at this session, but he had to convey a sad piece of information. Mr. Fielding has been confined to his bed for some three or four weeks now, and it is not expected he can be out of his house in less than three or four weeks, even if then. Under these circumstances the Minister of Finance was not able to give that attention to the tariff which he was expected to give, and therefore the Government had reluctantly come to the conclusion that it was not possible to have a revision of the tariff this session.

The Insurance Commission.

In regard to the Insurance Commission, a copy of instructions to the commissioners would be laid on the table on Monday, and Sir Wilfrid added that it was already provided that counsel should be employed to carry on the investigation and to assist the commissioners. The gentleman selected by the Government, who, he thought, would be acceptable to both sides of the House, and to the country generally, was Geo. F. Shepley, K. C., Toronto, than whom he did not think it possible to have selected a more competent man. Instructions given Mr. Shepley authorized him to employ any additional counsel he thought fit to assist him in his work.

"Would that include actuaries?" asked W. F. Maclean (South York).

"I am not aware that it includes actuaries," replied the Premier. "But the instructions to Mr. Shepley are to get all the assistance he desires and which is necessary to have as thorough an investigation as is possible, in fact such an investigation as will satisfy my hon. friend (Mr. Maclean) himself."

Mr. W. F. Maclean followed:

"I desire," he said, "to say now that I protest against the Government taking away the undoubted right of Parliament to name the commission that ought to investigate the insurance question.

"When Parliament was almost in sight of its annual session I contend that it was the duty of the Government to await the meeting of this House and come to this House and say that they intended to appoint a special committee of the House to investigate this insurance question.

"I protest against this investigation being handed over to a royal commission instead of being reserved for a Parliamentary commission."

The House adjourned at 4.20 p. m.

Penetanguishene, March 9.—Wm. Tillson, a deserter from the Royal Canadian Engineers at Kingston, was arrested here Wednesday, and placed in the lockup. He escaped by scraping the mortar from between the brick over the door of his cell.

British Navy Matters Talked Of In The House

Expenditures Explained By War Secretary Haldane.

NO BRITISH CONSCRIPTION

Service in the Army and Navy Should Be Voluntary—Accepts Principle of Dependence on the Navy, and Inaugurates Movement For Economy With Greater Efficiency—New System of Training.

London, March 9.—In introducing the army estimates, amounting to nearly $150,000,000, in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, War Secretary Haldane announced at the outset that the Liberals did not desire to destroy the army, but required greater efficiency at less expenditure.

The Government accepted what he denominated as the "blue water" principle, namely, that the navy at its present strength was capable of defending Great Britain from invasion, and though this strong navy was a costly thing it was very useful, as it made it possible to cut off much of what otherwise would be necessary army expenditure.

In pursuance of this principle of dependence on the navy, it had been decided that the ammunition stores constructed for the defence of London were unnecessary and would immediately be rooted up, some 300 guns mounted for defence purposes at various points along the coast would be swept away, the troops at Wei Hai Wei, China, would be withdrawn and some colonial garrisons would be reduced.

These changes did not involve an enormous sum, but marked the beginning of economy. The British army, which was required for over-seas purposes, must be of a high quality, which was not obtainable through conscription and should be strictly limited in dimensions.

New System of Training.

Great Britain, said the War Minister, never was able to reduce her striking force without providing some power of expansion behind it at home. He suggested as a possible device a system of dividing the period of training into two parts, one preliminary and elastic, giving men the elements of military training, and the other reserved for the period following an outbreak of hostilities, which would be devoted to more severe training. Anything like conscription would defeat its own ends, and the training should be decentralized and the work of the military and local Government of the people themselves. Then no Government would go to war unless the people supported them.

Elected Their Officers For The Coming Season

Large Number at Last Night's Meeting—Dr. Morgan Elected President—W. E. Wasson Manager—Much Interest Shown—Midland League Will be Represented by Intermediate and Junior Teams--Three Clubs Have Amalgamated.

That Association Football will boom in Peterborough this year was established beyond a doubt by the encouraging number present at the meeting last night. Room No. 2, of the Y.M.C.A. was so crowded that extra seats had to be brought in to accommodate all the assembly.

All present last night took active parts in the organization meeting and the result was very gratifying. Football, judging from the enthusiasm manifested will undoubtedly reach a climax this season and the game should be the best in the history of Peterborough. Representatives from last year's Business College, Old Country Wanderers as well as the Quakers were present and with the amalgamation of these clubs, Peterborough will have a football aggregation that shall be worthy of more than passing consideration. There are a number of reputable players who have been "lying low" during the past few seasons and who have signified their intention of getting into the game again. These together with a number of last year's players will make a very formidable eleven.

At last week's meeting it was decided to enter an intermediate team known as the Peterborough Quakers in the Midland League, but the election of officers was left over until last night's meeting. The active members of the club are all much interested in football and will see that everything possible will be done for the welfare and advancement of the team.

The following officers were elected:—

Patrons and Patronesses.—Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews.

Hon. President—W. H. Denham.

1st Hon. Vice-President—F. E. Bradburn, M. P.

2nd Hon. Vice-President — Dr. Geo. Burnham.

President—Dr. J. A Morgan.

1st Vice-President—R. F. McWilliams.

2nd Vice-President—Wm. Hamilton.

Manager—W. E. Wasson.

Secretary-Treasurer.—H. T. Huston.

Executive and Managing Committee.—P. Fitzgerald, Jas. Doris, H. T. Huston.

The election of a captain was left over until the commencement of the season and will be appointed by the team.

The President and Mr. J. E. Sullivan were appointed to represent the local club at the annual meeting of the Midland League.

The question of placing a junior team in the league came up for discussion and it was unanimously agreed to do so. The representatives to the annual meeting of the Midland League were instructed to advance the idea of having a junior series in the league the coming season. It was also decided to have these same members at the annual meeting advance the idea of having Bowmanville and Locust Hill play in the Senior Series.

DR. GEORGE BURNHAM
An Honoury Vice-President of the Football Club.

It is understood that Norwood Bridgenorth, Havelock, Cordova Mines and a number of other clubs will be represented in the Midland League and if a junior series be commenced there will be several other places heard from in this district. So that altogether the prospects for the great game in Peterborough and vicinity never looked brighter and undoubtedly the prestige of Association Football will be brought back to where it formerly be longed.

Rough House Tactics In Professional Hockey

A Report of a Game in Sault Ste. Marie in Which the Players Went Out After Blood--Gibson Not Nearly as Good a Referee as Elliott--No Spectacle for Ladies.

The kind of hockey they play in the Intermediate (professional) hockey league is indicated by the following report from the Soo News of the game with Calumet in that city, when the latter were defeated in a "bloody" game by 4-1.

The game was so rough that at one stage the crowd emulated the copper country and rushed onto the ice. Several grandstand plays were made by people in the crowd who wanted to mix in the fray and the lovers of the yellow in sport yelled themselves hoarse. Taylor and Corbeau, who had been mixing it all the evening, came together in the second half and from the way they fought it was evident they were out for blood. They clinched and went to the ice. The other players rushed up and endeavoured to part them. Part of the crowd swarmed over the fence onto the ice to take a hand in the scrimmage, but the outsiders were driven off. The belligerents were ruled off the ice for the rest of the game.

Hardly a man on either team escaped without getting some kind of a reminder of the occasion in the way of a hard jab in the ribs or a jolt in the neck. The carnage would have been delightful for a copper country crowd to witness. It would have stirred the blood of the miners with joy.

But it wasn't a spectacle for ladies to enjoy. It was too strenuous. People who paid their money to see a scientific game of hockey were rewarded by something akin to a Mexican bull fight. Both teams slugged and cross-checked and tried for knockouts continually, seemingly forgetting where the puck was half the time.

Gibson's work in comparison with that of Elliot is not up to the standard. He allows all kinds of rough work and is unable to see glaring off-sides. It may be all right where the people like to see blood spilled in copious quantities, but the Soo doesn't stand for that kind of sport. It lacks science. Brute force alone is displayed when the men are allowed to "go after each other."

BOILS ALL OVER HIS FACE AND NECK

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS DID FOR HIM WHAT FOUR DOCTORS FAILED TO DO

KENWATER, ONT., July 28th, 1905.

MESSRS. THE T. MILBURN CO., LTD., TORONTO, ONT.,

DEAR SIRS:—I am writing to let you know what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am a young man, twenty years old, and a year ago last March I began to feel dull and sick, and was greatly troubled with boils coming out on my face and neck, mostly on the latter. I would no sooner get rid of one than I would have, perhaps, two or three more appear.

I had four doctors trying to cure me but they had very little success. They would stop them for a month or six weeks and then they would be as bad as ever again.

Almost every patent medicine, advertised to cure boils, I could get hold of. I tried, but still without success. At last one day, last spring, someone happened to say: "why not try taking Burdock Blood Bitters for the blood?" I was willing to try anything and immediately sent for a bottle, but at the time was doubtful if it would be of any use. However, I used that bottle and while I was taking it I began to feel better, although I still kept having a few boils but not nearly such bad ones. I did not miss any work, while otherwise, I used to miss, sometimes, a week out of every month. I kept on taking the medicine until I had taken six bottles, and needless to say, I was not sorry I did so when I tell you I have not had a boil appear for the past three months. Every body was surprised when they heard that Burdock Blood Bitters had done for me what four doctors failed to do. If any sufferers are afflicted with boils, I would strongly advise them to use B. B. B. It makes you feel like a new man. I always keep a bottle in the house, now, as I think it is a medicine that should be in every household.

Yours truly,
HENRY A. SMITH.

Plumbers Won From Tinsmiths

The long talked of game between the Plumbers and Tinsmiths was played last night between 7 and 8 on the Brock street rink. The superior playing of the former puck chasers won for them the game by the score of 5-1. The half-time score was 2-0 in their favour. McNern and Reid for the victors were always in the game while Weble and Hamilton for the losers played a steady game. The ice was too soft for fast hockey so that the play did not abound with any sensational rushes. The following was the line-up:—

Plumbers.		Tinsmiths.
Regan	Goal.	Bourne
Wallace	Point.	Hamilton
F. Parnell	Cover Point.	Dockrill
B. Parnell	Centre.	Morency
McNern	Right Wing.	Webb

Referee—R. Hilliard.

Peterborough After Berlin

Whitcroft Tells the News the Locals Want to Play the Dutchmen.

Now that Peterborough has won the intermediate championship of the Ontario Hockey Association, the players are after greater honours.

Fred. Whitcroft, who is one of the officers of the club, said on his return from Goderich yesterday that the club would challenge Berlin, the senior champions, to play them.

Peterborough are willing to play home and home games at Peterborough and Berlin, or to decide the matter by a sudden death game, to be played at Toronto on Monday or Tuesday next.

If this game could be brought about it would create a great deal of interest as it would show the public how little difference there is between the intermediate and senior champions.

Peterborough would give the Flying Dutchmen a harder fight than most of the clubs they met during their scheduled season. They are fast and good shots, while their defence is equal to that of the Dutchmen.

It is not likely that Berlin will accept the challenge, as most of the men have quit for the season.—Toronto News.

HOCKEY

The Stratford Beacon of Wednesday, had a very fair report of the game in Goderich on Tuesday night. Mr. Ernie Bartlett, a former Peterborough man, was a spectator at the game and he report is from his pen:—

"Goderich took their defeat hard, as was evidenced by the acts of rowdyism committed after the game. Over-excited hoodlums pelted the Peterborough players with snow, and the disgraceful scene was continued until they had reached the hotel. When snow was not available other missiles were showered at them, and it is fortunate that they came out as lucky as they did. Such acts should not be credited to the "real" sports of any town, but rather to over-zealous supporters (?) who are a disgrace, not only to themselves but to the town to which they belong.

The game was of the most strenuous order. Each player played for all that was in him, and used every pound of weight he possessed against his opponents. One could hardly see that either had any advantage in respect to weight, but the boys from the east had decidedly the better of the argument from every standpoint. They were better stick-handlers, faster skaters and harder shots."

Charlotte Street wrote Fenelon Falls a few days ago concerning the Trent Valley Trophy, trying to arrange a game. An answer was received yesterday by secretary Moore, stating that Charlotte Street would have to go up to the Falls and pay all their own expenses. How generous they are getting!

• • • •

When Peterborough returned from Goderich yesterday after playing the final game for the intermediate championship, they were pretty well used up. The club had to play four games in a little over a week, and were tired out.

The players do not speak any too well of the treatment they received at the hands of the Goderich crowd during or after the game. Some of the players claim that stones were thrown at them. While Whitcroft stated that one of the goal umpires had said to him that he was willing to make an affidavit that Peterborough scored another game, though at the time of its being scored he was afraid to allow it. This would have made the score a tie. Crowley was hit with a stick on coming off the ice.

FOOTBALL

Mr. Fred. Jopling, one of Bridgenorth's fast wing men was in the city to-day. On being asked concerning the prospects for football in that village he stated that they were exceedingly bright. Bridgenorth intends entering a team in the Midland League this year and it is expected they will retain their old reputation.

Goderich Team Congratulates Us

Mr. C. G. Graham, secretary of the Peterborough Hockey Club, has received the following letter of congratulation from the president of the Goderich team:—

Goderich
March 7th, 1906.

The Secretary of Peterborough Hockey Club:

Dear Sir,—As I wish to voice the sentiment of the Goderich Hockey Club, I extend to you our congratulations.

We were in it for the final Intermediate Championship Game, but met our Waterloo. However, I might add that a good sport never hollers.

Yours respectfully,
W. P. KELLY,
President Goderich Hockey Club.

The Belleville Intelligencer comes out with a bunch of mud for the Peterborough team. Considering where it comes from nobody is at all hurt or offended in anyway. Belleville is a little sore yet because Peterborough once upon a time, to use a fairy tale expression, had a team a trifle faster than theirs and won the round when the two septettes clashed by two goals. The Intelligencer had talked so loudly before that game of the chances of their own wonders to beat the Petes that the people became so imbued with the idea that they couldn't be beaten that Peterborough's victory has ever since been "The Mystery of Sleepy Hollow".

THE RING.

Artie Edmunds, the Toronto featherweight boxer and wrestler, who had pretty nearly dropped from view seems to be very much alive in New York and doing great work with the mitts. The New York Mail says that his recent bout with Keyes was the nearest approach to the McGovern-Corbett fight at Hartford, of anything that has ever happened. Edmunds has appeared here on the wrestling mat on many occasions and always made good. He was recognized as the featherweight wrestling champion of Canada.

MISCELLANEOUS.

It's about time to think of baseball, football, lacrosse and some other summer games. The football boys got busy last night and should produce a team that will make a bold bid for another championship for Peterborough.

Mr. Pritchard Was Here In Interest Of Company

Mr. G. R. Pritchard, of the Canada Fire Engine Company, London, was in the city last night, a guest at the Oriental. The Company is one of those which are endeavouring to sell an engine to Peterborough, and Mr. Pritchard was here in the interests of the firm, who are of course, anxious to dispose of one of their machines. Mr. Pritchard left this morning, but will return to the city on Tuesday next.

Isolation Hospital Will Be Discussed

To-night the Committee of the Whole Council and the Board of Health will hold a joint meeting in the City Clerk's office. The object of the meeting, it is understood, is to discuss the situation arising out of the refusal of the hospitals to accept contagious disease patients.

The hospitals have taken this action in response to the instructions of the inspector to the effect that they must not treat contagious diseases in their wards; and in the event of their persistence in this practice the Government grant would be withheld.

In view of this fact the hospitals notified the council, and the latter recognizing that the Board of Health had the power to demand the erection of an isolation hospital, if they so desired, have called a meeting, in which to discuss the question in all its bearings.

This meeting will be held to-night and will be more in the nature of a conference than anything else.

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—Would it not be a good idea for the Mayor, since he has not the faculty of being in two places at one and the same time, to call off the council meeting arranged for Monday night, in view of the fact that he has been invited, and will be expected, as the chief executive officer of the city, to be present at the banquet to the hockey team, and take part in an incidental function? It is not every day that Peterborough gets such an advertisement as that given it by the hockey team this year, and no doubt the Mayor, appreciating this fact, will take the matter into his consideration and will arrange to call the council meeting off and attend the banquet.

CITIZEN.

Dear Sir,—I would like to call the attention of the council to the fact that there is no sidewalk on Water street behind the Opera House and pedestrians in that section have to wade through the mud. Ladies especially find this state of affairs very distressing and something should be done to remedy the matter.

"ONE WHO TRAVELS THAT WAY".

Editor Post Card Column:

It seems to take some people considerable time to learn which side of the crossing to get on when they want a car, in this city of Peterborough. Now the car men have instructions to always cross over to the opposite side of crossing. For instance, at Hunter street, if the car is going north, get on the north crossing, if going south get on the south crossing. This might more particularly apply to the residents to the north on Water street. Some have still the habit of stepping out from their house and signalling from the sidewalk. Now you are going to get left, people, sometimes, if you don't get to a crossing. Now as it is a muddy time, it will be a good deal better for to get to a crossing, and then you run a better chance of not getting your "new shoes" all muddy. Another convenience to the motorman would be if you want a car to get out in time, and give the motorman a chance to stop and not be talking to some one until the car is right up to you, and then wonder why he didn't stop sooner. Get out in time, give a signal with your hand or a nod with your head, or a little smile if you wish, as the motormen are a good natured lot of fellows and will accept any kind of a signal if they know you want the car. Hoping that anyone who has got left will get out earlier the next time, so that they won't have to walk home again.

CONDUCTOR.

Editor Post Card Column:

What would be the matter with the Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the consideration of those who don't know, at the corner of George and Charlotte street to place a board in a conspicuous place so that the public may see and direct them which way the cars are running. For instance, say No. 11 and 12 with green lights run to and from Jackson and Central Park; No. 13, 14, and 15 with white lights on George street from Auburn to river, connecting with the Park and C. G. R. car at Charlotte street and No. 17 with red lights on the C. G. line; and if there is any change or extra or special cars let them be added to the bulletin so that strangers when they come into the city may see for themselves, which way every car is bound for. One trip the signatures say on a car Jackson Park, next trip Central Park when you are really going to Jackson Park again. Hoping this suggestion is not out of place.

Yours truly,
SUGGESTOR.

OBITUARY.

MARY E. SHAW.

The death is announced of Mrs. Mary E. Shaw, relict of the late George E. Shaw, for many years the manager of the Ontario Bank, in Peterborough. Mrs. Shaw, whose maiden name was Miss Mary E. Thompson, was a daughter of the late Sir David Thompson, and whose connection with the Northwestern Company is well known; and as a surveyor he opened up the Northwest country for the Canadian Pacific Railway. He received the honour of Knighthood at the hands of the late Queen. Mrs. Shaw had reached the advanced age of 79 years, and for several years had resided with her daughters, Charlotte E., and Mary Louise, at Oakville, where she died.

Those surviving of the family are Miss Charlotte E. Shaw, Mrs. Shelldrake, Mrs. T. B. Tate, and Mr. Chas. S. Shaw, Chicago, who is now in town. The remains were brought to Peterborough for interment in the family plot in the Little Lake cemetery and reached here by the morning train, the funeral being private, and from the station. The services at the chapel were conducted by Rev. Mr. Wallace, Anglican, of Oakville, who accompanied Mr. Shaw here.

Runaway Caused Some Excitement

Some excitement was caused on Dublin street to-day at noon through a team running away from Munn's planing mill yards. The animals were frightened at the mill whistle, and tore out of the yard and down Dublin street. They struck the pavement and upset the load of lumber. Farther down the street they narrowly escaped running down a delivery wagon. The team was stopped before any damage was done.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

I.O.U.

A Montreal paper in speaking of the I.O.U., which is at the Grand Opera House here on Tuesday, the 13th, says: "All the seats were taken in advance at the Academy of Music last night. The patrons of this fashionable theatre wished to hear Kolb and Dill, two comedians, who on this occasion sustained their reputation excellently in their interpretation of an original fantasie entitled I.O.U. During two hours the spectators laughed to tears. The scenery was perfect and the costumes and other accessories were faultless. The singing and musical specialties rendered between the acts were much appreciated.

Damage Done In Runaway At Lakefield

Mr. Garvey's Horse Frightened at Opening Umbrella.

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, March 7.—Mr. R. C. Strickland spent a couple of days in Toronto last week on business.

Mr. W. M. Graham is in Toronto this week selecting new goods for spring millinery opening.

Miss Sylvia Strickland has returned home after spending a month with her sister in New York.

Mrs. W. M. Graham and Miss Blanche left Tuesday for Ottawa and while there will attend the opening of Parliament.

Mr. Green of the Lakefield Preparatory School Staff, has accepted a position in the Merchants' Bank at Orillia.

Mr. Taylor, of Toronto formerly of London, Eng. has taken Mr. Green's place as third master of the Lakefield Preparatory School.

Mrs. Attwood and Miss LaFevre are visiting in Toronto.

Miss Call, of R. Graham & Son's who has been in Toronto for the past three weeks, getting acquainted with the newest styles in millinery, returned to the village this week.

Decidedly the most successful social event of the season was the dance given in the town hall on Friday evening in honour of Miss Stephenson on the eve of her departure. The music, which was excellent was supplied by Miss Miller, of Toronto, and Miss A. Hunter and Miss Nelson, of the village. The refreshments were supplied by Mr. T. Z. Webster. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Miss Stephenson left for her home in Medoc Tuesday morning.

A hockey match which brought the largest attendance of the season was played in the rink here on Monday evening, March 5th. A keen interest was taken in the game throughout. The contesting parties were Counter Hoppers and Canoe Builders and resulted in a victory for the Counter Hoppers, the score being 7—6 in their favour.

While Mr. Garvey, of Smith, was driving into the village Sunday morning last with a spirited young horse, the latter became frightened at a lady opening an umbrella on the bridge and dashed up street, turning the corner. The buggy was very nearly upset and in some way Mr. Garvey dropped one rein. In trying to stop the horse he pulled him in towards Mr. Johnson's residence, on Queen street. The horse made straight for the front door of the house, and was only stopped by colliding with a large post in the verandah which was knocked out of place by the force of the collision. The horse was captured after considerable damage was wrought to the verandah and buggy, Mr. Garvey having jumped in time to save himself.

Miss Miller, of Toronto, who has been the guest of Mrs. R. Johnson for the past week has returned home.

Miss Halpin, of Peterborough, is the guest of Mrs. Kennedy.

Miss Edith Spence is spending a couple of weeks in Toronto visiting friends.

FOOD OR STIMULANT.

Ask your doctor if when he orders a patient to drink lots of pure milk he advises the addition of a large quantity of whiskey. He'll tell you "no" very emphatically. Yet there are people who, when ordered to get Scott's Emulsion, will accept some wine, cordial or extract of cod liver oil and think it is the same thing or better. If you want and need cod liver oil in its best, purest and most easily digested form, get Scott's Emulsion. If you want whiskey, that's another matter, but don't look for the same results.

Horrible Death Of Vienna Lady By An Accident

Part of Her Skull Torn Off By a Revolving Shaft.

MILLER'S WIFE'S AWFUL END

Mrs. Thornwhite, Wife of the Proprietor of the Vienna Grist Mills, Was Caught by Revolving Shaft by Her Dress and Wound Up to the Top, Her Head Striking on Two Hoppers on Each Side.

Vienna, March 10.—Mrs. Charles Thornwhite, wife of the proprietor of the grist mills here, was killed yesterday.

She was standing near a revolving shaft which caught her dress and wound her up on the shaft, her head striking on two hoppers which stood on each side of the shaft as she was carried around.

Before employes could shut down the mill, part of her skull was torn off. She was quite dead before they could get her released from the shaft.

TO CRUSH NATION'S FOES.

"Black Hundred" Agitates For the Extermination of the Jews.

St. Petersburg, March 10.—The fears of the renewal of Jewish massacres at Easter, to which a deputation recently called Premier Witte's attention, appear upon investigation to have real foundation.

The "Black Hundred" organizations are conducting an agitation to slaughter the "enemies of Russia."

Circulars have been prepared in St. Petersburg calling for the extermination of the Jews. At Minsk the society has had the temerity to address a request to the Premier for permission to crush the nation's foes.

The Premier immediately notified the Governor-General of Minsk to take measures to prevent any outbreaks. Nevertheless, in many places reactionary officials and police who regard the Jews as the inciters of the late revolution are doing nothing.

The members of the deputation which called on the Premier were genuinely alarmed. The local authorities, the deputation said, are closing their eyes with the result that the Jewish population is threatened with more dreadful outrages than those of last fall.

Thirty Women Storm "C. B."

London, March 10.—A band of thirty zealous women suffragists attempted to storm Premier Campbell-Bannerman's official residence on Downing street yesterday afternoon. They used the knocker vigorously and attempted to force an entrance when the door was opened. Three ringleaders of the women suffragists were taken to the nearest police station struggling and screaming and followed by 27 of their companions shouting: "Down with the C.-B.," and other cries. "C.-B." otherwise Premier Campbell-Bannerman, was presiding at a Cabinet Council at the time the women called and he refused to see them.

Honor Prof. Macallum.

The Premier Promises To Keep Them Busy

Lots of Work For the Legislature to Do Next Week.

BUDGET SPEECH THURSDAY

Hon. Mr. Hanna Introduces the New Toronto General Hospital Bill—Several Bills Read a Second Time and a Number of New Measures Introduced—House Leaders Have a Little Passage at Arms.

Toronto, March 10.—At the close of a session lasting three quarters of an hour yesterday in the Legislature Premier Whitney and Hon. Mr. Ross had a little passage at arms arising out of a remark of the latter that the Legislature would sit for six weeks or longer. Mr. Ross had no complaint about the progress made with the estimates, but thought Government measures should be brought down. The estimates were of secondary importance, and did not require the same consideration as the Government measures. He did not expect the House to sit on Friday nights for the present. Premier Whitney stated that after Monday the order paper would be taken up and all business dealt with as it was reached. The estimates do not appear on the order paper on Mondays. Mr. Harcourt suggested that the County Councils bill might be brought in, and the Premier assured the House there would be plenty of business next week. In this connection, it is understood, the budget speech may be expected from the Provincial Secretary next Thursday.

Toronto General Hospital Bill.

Provincial Secretary Hanna introduced a bill to amend the Toronto General Hospital Act, providing for a board of 25 trustees instead of 5, 8 to be appointed by the Government, 5 by the university, 5 by the city, and 7 by subscribers.

A clause in the bill provides as follows: Should the trustees under the power of this act expropriate the block of land south of College street, west of Elizabeth street, north of Mayter and Christopher street, and east of University street, or any portion thereof, then those portions of Avenue street, Avenue lane, Centre and Christopher street, lying within said limits, shall be closed, and the fee therein shall be vested in the trustees.

Mr. Hanna remarked that it was desired to get through the second and third readings as soon as possible. Those interested in the hospital had asked that this should be done, and there appeared to be good reasons.

Election Law Changes.

A change in the election act is sought in a bill by Mr. Duff, whereby sheriffs and registrars would be debarred from acting as returning officers unless given authority by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

Mr. Pratt introduced a bill to amend the Toll Roads Act by removing the maintenance of an expropriated toll road lying wholly within a single township from the county, and to place the responsibility upon the township in which the expropriated road lies.

Mr. McDougall was given an order for a return showing amounts and prices of commodities supplied either to the Government, or the commissioners of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, by the license inspector at Mattawa.

Also for a return giving names of all officials replaced by the Government in East and West Nipissing, stating positions formerly held by them, the reasons for their dismissal and the names of the persons appointed in their places.

Indian Claims.

Mr. Ross moved for a return of copies of all papers and correspondence regarding the settlement of the Indian claim of Northern Ontario, known as Treaty No. 9, together with a copy of the treaty as finally agreed upon.

Mr. Matheson replied to Mr. Ross that by the terms of negotiations with the Dominion Government, the latter was to pay the cost of all inspections and surveys of reserves, and of the cost of education and of supplies which amounted to a considerable sum. All that the province had to bear was the cost of annuities at the rate of $8 a year for each reserve dweller for the first year, $5 for the next year, and $4 for each succeeding year. This would amount for the first year to about $10,000 and about $5,000 for each year thereafter.

Living on the Country.

Mr. Elber moved the second reading of his bill to recover from inmates of houses of refuge who might come into property. He knew of four cases in the County of Huron where inmates had property amounting to $4,000. One inmate had $1,000 in the bank, and a house and lot worth $7,500; another had a paid-up life insurance policy. Mr. Elber's bill also gives power to inspectors of jails to inspect houses of refuge.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt did not think the Legislature contemplated taking care of persons owning farms.

The following other bills were read a second time: To amend Assessment Act (Hoyle); to amend the Municipal Act (Thompson, Simcoe); respecting the police village of West Lorne (Macdiarmid); empowering the London and Western Trusts Co. to sell certain lands in the County of Lambton (Montgomery); respecting the Counties of Northumberland and Durham (Preston); respecting the Town of Oshawa (Calder); to confirm bylaw 718 of the Town of Napanee (Carscallen).

The House adjourned at 4 o'clock.

Quebec Legislature Closed.

Quebec, March 10.—The second session of the eleventh Legislature of Quebec was prorogued at 9.30 o'clock last night by Lieut.-Governor Jette, who gave the royal assent to 114 bills passed during the session and closed both houses with a speech from the throne.

The Exports Of The Dominion Show Decrease

Britain Does Not Take So Much of Our Goods As Formerly.

FRANCE AND U. S. INCREASE

Deputy Minister Parmelee, in the Report of the Department of Trade and Commerce For the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, Notes An Apparent Falling Off in Aggregate Trade of Canada of $2,500,000.

Ottawa, March 10.—The report of the Department of Trade and Commerce for the fiscal year, ending June 30, was issued yesterday.

In it Deputy Minister Parmelee notes an apparent falling off in the aggregate trade of Canada of two and a half millions. Imports for the period increased $7,600,000, but there was a decline of $10,200,000 in exports. Imports from Great Britain remained about stationary, while there was a considerable increase in the imports from France and the United States.

Canada's exports to Great Britain fell off considerably, and those to Germany and Holland moderately, while there was an increase of four millions in exports to the United States. During the year there was a decline of $6,100,000 in grain exports, $5,700,000 being wheat, cheese fell off four millions, bacon one million, and apples two millions.

There was an increase in export butter of a million and a quarter, a million in canned meats, eight hundred thousand in animals and a like amount in wood manufactures.

Revenue Maintains Buoyancy.

The buoyancy of Canada's revenue was well maintained during the eight months which ended on Feb. 28. The total receipts were $49,740,375. This is an excess of twelve and a half million dollars in the ordinary receipts over ordinary revenue, and of over four and a half millions in ordinary receipts over all expenditures combined. The revenue exceeds that for the same time last year by $4,255,795, and the expenditure was $3,670,923 more than the outlay for the same period of the preceding fiscal year. There has been a healthy increase in receipts from all sources.

Proceedings in the House.

Preparatory to next week's more serious business the House dealt yesterday with several small matters of a routine character. There was a full attendance, which might be taken to indicate that the heavy penalty for absence provided in last year's bill is having its effect.

On Sir Wilfrid Laurier's motion the following were appointed a committee to nominate select standing committees for the session: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. R. L. Borden, Hon. William Paterson, Hon. Charles Hyman, Hon. John Haggart, Mr. W. B. Calvert, and Mr. George Taylor.

The Premier laid on the table the order-in-Council and commission for the insurance investigation.

Hon. Mr. Foster asked as to certain returns ordered last session, and Mr. Hyman and Mr. Oliver, whose departments were concerned, promised them for Monday.

In reply to Mr. Foster, Sir Wilfrid said that he had spoken to the Auditor-General and part of his report would be ready on Monday and the rest in a few days.

The House adjourned at 3.20 p. m.

Opposition Leadership in the Senate.

Conservative Senators met in caucus yesterday morning and unanimously requested Sir Mackenzie Bowell to reconsider his decision to resign the leadership. He will take a few days to think it over. The fact that a serious split exists between the Conservative Senators and Commoners is becoming more and more apparent.

GOVERNMENT MAY FALL.

One Rumor Says It May Be Summarily Dismissed.

Victoria, B.C., March 10.—The fate of the McBride Government was trembling in the balance last night. The Kaien Island investigation committee has brought in a whitewashing report but the minority, consisting of James A. Macdonald, Opposition leader, and T. W. Patterson submitted a minority report which was published Thursday night, the Government refusing to permit its submission to the House. This report is an exhaustive and masterly summing up of facts.

The Lieut.-Governor has secured copies of these resolutions, and there are all kinds of rumors afloat regarding the probable dismissal of the Government.

Mining Institute Officers.

Quebec, March 10.—The Canadian Mining Institute elected these officers yesterday: President, George R. Smith, Thetford Mines, Que.; vice-presidents, for one year, Dr. F. D. Adams, Montreal; Major R. G. Leckie, Temagami, P. O., Ont.; for two years, Frederick Keffer, Greenwood, B. C.; G. Herrick Duggan, Sydney, C. B.; treasurer, J. Stevenson Brown, Montreal; secretary, H. Mortimer Lamb, Montreal.

M. Sarrien Asks Time.

Paris, March 10.—President Fallieres received Jean Sarrien, former Minister of Justice, yesterday afternoon and offered him the task of forming a Cabinet.

The latter said that he would not give the president his final answer until he had consulted with his friends.

Canada's May Tender.

Ottawa, March 10.—Australia is calling for tenders for a fifteen to seventeen knot steamship service fortnightly between Australia and Great Britain. At the present time a subsidy of £130,000 is being paid. Specifications have been forwarded for the benefit of Canadians who wish to tender.

WIPED OUT MANY MOROS.

U. S. Troops Win Battle on Top of High Mountain—Artillery Hoisted by Block and Tackle.

Manila, March 10.—Major-Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the division of the Philippines, reports as follows from Jolo, capital of the Sulu Islands:

"A severe action between troops, a naval detachment and constabulary and hostile Moros has taken place at Mount Dajo, near Jolo. The engagement opened during the afternoon of March 6 and ended on the morning of March 8.

"The action involved the capture of Mount Dajo, a lava cone two thousand and one hundred feet high, with a crater at its summit and extremely steep. The last four hundred feet were at an angle of sixty degrees, and there were fifty perpendicular ridges covered with a growth of timber and strongly fortified and defended by an invisible force of Moros.

"The army casualties were fifteen enlisted men killed, four commissioned officers wounded, and thirty-two enlisted men wounded. The naval casualties numbered 32.

"The constabulary casualties were three enlisted men killed and 18 wounded. All the defenders of the Moro stronghold were killed. Six hundred bodies were found on the field.

"The action resulted in the extinction of a band of outlaws, who, recognizing no chief, have been raiding friendly Moros, and who, owing to their defiance of the American authorities, had stirred up a dangerous condition of affairs.

"The artillery was lifted by block and tackle a distance of 400 feet into a position on the top of the crater. Brigadier-Gen. Bliss and myself were present throughout the action.

"The officers and men engaged highly commend the Moro constabulary, who did excellent work, their casualties numbering seventeen out of the force of forty-four engaged."

THE PLUMBERS' COMBINE.

Crown's Case All In, Argument is Set For Monday.

Hamilton, March 10.—The Crown closed its case against the plumbers last evening. George S. Lynch-Staunton, K. C., promptly moved for a nonsuit, but Judge Mabee decided to postpone the argument till Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The defence has half a dozen witnesses to call. The jurors were dismissed till Monday at noon, after being cautioned not to discuss the case or to read newspaper reports.

Yesterday afternoon Edward Curry, Toronto, said that the plumbers had demanded $19.150 for work that a Philadelphia firm did for $12,500.

Danford Evans of this city testified that John Elliott had offered to do work for him for $45, but afterward said he would have to charge $60 as the Plumbers' Association was making a row about it. He got the work done by a non-association plumber for $45.

Three journeymen plumbers employed by Geo. Stevenson swore that when their employer quit the association their union said they would either have to get out of the union or leave Mr. Stevenson.

L. P. Spittal, a Dundas plumber who did not join the association, claimed that he had to go out of business altogether owing to difficulty he had in getting supplies.

George Stevenson and John Elliott, plumbers who had dropped out of the association, told the court what a hard time they had to get supplies. Mr. Elliott declared that one of the plumbers of the association, W. J. Welsh, had threatened to jump on him and fire him out of the city if he gave the association away. The threat, he claimed, was made after the proceedings against the plumbers was started.

TERRIBLE FAMINE CONDITIONS.

Canada's Agent in Japan Says Million Or More Are Starving.

Ottawa, March 10.—In a report to the Trade and Commerce Department, Alexander Maclean, Canada's commercial agent in Japan, writes that the famine conditions as described in official statements, are appalling.

Private munificence is doing its best to relieve the distress. It is said that there are a million or more Japanese of all classes affected by the famine.

Imperial and provincial authorities are carrying on public works to give employment to relieve the distress.

Aid For Japan.

Albany, March 10.—Gov. Higgins, in a proclamation issued yesterday, calls the attention of the people of the State of New York to an appeal of the American National Red Cross for aid for the sufferers from famine in Japan.

HOPE AT ALGECIRAS.

Beginning of Happy End—Germany Seems Anxious Now to Preserve Peace—Status of Questions.

Algeciras, March 10.—Expressions by the French and German delegates to the conference on Moroccan reforms last night give the impression that a compromise on the points hitherto dead-locked may be reached to-day.

The German delegates have now moved from the hitherto rigid standpoint which they have maintained relative to the Moroccan Bank declaring their readiness to grant to French subscribers to the existing loan two shares of the capital of the bank, instead of one share at first.

The French delegates, though outwardly determined not to reduce their demand for four shares, appear inclined to accept the German offer, but in return expect the Germans to meet with concessions in the matter of the police.

France will not agree to the scheme of alloting certain ports to France and Spain, according to the Austrian plan, nor to the appointment of a commander who is not French, but is willing to consent to appointment of an inspector from a neutral nation who shall not have command of the police.

The bank question will come up first to-day. The indications point to mutual concessions, and in the event of their realization a discussion of the police question will proceed with great chances of an agreement being reached.

The Adventurers

By E. B. MARRIOTT WATSON

His impudence was startling. Here was a man who had just made a barefaced attempt upon my life (for that was how I conceived it), and he was engrossing the conversation upon friendly terms and in the most cheerful spirit between his intended victim and the stranger who had all but actually witnessed his atrocious act of treachery. The bare audacity had left me gaping at the outset of the encounter, but the very process of his easy talk served to give me my wits again, and I was able to meet him upon his own terms, which I did, delivering a long, keen glance at him.

"I am afraid you are an indifferent sportsman, Captain Sercombe," said I after I had acknowledged the introduction ceremoniously. "You do better with the rod than with the gun. I see I must take you in hand for a lesson. When you see me shoot I shall shoot straight, even if the enemy be a hare."

Sercombe laughed and patted my horse's flank. The vicar looked from one to the other in some bewilderment, as well he might, for we had disposed of a curious incident somewhat cavalierly.

"I am pleased to have made your acquaintance, Mr. Greatorex," said he. "And I trust we shall see more of each other."

In my heart I hoped not, but I gave him the proper rejoinder, and, taking off his hat, he moved away. Sercombe and I were left upon the roadway confronting each other.

"And now, sir," said I quietly, "will you be good enough to tell me what this means, and why you shoot at hares with bullets?"

"Let me walk with you a little way," responded the captain, shouldering his gun. Suiting his action to the invitation, he marched beside me. "It is very plain, Mr. Greatorex," said he pleasantly. "It means that you must have a lesson, but I need not assure you that I bear no ill will to you. On the contrary, I have taken a great taste for you. But it is obvious to you that sentiment has no place in a mere matter of business."

It is not an uncommon practice with me to carry a pistol, and certainly, if it had never entered my head before, I think that the strange fortunes of the last week would have persuaded me to the precaution. As it was, the revolver lay to my hand in my coat pocket, and I took my course forthwith. Whipping round the horse, I drew and presented the weapon at his heart.

"You will do me the favor, Captain Sercombe," said I sharply, "to hand over your cartridges."

An indefinite expression of surprise passed over his face. He was evidently taken aback, and his high color strengthened. "Oh, come, my dear sir," said he. "I ask you to consider if it be worth while. For my own part, I have no desire to fire in your back, nor dare I if I had. You see, I am plain with you."

He certainly was, and I saw at once that I need fear no more for the present—at least from the captain.

"Very well," said I.

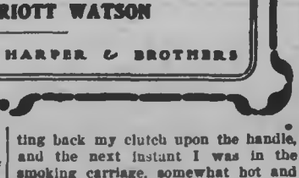
"I am glad you agree with me," he remarked. "It is a saving of dignity."

I said no more, but whipped up the horse and left him, with a mocking bow, which he returned gravely, and the last I saw of him was his bulky form leaning upon the gun and assiduously following me with his dull and fishy eyes.

I put up the horse at the Swan and hurried to the station, barely in time to catch the London train. I took my ticket hastily and, rushing down the platform, cast about me precipitately for a first class carriage. The guard had retired to the back part of the train and stood impatiently, flag in hand. I came upon two compartments of the class I wished and gave a hurried glance into each. The one appeared empty, but the other already contained two or three travelers. This latter, however, was labeled "Smoking," and for a second or two I wavered in the balance until a sharp "Now, then, sir!" from the guard finally whipped up my decision. I opened the door of the smoking carriage, but as I did so a man rudely stumbled against me, and I fell against the next compartment, the door of which had just been opened by a third person. In the flurry of the moment I merely remember getting back my clutch upon the handle, and the next instant I was in the smoking carriage, somewhat hot and angry. Out of the window by which I sat I saw in the tail of my eye the two men stepping swiftly into the next compartment, and something vaguely troubled my senses.

I settled into the cushions as the train drew out of the station and looked about at my companions. Then my mind returned to the landscape, which was now passing pretty swiftly. It struck me in a flash what was exercising my mind. A squint—that was it! Mrs. Main had described the intruder of the morning as a man with a "squint—funny-like." And the man who had got into the next carriage was a man with a squint. The coincidence was only remarkable because I was in a veritable net of suspicion. And when I examined the particulars it was his companion who had jostled me—I might, to be thoroughly suspicious, say shoved me. Why had I been shoved? Perhaps it was an accident, and the two men had no relation to each other, nor the second man with the squint to Mrs. Main's friend. But, on the other hand, that shove came near sending me through the open doorway of the next carriage, and but for my own obstinacy I might now be seated in the seclusion of that carriage with my two neighbors in an express that did not stop for forty miles.

At Paddington I took a cab. I could see the man with the squint nowhere, and I looked for him pretty sharply. His companion's face I had not seen, and should not, of course, recognize again. It was quite possible that they had been passengers to an intermediate station only, in which case, as I conceived, I had been using my imagination in vain. It was by this time a little after 6, and, as the dead season had fully set in, the streets in the west end were bare of carriages, but a concourse of people still streamed along the pavements—the tide of life ran, to all appearance, as populous as ever. When I reached my chambers in the



I recognized that horrid squint.

Temple I made a more suitable toilet for the town, and, that completed, found my watch stood at 7:30. The night was rapidly descending, and already the elms in the gardens of the court were enveloped in the somber shadows of evening. As I stood peering out of the window I was struck roughly into another mood by the apparition of a face on the pavement below. It came suddenly into the lamplight and vanished in the next instant, but I had recognized that horrid squint in the flash. I drew away sharply and considered. I will confess the discovery chagrined me and set the pulses throbbing in my body. There could be no doubt that the fellow had tracked me here and was watching for me to come out. Here again was the hand of my unscrupulous enemy, striking at me 300 miles away and in the heart of London. But I must needs come to a determination promptly. I saw at once that my plans must be relaid. These men were after the piece of parchment I had in my pocket. I began to feel desperate. I felt the pocketbook under my hand. I certainly could not think of leaving it, as I had intended, in my rooms, for if I knew anything of these gentry I should return to find the place rifled. There was little they would stick at, as I had had proof. I made up my mind to try for Sheppard. It was possible that he was in town, and in any case I would not leave the document off my person. In the meantime I was feeling extremely hungry and was resolved to make a meal. It was certain the scoundrels would not assail me in the open.

I scrutinized the court as I came out, but naturally the spies were not likely to show themselves. Then I drove to the Cafe Royal and enjoyed an excellent dinner. From where I sat in the dining room I had a view through an open door of the great hall beyond, in which the representatives of a dozen nationalities drank and chattered and played their dominos. Halfway through my meal I looked up, and there was my friend unobtrusively sipping a glass of vermouth right opposite the doorway. It was plain that I was followed still, as I had suspected would be the case. To lose sight of me on the chance that I had bestowed what they wanted in my rooms was not a piece of their policy. I suppose the room would keep. I had a good view of the fellow, and as I leisurely drank my wine I watched him. Clearly I was to have an adventure for my pains, and the first thing was to run Sheppard to earth.

When I got out into the street I was conscious that the man was behind me, and, turning quickly, I confronted him. My action was so abrupt that it took him by surprise, but he took off his hat politely and with a "Pardon, sir!" in a slightly foreign accent, avoided the collision that had been imminent. I jumped into a cab and drove straight to Sheppard's rooms in Down street. As luck would have it, he was out, but it was a relief to find that he was in town. According to the maid, he was to be back in the morning. In considerable disappointment I ran down the stairs and banged the front door, and there was my man across the roadway.

I confess that I began for the first time to have the feeling of being hunted. I strode over to him.

"What the devil do you want?" I asked angrily.

"Sir!" said he and looked up at me as if in surprise.

"What the devil do you want?" I repeated.

There was a slight pause, and with my hand in my pocket I ostentatiously cocked the revolver. The faint click caught his ear.

"I am desirous to walk about the street, sir," he said softly. "I have made up my mind to see London by night. It is var' beautiful."

"Very well," thought I, for it was plainly of no use to deal with the rascal. "You may walk as much as you like. I am for a cab."

And into a cab again I jumped. "Drive—west—anywhere," said I at last to the questioning cabman. "I'll direct you."

I had this dilemma now before me—that I dared not go back to my rooms. The risk was too extravagant. And the question as to where I was to pass the night became important, as it was now past 11. Of course I could go to a hotel, where I should be comparatively safe, but I had no fancy to spend the long hours of darkness awake and on my guard on the chance that this scoundrel would make an attempt on my room. No, I must be rid of him first. As the cab drove off I peeped through the little window at the back and saw my squinting friend in conversation with another man, no doubt the second of the gang.

The cab passed through Knightsbridge and toward Kensington, and then I turned the driver through the park for Bayswater. Presently I was aware of a rattling behind and looking out through my spy hole again perceived a second cab close upon us.

"Very well," said I to myself. "You shall have your wish. A stern chase is a long chase."

I fancy my cabman must have thought me near upon a lunatic. I chopped and changed his directions a dozen times, and during the next two hours we visited quite half of the metropolis.

You will doubtless dub me a fool in that I didn't forthwith take the shelter of the law and put myself under safe custody. But I had two reasons against that—the one, that I had a sort of informal bargain with Sercombe not to bring the authorities into this feud, but to fight out a private war; the other, that I would see these scoundrels in the infernal regions before I surrendered to them. And when you come to think of it, to call in the police for help in the distinctly illegal job which occupied me would hardly be in taste. So there was nothing for it but the road, and the road it was for the next two hours and more. By that time my cab horse, a fine upstanding chestnut, had fairly run himself down, and so I hoped had my pursuers' cab. But of this I could not be certain, and, in any case, it was not their object to provoke an open fracas. As I imagined, they merely sought to run me to earth somewhere. And it was obvious by now that I could not drive about in cabs all night.

Somewhere between 1 and 2 I found myself again in Kensington, or, rather, in that region of respectable, desolate and gloomy houses lying about Gloucester road. The chase had to end somehow. We drove up a road dimly lighted and narrow. I suppose my cabman must have been almost as weary as I, and probably more sleepy. At any rate, I had ceased to guide him for some time. He had taken the initiative himself, constituting himself, I conceive, the guardian of this harmless lunatic. At all events, it was soon plain that we had entered a cul-de-sac. The situation pricked my resolution to the proper point of action. As it fell out, a flare of gas streamed from the fan lights in a large and commodious house near the bottom of the road, seeming to show that the inmates had not yet retired, and, acting on my resolution in a second, I stopped the man and jumped out before the door. As I did so the second cab also came to a pause. My cab turned slowly round and stopped abreast of his fellow. I would swear I saw the two figures slight. God knows what the cabmen made of it all. I pulled at the bell, but for a time could get no answer. But at last, and in response to a louder peal than usual, the door was opened, and there confronted me a tall, slight man something near my own age in evening dress.

"Who the devil may you be?" says he, surveying me from top to toe with a puzzled look.

"Sir," said I, "this is no place upon your doorstep to explain to you. But I am in immediate need of a kindly and, and if you will have the goodness to bear with me and allow me two minutes in your private room I make no doubt that I can satisfy you."

"Faith," said he, smiling rather foolishly, "if it is a hand you want, you must needs look for one steadier than mine."

And, true enough, there he was swaying somewhat unsteadily upon his legs and presenting me a face flushed with the use of liquor. But this was no moment for parleying, and I pressed my point promptly.

"Then, pray, let me have the door for you," said I, stepping in forthwith. And without more ado I closed the great door with a bang.

He led the way decently enough into a neighboring room and, turning up the gas, faced me. "This is all very well," says he more soberly, "But I have still to learn who the devil you may be."

"My name, sir, is immaterial," I replied. "But it is your services I want in a certain crisis, and if you be a gentleman, as I see you are, I shall have no doubt of the issue."

He stared at me for some moments in silence. "Pray state your case," he said politely and sticking the stump of a cigar in his mouth, but supporting himself upon the table.

"You ask me my name?" I answered. "Well, there is no concealment I would practice on you, and so it is Greatorex, for what use you may care to make of it."

"Mine's Winthorp," he explained—"Lord Winthorp. You may have heard of me recently—corespondent in divorce case, you know."

"The situation is easily settled," said I. "I have something of value upon me, and I have been chased by two rascals in a cab. The light was burning in your house, and so I took the liberty of asking your assistance to evade them."

"Quite right," says the young fool, taking the cigar from his mouth, "quite right. Stolen goods?" he asked comically.

"My lord," said I, with a smile, "if it were, do you think a thief like myself would confess it?"

He broke out laughing and, without any more ado beckoned me to follow and walked in his uncertain gait across the hall and toward a farther room, from which issued a great noise of talk and laughter. Flinging the door open, he strode in.

"Gentlemen," said he, "here is another guest to join us. Pray charge your glasses."

Half a dozen young gentlemen were spread about the huge room, some at a card table, and a generous row of bottles testified to the dominant occupation of the evening. A vaguous but hearty laugh greeted this.

"I must explain to you, gentlemen," continued my host, lighting another cigar, "that Mr.—Mr. What's-his—this gentleman is engaged in the perilous task of escaping from a hostile armament outside. And it is our duty, I need not say, as English gentlemen to rescue him."

A wild hooray from the party was the salutation with which this sentiment was met.

"The officers of the law, gentlemen," continued my host, pouring out a glass of spirit with an unsteady hand, "are even now at our gates, preparing to batter down the portcullis. Gentlemen, if I ask you to stand by us, shall I ask in vain?"

A unanimous negative, shouted at the ceiling, greeted his question. As a slight silence ensued I thought it my time to venture for myself.

"In the circumstances, gentlemen"—said I suavely.

"Circumstances be hanged!" interrupted Lord Winthorp. "While I have a humble roof over my head the needy and the criminal shall never want shelter."

An interval of silence ensued, which one of his companions chose to break on his own account by starting up and shouting:

"Let us go and break up the foe, Johnny."

"Gentlemen," said I, raising my voice above the din, for we should never reach the end at this rate, "the so called foe is unworthy of your steel. I only ask permission to go forth by a back way and leave you to the pleasant recreation I have so rudely interrupted."

"Let him stay and take a hand," said some one, and a chorus of assent went up.

"Gentlemen," said I, with great politeness, "I should be charmed to join you in your game but that it must be apparent to you that I am playing a bigger game tonight. The cards are all against me, and I must use all my wits. Lord Winthorp, is there a back way from your house?"

The young nobleman roused himself. "My servants tell me," said he, "that there is a garden at the back of the house, but I wouldn't swear to it. However, if you like to try, we'll light the way."

"Gentlemen," said he, "here is another guest."

But this was not to my taste, for I was in no humor to attract my pursuers by this drunken concourse with lights.

"I think," I said, "that your silent prayers would serve me better. And if you will show me the garden I will make shift for myself. And be assured," said I, with great ceremony, "that it will remain one of the red letter days in my life to have met so courteous a host as Lord Winthorp and so genial a company as the present."

The garden was black and silent when the door closed upon me. I listened for a few minutes, but could hear no sound save that of laughter from the house. Then I scrambled among the bushes at the back of the house and presently came upon a high wall. Climbing to the top of this with difficulty, I looked down upon a road, and, lowering myself softly, I dropped upon the footpath. Right and left no one was visible, with which fact, much enheartened, I walked briskly away. I suppose I had gone about a mile among the maze of roads when I at last happened upon a hansom and drove to a hotel. No sign of my enemy was visible, and for all I knew or cared they were still watching outside Lord Winthorp's windows.

CHAPTER VIII.

Now that I had given my pursuers the slip I was confident that I should not be at further trouble with them for the present, for once I and my parcel were out of their sight for any space of time there could be little doubt in their minds that I would accept the chance to dispose of it. But, as a matter of fact, I did nothing of the kind. The document would be of little use deposited in some London safe. It might be of considerable value down at the castle. I still hugged my secret in my pocket and, hugging it, set out next morning to find Sheppard. I caught him upon his return about midday and opened the situation to him over lunch. It did me good to see his eyes sparkle at the recitation.

"Why, this is the seventeenth century at least, Ned," said he in his excite-

BLOOD IMPURITIES

Three Things Cause Them.—One Thing Cures Them.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO.
14 Union St., Sept. 15th 1905.

It gives me much pleasure to certify that "Fruit-a-tives" have entirely cured me of a disagreeable skin disease.

I had a dreadful rash on my face, arms and hands, the rash was red and itchy and my face and hands were fearfully swollen. I had a pain in my back, and I was very ill. I was advised to take "Fruit-a-tives" to purify the blood and I am very thankful that I took this medicine. After I had taken one box of the tablets, I was much better; and when I had taken two boxes, the rash was entirely gone, the swelling in face and hands was gone, the pain in the back had left me, and I was quite well again, and my complexion is clearer than it has been for years. I want to thank "Fruit-a-tives" for this great cure—as before I used this medicine I had used many kinds of salves and took quantities of medicine—but these did me no good. But "Fruit-a-tives" at once seemed to do me good—and they entirely took away the fearful rash.

(Sgd.) Mrs. F. Maillhiot.

This case of Mrs. Maillhiot proves one great truth—that you can't CURE pimples, blackheads, blotches, red rash and other skin diseases with salves and ointments.

Simply because the disease is not with the skin but WITH THE BLOOD. The skin trouble is the RESULT of blood poisoning.

"Fruit-a-tives" proves this because when salves and ointments are left off—and "Fruit-a-tives" taken to purify and enrich the blood, the skin diseases are cured to stay cured.

Pimples, red rash, eczema etc., come from disease of one of three organs—liver, kidneys or stomach. It may be all three—but certainly one. And this one affects the other two.

And there will be skin disease
—as long as the bowels are constipated
—as long as the kidneys retain urea or tissue waste
—as long as the stomach does not digest food properly and the body is improperly nourished

Ointments won't cure—salves won't cure—soaps won't cure. Because the trouble is the BLOOD—not the skin. But "Fruit-a-tives" will cure—"Fruit-a-tives" do cure—because "Fruit-a-tives" PURIFY THE BLOOD.

"Fruit-a-tives" act on the liver—stimulate it to excrete more bile—and thus make the bowels move regularly every day. This rids the system of one source of blood poisoning. These famous liver tablets act on the kidneys—prevent the formation of excessive uric acid—and insure the kidneys being strong and healthy. They act on the skin—strengthen the glands and stimulate them to throw off the impurities which the blood brings to them.

With bowels, liver, kidneys, stomach and skin working properly—the blood is pure and rich—and there can be no pimples or blemishes to mar the complexion.

At all druggists or sent postpaid on receipt of price—50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50.

The Adventurers

ment. "A treasure, buccaneers and a high handed, murderous gang! Do I stand on my head or my heels?" And he smacked his thigh in sheer joyousness.

"This is well enough," I replied, "but you forget that it is no child's play. This is mighty serious, if I have a notion of the men, and we must face the case pretty brazenly and boldly if we decide to go forward."

He sprang from his chair. "My dear fellow, you amaze me," said he. "You talk in this dubious way about going forward, with an adventure like this ahead! If you cock a white feather, my good Ned, I will take the place off your hands and carry on the game on my own account. That's my feeling."

"So far, good," said I. "I wanted to be quite open with you, and, as for that, between you and me I have every intention of sticking to it. But this is the least part of the matter. We can make up our minds to go on, but what is going on?"

Sheppard picked up a time table. "Imprimis," said he, "to catch the 3:45 train to Raymond. If you'll drive straight to your rooms I'll meet you at Paddington."

When I got to the station he was as good as his word, and, stimulated by his high spirits, I entered busily into possible plans, in which occupation we passed most of the journey.

The twenty-four hours had passed uneventfully at the castle, but I found Montgomery on the watch and very eager. He had armed himself with a shotgun, which he dragged about with him very ostentatiously, and indeed I had some ado to prevent him sitting down to dinner with it. Sheppard had been informed of his presence, and the two promised to be capital friends. Sheppard always had a way direct to the heart of new acquaintances and, with his indomitable gayety and his impulsive energy, was exceedingly attractive to Montgomery. I myself was met with sincere respect, tempered by a little awe; but the boy showed immediate signs of a positive affection for Sheppard.

That evening we held a council of war. And, first, Montgomery must be initiated into the mystery. The bare facts took away his breath and inspired him apparently more with a desire for bloodshed than for the treasure itself.

"I can tell you this, Mr. Sheppard, that if I sight either of the scoundrels within shooting range I'll empty both barrels into them on the off chance. And of that I'll give 'em warning."

"Bravo!" said Sheppard, slapping him on the back and smiling his pleasant smile. "You're the man for my money, old cock!"

"And now," I resumed, "we are brought front to front with affairs. We have half the paper. How are we to get possession of the other?"

"It is plain enough," said Sheppard, "that one of those fellows, Sercombe or Hood, has it—Hood for choice, and a pretty scoundrel he must be, from all you say of him. You must introduce me to your friend Hood. I have a fancy for Hood."

As it fell out he had an earlier chance of the acquaintance than either of us anticipated. Shortly after breakfast on the following morning the maid brought me word that Captain Sercombe was in the library and begged to see me.

"Here is a pretty piece of impudence," said Sheppard, smiling. "Confound the man, but I like him! By all means let us have him up."

He looked at me. "Not at all," said I, "but since there is nothing to steal in the library save some hundreds of musty volumes, let him wait upon our pleasure."

"And my toe," growled Montgomery, assuming a ferocious expression.

"No, no, my dear lad," said Sheppard, with his gentle and insinuating smile. "You are too forward, too precocious in your arguments. Let us beg the captain, whom, I confess, I am dying to see well basted, but let it be by more diplomatic processes."

"Very well, come on," said I, rising, for, to say the truth, I was curious to know the man's business with me. We descended in file into the library. Sercombe, who was staring out of the window and curling his mustache with an air of abstraction, turned rapidly and, putting his heels together, gave me a military bow.

"Ah, here is my young friend of the claret!" he exclaimed lightly, nodding briefly to Montgomery, who fixed a stolid and somewhat glowering glance upon him. Then his eye fell on Sheppard, whom he observed with dispassionate curiosity.

"I was in hopes to have met you alone, Mr. Greatorex," with a little hesitation showing in his voice.

"These are my friends," said I, "from whom I have no secrets."

"Allow me to introduce myself," said Sheppard politely, stepping forward, "since Mr. Greatorex has overlooked the formality. Reginald Sheppard, Captain Sercombe—a gentleman, as I hope, but of no occupation and a vast deal of ambition, who is proud to make the acquaintance of so notorious a free companion as yourself."

Sercombe stared, somewhat discomposed by this deliverance, but, recovering himself, smiled genially. "The pride, sir, is on my side to encounter so pleasant a gentleman." Then he looked at me. "I take it, Mr. Greatorex, that I may state my business here."

"By all means," I answered curtly, "and the sooner the better."

"To be brief, Mr. Greatorex," he said, "I have come to strike a bargain with you. I will confess that so far you have outmaneuvered us. I will go so far as to say that I thought I had you cornered yesterday. Yesterday morning I would not have put 2 crowns upon your appearance in the race. But you have sharp eyes, sir, and you are a sharper man than I had reckoned. But, upon the other hand, where do you stand? I ask you to consider that. And what price do you put on your chances? You have, I should guess, about as much chance to lay your hands on what you want as I have. Is that so?"

"I am not here to discuss my chances with you, but to listen to you, sir," said I. "What have you to say?"

He made a slight grimace, delivering it instinctively to Sheppard and went on: "Well, I suppose what you have to say will keep. What I have won't, if we are either of us to get any further. We stand upon equal terms now, Mr. Greatorex, as you will see, but those terms are impracticable. You have only one half of a secret, and we have the other, and it will take a cleverer man than you to find our half, as I make no doubt you also have yours in pretty safe hiding. I don't reckon to hunt London for a piece of paper. But this brings me to my point. Let us show our hands. Let me see what you have in yours, and I give you the word of a gentleman you shall see all mine."

He paused and interrogated me a moment silently.

"Since the captain gives his word as a gentleman," put in Sheppard's suave voice, "I think we stand on safe ground. For my part I am quite willing to give mine as a burglar."

Sercombe flashed a glance of annoyance at him.

"Will you be more explicit?" said I.

"I thought you took me," said he. "It's plain enough. Let us piece the document together, read it and start fair on the knowledge. That places us again on equal terms, only with this difference, that the best man wins. Whereas now a man may be Satan himself and fail till the crack of doom."

Sheppard threw an eager glance at me, and I read assent in it. Nor was I indisposed to agree to the proposal, odd and unexpected as it came and involving us, as it foreshadowed, in all the outrages of actual warfare. Yet upon so pregnant a proposition I dared not make up my mind on the instant, and I suppose the man saw this, for, turning, he moved to the windows again and looked out upon the lawns, humming to himself. Ere he had turned again and faced me with his question in his eyes I had made up my mind:

"I agree," I said.

Sheppard whistled softly and, as if imitating the captain, leaded forth upon the window. A light of satisfaction played in Sercombe's gray-green eyes for an instant. As for Montgomery, I do not suppose that he had any clear notion of what it was all about.

"Then," said Sercombe, "the sooner the better, and what time better than today?"

"I agree to today," I replied.

"Good! And now there remain only the place and time," said he.

"I have no wish to have my head broken," said I bluffly, "or to be mistaken for a hare, and so I say the castle. If you grant that, you may fix your own time."

"I was in hopes," he said, smiling, for he took no offense at my plainness of speech, "that we might have settled the matter over a little dinner. Hood, an excellent host, I find, is anxious to show you what the Woodman can do when he spreads himself. And a full stomach, watered with wine, is better for business, as my young friend here knows. But you shall have it your own way."

"By all means let it be a dinner," said Sheppard, suddenly springing up from his seat. "Mr. Greatorex, I am sure, would be loath to rob you of your pleasure, Captain Sercombe, and in his name I make bold to offer you the hospitality of the castle."

I started in amazement and opened my mouth to refuse, but was saved the trouble by the captain's answer. He was a good deal disconcerted.

"I fear," said he, "that the hospitality would be reluctant on Mr. Greatorex's part."

"Not at all," said I graciously. "A distinguished soldier like Captain Sercombe is always welcome to my house."

He hesitated, and then, coloring slightly, "I am not alone," said he.

Sheppard shot me a glance of triumph, as who would say, "I thought we should corner him."

"No doubt Mr. Greatorex would gladly entertain the other gentleman," he suggested.

The captain looked at him, and a grin spread slowly over his features. "No," he said; "but, with Mr. Greatorex's permission, the other gentleman shall entertain us."

"I fancy," he continued, smiling, "that Hood is not a stranger to the castle ways, and he makes a good waiter."

The idea tickled me. "Let us have Hood by all means," I said. "I had an excellent character for him from Mr. Kesteven."

"I will bring Hood," said the captain gravely and, taking up his hat, made to go.

The dinner was set for 7 o'clock, and I fancy that all three looked forward to it with considerable expectation. Sercombe arrived punctual to the hour, and a little later I entered the morning room to meet him. He sat in a chair, lounging very coolly, a light overcoat covering his evening dress, and by his side stood Hood, also in the orthodox costume and looking, as I could not help noticing, uncommonly spruce and servant-like.

"I am here, Mr. Greatorex, to the moment," said Sercombe in his leisurely voice, "and I go bail that I have brought you an invaluable ally. With your permission, Hood will now retire to the kitchen."

The innkeeper insensibly straightened himself, standing to attention like a graven image, and I signed my assent.

"This is entirely your affair, Captain Sercombe," said I, "and you may do what you like with your own property." I turned to Hood. "You will find Mrs. Main in the servants' hall," I said.

With his gliding, serpentine tread, Hood made a motion of respect and vanished. Sercombe stared after him, meditating, and gnawed his mustache with a frown, which seemed to me to indicate a certain touch of perplexity. But he brightened at once and talked very freely and in his old manner till dinner was served. The interior significance of our dinner party would not have been visible to a stranger. For the main part, that preliminary skirmish was occupied by conversation the most distant from the subject we all had at heart. It was Sercombe himself who set the example of reserve, and we followed meekly enough. When I say reserve I am thinking only of one particular point, for heaven knows that his talk was sufficiently frank upon other topics. As I had occasion to take note now and subsequently, the man was by nature framed for a good talker, and, although he had every prejudice against him, and started, so to speak, with a great handicap, he soon wore down the feelings with which we embarked upon the entertainment. And it was not until we had broached a sort of good fellowship and the evening was far spent that anything happened to mar our growing harmony.

It fell out thus: Sercombe himself had just concluded an amusing narrative of his experiences among the brigands of Calabria, and Sheppard resumed the conversation with an adventure of his own. The evening had fallen dark and cloudy, and amid the starlike candles that illumined the room the dark figure of Hood moved noiselessly and constantly. I had heard this story of Sheppard's, which, indeed, was not very exciting, and my mind, swaying from its polite duty, rested unconsciously upon the new innkeeper. As I watched him I saw the two men exchange glances—an interrogating look upon Sercombe's part, a baffling and inscrutable look from Hood. There followed an instant's pause, and then the man approached the master with the pretext of a dish. Sercombe spoke low and across his shoulder, nervously exploring the contents of the dish with a spoon. Hood said nothing and, raising his eyes, softly fixed them upon me at the other end of the table. For a moment we regarded each other luminously, and then his glance fell politely away. Sercombe still whispered and, I thought, with a growing anxiety. It was time for me to interfere.

"Captain Sercombe," I cried sharply, breaking upon the tail of Sheppard's yarn, "these communications are not included in the compact."

The captain started, and his face reddened deeper, but he was always a cool hand.

"I must ask you to remember, Mr. Greatorex," said he suavely, "that I am your guest."

"That is true," said Sheppard, nodding his head.

Sercombe looked at me with some asperity.

"I think, sir," said he, "that in the circumstances you will see that you have overstepped the privileges of gentlemen."

"The word is hardly in the case. I think we are agreed that it is as thieves we meet," interjected Sheppard smoothly.

"You are right, Captain Sercombe," I answered, being in my turn in command of myself, "and I offer you my apology for the rudeness, but I am at least the master of my own servants, and Hood shall keep his distance and not hang about annoying my guests." With which I ordered him forthwith to the window, a command which he hastened to obey almost by anticipation.

I must say that this unpleasant episode at once changed the atmosphere of the room. On the whole, I did not regret this, as I conceived that we had perhaps reached the proper term of our familiarity with Sercombe. It was strange to see the instant revolution in our mutual attitudes. Whether Sercombe himself had been as easy as he had previously seemed, or whether he had acted a part for our benefit, I cannot say, but it is certain that now he was charged with anxiety. Now and again his eyes, puffed and bloodshot, flickered uneasily on Hood, where the man stood in his corner, a memorial of black sobriety, and his demeanor was carefully under restraint. The situation became a little disagreeable, and I thought the time had arrived to end it.

"Captain Sercombe," I said, quite formally, "I fancy our dinner, such as it is, is over, and if you will table no more wine perhaps we had better get to business."

"Certainly, sir," said the captain cheerfully and draining his glass. "I am at your service."

I looked at Hood. "It is time now," said I, "that we were alone." And I waited to see the man move.

A quick exchange of glances took place between them, and then the innkeeper turned his back on us and busied himself with the plates upon the sideboard.

Sercombe colored angrily and was visibly disconcerted. "I beg your pardon, sir," said he, with a slight stammer, "but I have already had the honor of informing you that I am not alone in this matter."

"Really," said Sheppard gently, "I do not think we can invite our servants to discuss this matter with us."

Sercombe bit his lip, and after a glance at Hood, who still kept his attitude, "I understand your feeling, gentlemen," he replied, "and, in fact, I sympathize with it. But"—

He hesitated, and I began to perceive for the first time how far he was involved with the other and to what extent he was under his control. It was evident that he was chagrined by his position.

"Leave the room, Hood," said I, not that I had any certain intention that he should quit us, but rather out of curiosity as to what would ensue. The issue surprised me. Hood turned obediently on his heel and made for the door. As it closed upon him Sercombe turned to us and broke out with expostulation:

"You are right, gentlemen. I agree with you. These things are better managed between gentlemen. But"—His expostulation dropped in evidence of his returning self possession, which I had had occasion already to admire, and I was to admire him still more at this moment. "You will perceive, Mr. Greatorex," he said abruptly, but with a sudden suavity of voice, "that, as you have just pronounced, we have concluded our friendly dinner, and it is to business that we turn. I take it, therefore, that we are no longer here in the capacity of hosts and guests."

"True," said I.

"Then," he exclaimed triumphantly, "Hood, I take it, is no longer a servant?"

"Captain Sercombe is right," said Sheppard promptly, turning to me, "and, by your leave, Ned, I will ring and have him up."

"I accept your theory," I answered. "Let us have him up, certainly."

Mercurial.

The adjective mercurial, like many others, came into ordinary speech from the realm of astrology. In astrological language a mercurial man was one born under the influence of Mercury, when Mercury was in the ascendant, and therefore possessed of the mental qualities supposed to distinguish the heathen deity of that name.

Hume.

Hume, the historian, was said to be the ugliest man of his time. His face was fat, coarse and vulgar, with no striking or pleasing feature.

CUT GLASS.

The Way to Make It Show to the Best Advantage.

Cut glass should never be placed among light colored surroundings, particularly cream or yellow. The crystal gathers all yellow light to itself, so that the effect is lacking in the sparkle and brilliancy that should be the principal charm of cut glass. There is also a noticeable lack of iridescence. One often sees a whole cabinet, probably light oak, full of a small fortune in glass, backed by a mirror. The result is a mere jumble of crystal with no meaning whatever, except perhaps to thrust at the observer an immense money value. The truly artistic eye is not impressed at all.

The ideal setting for cut glass is plain mahogany. It has a richness of color and a dullness of tone that are admirably suited to bring out all the best in the glass. Moreover, there should be no mirrors, for that only adds confusion. Then pieces should have plenty of room. No handsomer effect could be obtained than a bowl or dish standing on a mahogany shelf or cabinet with no other piece within at least twelve inches of it. If the housewife hasn't enough room for all this or has too many pieces to be extravagant with space let her put some away and change from time to time. It is better than having a congested mass where each piece robs the other of its fine effect.

The next best to mahogany is dark oak, bog and Flemish, or velvet or black or dark green or deep maroon. Furthermore, cut glass should be kept immaculate. Scrubbings with warm water and soap and thorough rinsings in cold water should occur very often.

Serfdom in Hungary.

In some parts of Hungary serfdom of the old Russian type still prevails. The peasant is obliged to work fifty days each year for his landlord without pay, the time to be chosen by the latter, who is almost sure to choose the season when the poor man can least afford to work for nothing. This system led to the insurrection in 1808.

Identical With the Bible.

A Babylonian tablet in the British museum which has been deciphered has an account of the death of King Sennacherib almost identical with that in the Bible (II Kings xix, 37).

An Old Wooden Church.

There is in Norway a wooden church of unknown age, but undoubtedly several hundred years old, which is held to illustrate old methods of building admirably. The queer, peaked, many angled roof has almost an oriental appearance.

Metal Money.

Before the introduction of coins and mints gold and silver passed by weight in the forms of lumps, buttons, wedges or spikes.

Origin of the Honeymoon.

The term "honeymoon" was not suggested by the sweetness of that period of bliss, but originated through a custom of the Germans of old which compelled the newly wedded to drink nothing but mead made of honey during the thirty days following the marriage.

LORD MASHAM TELLS LIFE STORY

Great Inventor of the Last Century Relates Early Struggles.

Lord Masham, one of the greatest inventors of the last century, has published a handsomely bound and interesting volume telling the story of his struggles and his triumphs in Yorkshire, and in Manningham particularly, where the very name of Masham is revered, for his colossal schemes have meant food for thousands.

Wool combing and silk combing were the special studies of Lord Masham, who, with his brother, commenced business in 1838 as worsted spinners and manufacturers under the name of J. and S. C. Lister.

The inventive genius of the man speedily asserted itself, and in 1844 he took out his first patent for the fringing of shawls. Many disappointments attended his early efforts to improve wool combing. He took out patents for washing and preparing long and short wool, and in 1853 finished his research in this direction by patenting a process for the treating of soapsuds.

"For many years," he says, "I used to boast that I kept my house out of my drain, as it made me several thousands a year. In ten years, from 1842 to 1853, I had left nothing much for any one else to do except to improve upon what I had done."

The silk comb was the result of purchasing the silk waste. "It looked to me to be nothing but rubbish" at a halfpenny per pound. Experiments with it meant a great expenditure, and Lord Masham tells an interesting story of the burden which he had taken upon himself. He wanted assistance and the governor of the Bank of England sent for him, and with great kindness and consideration asked him questions with a view to affording him help. Finally came the question as to whether he thought he could pay his way. Lord Masham says his pride rose in a moment, and, with color in his face, he said he thought he could. "We are delighted to hear it," said the governor. "Good morning," and the visitor was bowed out.

When in the street he saw his folly. "It would have saved me a world of trouble and immense loss if I had only pocketed my pride," he writes, "and asked for assistance." Disaster followed, and the year 1857 ended in a loss of £150,000 ($750,000).

In 1864, at the age of fifty, he had to begin life's battle over again, and then fortune smiled again. "The special comb proved a god send."

There was immense value in the level, regular silver that the comb produced, and "one memorable year we had orders for all the yarn we could make at twenty-three shilling ($5.75) a pound, and we were only paying for the rubbish from sixpence to a shilling."

The celebrated Manningham plush loom was the result of the joint labors of Lord Masham and Mr. Reixach, and mainly through its use the profits of the business for several years were £200,000 ($1,000,000) a year.

THE CHEST.

Revival of an Old Time Favorite. Some of Its Modern Phases.

The chest, one of the earliest articles of furniture for the home, has lately had a revival of favor. Its first intention of usefulness was obviously as a holder for clothes and valuables; but in the absence of chairs and tables, which appeared as later inventions for home comfort, the chest combined a threefold utility. At times, also, when its owner went traveling the chest was taken along like the modern trunk.

Among the first possessions to come over to our new country with the Dutch and English colonists was naturally the wooden chest. In some instances it was only the plainest kind of pine box, set on low supports and fitted with a lock, such as Elder Brewster brought into the Plymouth colony, or it may have been a paneled oak chest, the decorations following the English interiors of the fourteenth century; or, carved in heavy relief, the chest represented the Elizabethan or Jacobean period of decoration.

The popularity of the chest called forth a variety of treatment even under the limitations of its shape and size. Oak was the material most desired in its construction, although walnut, cypress and cedar were also used. Pine was of necessity the choice when expense was considered, and as a matter of economy this wood was often substituted for a more costly wood at the back and on the inside. The hard woods were usually left in the natural color, and pine was painted.

Those who are fortunate enough to inherit an old chest that is in good condition will find it still useful among the many up to date contrivances of our twentieth century. A chest on a frame may be reserved for an infant's wardrobe, or it may hold some special linen for the table or beds. A low chest may be placed in a recessed window for a seat or kept in a hall for a bench. It may have a position of honor beside the hearth to hold kindlings or, if large enough, may be used for logs of wood for the open fire. For the latter office the chest achieves so fitting a service that the antique specimens cannot supply the demand. The mission furniture has produced a chest distinctive of its type, made of dark oak, with iron hinges and lock, or, as a modification of its plain lines, the mission chest is sometimes decorated with a border, painted or burned upon the wood. A mahogany chest is often seen ornamented with carving or delicate lines of satinwood.

To bring the chest into harmonious relations with the woodwork or furniture of a special room—Flemish, forest green, weathered oak, fumed oak or silver maple—it may be made of the same material and covered with the same finish.—Delineator.

Cream one tablespoonful of butter, beat in two cupfuls and a half of sugar and three eggs, then add one nutmeg, grated, the grated rind of half of a lemon, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and sufficient sifted flour to make a soft dough. Roll out and cut in any desired shapes, then cover with a floured cloth and let stand on the board for half an hour to stiffen. Drop a few at a time in deep smoking hot fat. They will cook through in from four to five minutes. Drain and when cooled roll in powdered sugar.—Table Talk.

An Increase of Wants.

The increase of wants is alleged by modern economists to be a sign of progress, but it is not always evidence of the most exhilarating kind to those who have to pay for the satisfaction of the wants.

THE MANTEL.

If It Doesn't Look Well, See if It Won't Come Off.

Women of artistic sensibilities obliged to rent cheap houses or apartments have learned to dread what the agent describes as "a mantel." This mantel is usually a squarish structure with a forest of brackets and Ionic pillars. Over it run riot machine carved medallions and Chinese frets.

They are made presumably by the thousand and are set up in the different dwellings without regard to the woodwork already existing there. Almost invariably there is a simulated fireplace with ornate blower suggestion in metal. After struggling for some months to hide, conceal, build over or in any way blot out one of these mantel monstrosities a woman found a delightfully simple solution. She discovered that the whole affair, far from being built into the woodwork, as she had supposed, was in fact barely attached to it. A quarter to the janitor and the bugbear was carried off bodily to the cellar, where it still languishes. The little room gained considerably in space as well as in simplicity by the change. See if your mantel won't come off.—New York Press.

VENETIAN FOOTBALL.

How the Game Was Played in Venice Several Centuries Ago.

A book published at Venice in 1555 by Antonio Scaino relates methods of play in a real football that was actually called by the same name. The field "was so large that no one, however strong, could quite throw a stone from one end to the other," and it was about half as wide. Twenty, thirty or forty persons could participate on a side, the number being regulated by the size of the available field. Goals were set up at either end. No one was permitted to strike the ball with the outstretched arm or with anything he might carry in his hand. Nevertheless he was permitted to "strike the ball with whatever part of his body that he pleased." If the ball came rolling toward him he was allowed to kick it, the inference being that if it were lying still he could not do so. The field was divided by a transverse line "into two equal parts, and in the middle lay the ball. The players were chosen, those who were going to make up the opposing parties, by means of colors, by which, in the struggle of the contest, each could recognize his own side. When the signal was given by the roll of the drum or the blast of a trumpet a player rushed forward, one who had been chosen by lot to be the first to kick the ball with his foot. This action was understood to be the beginning of the contest, so that after it it was permitted to no one from either party to seize it, to strike it and to drive it as victor over the goal. It was perhaps from the method of beginning the game that it was called football."

These Italian games had their origin in the ancient pastimes of the Greeks and Romans, and in reality approach nearer to the modern idea of football than do the beginnings of the game in northern countries. Football is believed by some authorities to have been a portion of the worship of the Celtic sun god, one of the rites attendant on the celebrative ceremonies. Some also hold a strong belief that its original form was introduced into England by the Romans.—Dennie P. Meyers in Outing Magazine.

A SERVANT PROBLEM.

Why the Lady of the House Was Ready to Call a Halt.

A lady recently called at the house of a friend, who answered in person the ring at the door. With careworn expression and flurried manner she apologized for the confusion that apparently reigned in the house, saying:

"My parlor maid is upstairs ill—not ill enough to go to the hospital, too ill to work, too far from home to go there, yet needing attention from me. My waitress is having a fit of the sulks, and I have sent her out to do an errand and get some fresh air. The cook is just now not on speaking terms with her husband, the coachman, and is seeking a divorce, so that one or the other must go. The footman came home drunk last night and had to be discharged this morning. My house is at sixes and sevens, my husband lunched downtown, my mother has taken the children and the nursery maid home with her, guests arrive this evening, and I have spent the day in a vain search for help in the house. I belong to a club studying household economics and have allowed it to turn a searchlight on all my household affairs in the interests of society at large. I am now ready to call a halt, to refuse to have my domestic arrangements considered a hunting ground for theorists, to pronounce all such clubs vain mockeries, snares and delusions, inventions of the enemy for squandering time and showing the bitter contrast between abstract theory and concrete reality. The only club I am interested in must provide on tap maids who never get ill or sulky, cooks without a temper and coachmen and footmen of unimpeachable habits."—Lucy M. Salmon in Atlantic.

The Samakuir.

There are weather prophets and weather prophets, but there is a stone which it is asserted unfailingly foretells changes in the weather. This stone was found in Finland many years ago by an explorer and has been watched by scientists with great interest. It is known as the samakuir and presents a white mottled appearance in sunshine, gradually turning from gray to black as a rainstorm approaches. The samakuir is made up of clay, niter and rock salt. In dry weather the salt in the stone is prominent, but when the air is filled with moisture the salt absorbs the moisture and turns black, thus acting as a barometer.

The Forestry Policy of the Government

Advances Foreshadowed by the Government.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Announcement Regarding Inspection of Cheese Factories and Creameries—Debating the Estimates—Opposition Criticisms Sympathetic and Practical—No General Measure of Law Reform This Session.

Toronto, March 9.—Discussion of the estimates occupied most of the time at the afternoon session of the Legislature yesterday, and two hours of the first night sitting since the House opened.

The Opposition continued to display the aggressiveness characteristic of the past few days, and their criticisms, questions and suggestions were to the point.

On a number of questions Government members were drawn out, with the result that several lines of policy were foreshadowed. Chief of these were announcements as to what was to be attempted in the way of farm reforestry; that the question of forestry in its larger phase was the subject of serious consideration, and that no general measure of law reform would be introduced this session.

There was also the statement by Hon. Mr. Hanna that the Board of Health and the Agricultural Department had been consulting in reference to the sanitary condition of cheese factories and creameries. The Government had under consideration the appointment in the ordinary counties of young, competent doctors, with backbone, experienced in bacteriology, who would carry out their duties in this respect without regard to local influences.

A Question of Privilege.

Mr. Thompson rose to a question of privilege in order to correct a newspaper report of his utterances respecting the appointment of the present Sheriff of Simcoe. He had considered the appointment outrageous, and had endeavored, with the members for Cardwell and West Simcoe, to have the gentleman removed from office, as he had carried the promise of the office around during the election campaign in which he took part.

Mr. Preston (Brant) introduced a bill to give municipal councils power to issue debentures to purchase fire engines without getting a vote of the ratepayers.

Amend the Oath.

Mr. McGarry has a bill to amend the Election Act, providing that the oath requiring a voter to swear that he is a natural born or naturalized British subject be changed so as to compel voters to declare that they are not subjects of any foreign country. The object is to debar Canadians who have become citizens of the United States of many years standing, but are temporarily living in Canada, with no intention of settling down, from using the franchise. It is especially desired to cut off this floating vote in New Ontario, where it is stated to have considerable strength. Mr. McGarry also submits an amendment to the Municipal Act, making some changes in the qualifying oath for mayor, reeve and councillor.

Seventeen other bills were introduced, among them being one by Hon. Mr. Cochrane to amend the act to provide for lands for South Africa and 1866 veterans.

To Preserve Forest Trees.

On the House going into supply the estimates of the Agricultural Department were taken up. An interesting discussion on the policy of the Government with respect to reforestration arose out of the remark of Hon. G. P. Graham, that the salary of the director of forestry had not been increased.

Hon. Mr. Ross spoke at length of the importance of forestry, and of the good work of the officials. He thought a chair of forestry should be established in the provincial university.

Hon. Mr. Monteith said Mr. Ross had covered a great deal of the ground that the Government endeavored to reach with the limited means at its disposal. Dr. Clark had been sent out to different centres to educate the people along these lines. It was also suggested that demonstration parks be established in each electoral district, which it was hoped would result in considerable education along the lines of the preservation of forests. At the O. A. C. special attention was being given to forestry subjects.

Mr. Pense hoped the suggestion of his leader that a chair of forestry be established at the university would not be acted upon. It had been tried and was a failure. What was wanted was practical rather than theoretical instruction.

Mr. Duff said there were large tracts of forest land in old Ontario which should never have passed out of the hands of the Crown, and if a portion of this land could be got back he believed in 50 or 100 years they would reforest themselves.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane suggested that timber under 10 inches in diameter should not be cut; then, if the land were left alone it would reforest itself. The department intended to increase the work of reforestration in every practical way.

34,000 New Comers in 1905.

Replying to Col. Atkinson, the Minister of Agriculture said last year the department handled 34,000 immigrants, the year before 24,000, and this year it is expected there would be another increase of 10,000. The cost last year was $4,000, but it was expected the work would be done this year for $3,000.

Mr. Mahaffy put in a word for the lumberman. He as much as the farmer and settler needed education.

Hon. Dr. Pyne thought it would be well if the Education Department would join with the Lands Department in carrying out some of the valuable suggestions offered. He would like to see large plots that had been denuded set aside and reforested. If this were brought about the province would have an immense source of wealth for all time.

Mr. Dunlop suggested that the patentee of forest land be required to leave a percentage of trees.

Mr. Rathbun said a stone wall should be built around a section of the province to prevent the denuding of the forests.

The Premier said that the question of forestry had been recognized by the Government on taking the reins as one of the important matters to be dealt with. No one could charge that the Government was allowing the grass to grow under its feet, but it was better to avoid undue haste.

Cheese Factory Inspection.

Hon. Mr. Graham, speaking anent the salary items for inspectors of factories, referred to the deputation which had waited on the Minister of Agriculture on Wednesday, asking that inspectors have power to close down cheese factories where conditions were unsanitary. He approved of this and made mention of the deleterious efforts of poorly turned-out products.

The Provincial Secretary pointed out that there were a number of counties that were urging that in each county there should be appointed a medical man, who would have charge of the enforcement of the law. Mr. Hanna thought such an official should be something of a bacteriologist or pathologist. It was a question whether one official could cover an entire county properly.

Mr. Dargavel took the view that an expert dairyman would be better qualified than a medical man.

Hon. Mr. Monteith gave assurance that the matter was being fully considered.

Charges Extravagance.

There was an unusually brisk debate in the Legislature yesterday, while the estimates of the Department of Agriculture were passing under review. Nearly all the items had passed and the House committee got to an item of $15,650 under the head of "miscellaneous." Mr. Preston of Brant said when this item passed the committee would have voted $420,000 for the civil Government, an increase from $363,000 and the supplementary estimates were not yet down. He did not so much object to an increasing outlay, as business was expanding, but when the Government was in Opposition they exclaimed loudly against the expenditures. In two years there had been an increase for civil Government of $76,995.

This comparison roused Hon. Mr. Matheson, who declared that the old Government had neglected to collect revenues due the province from friends of that Government. Mr. Preston had not taken into account transfers from other departments to civil Government.

The Speaker left the chair at 6.10.

ROOSEVELT TO BE REMOVED.

Woman Surrenders, Declaring It's His Death or Her's.

New Orleans, March 8.—Declaring that her life will be taken unless she assassinates President Roosevelt, a woman who gave her name as Mrs. W. B. Lewaller of Philadelphia, applied at the central police headquarters yesterday for protection.

She spoke rationally on all general subjects, but the police and coroner decided to retain her for an examination.

Mrs. Lewaller said that she fell in with a party of Socialists in Philadelphia and that she was taken to a room there and made to take an oath against the President, being told that she would be destroyed if it was not executed.

She said she fled to Houston, Texas, but the men followed her there, and that she had then come to New Orleans.

Waterways Commission Adjourns.

Toronto, March 8.—The international waterways commission adjourned last night, to meet on April 6 at Washington.

"No definite conclusion has been reached in the various items which engaged the attention of the commission," said George Gibbons. "We have practically left all the matters over until next month, when definite arrangements will be made concerning the regulation of Niagara water power, the Michigan Central tunnel construction under the Detroit River and the Soo proposition. The engineers reports have virtually been agreed upon by all the members."

Electric Smelting a Success.

Ottawa, March 8.—Dr. Haanel has returned from the Soo, where his efforts in experimenting has clearly demonstrated that Canadian iron ores may be smelted by the electric process. Dr. Haanel is suffering from the strain of his arduous work. He has been asked to deliver an address on his discoveries to the Toronto Canadian Club next Monday.

PLUMBERS AT ASSIZES.

Beginning of Trial of Fourteen Charged With Conspiracy.

Hamilton, March 8.—Nearly the whole day was taken up at the Assizes yesterday by the conspiracy charge against the following fourteen plumbers: Isaac Walsh, Wm. J. Fitzsimmons, W. J. Walsh, Wm. J. Clark, Hugh S. Wallace, J. H. Stewart, J. F. Cummings, C. J. Miles, Henry Harding, S. Mellon, H. Jones J, S. Kennedy, Andrew Rogers, and Wm. D. Smith.

It was agreed that they should be tried separately, beginning with W. J. Walsh. The case will probably last two days.

E. A. DuVernet, K. C., and Crown Attorney Washington are prosecuting, and George S. Lynch-Staunton, appeared for the plumbers.

The charge is that the plumbers conspired and combined during the years 1903 to 1905 to unduly limit facilities for supplying or dealing in commodities, etc.

The first witness was Henry Morley, a local plumber, who said he had all kinds of trouble in getting supplies because he was not a member of the Master Plumbers' Association. Some firms charged him from 25 to 35 per cent. extra, and afterwards refused to sell him goods at any price.

Thomas A. Stevens, London, a dealer in plumbers' supplies, acknowledged that he was a member of the Central Supply Association, and had signed an agreement not to sell to any one outside the Master Plumbers' Association, but he claimed that he did not live up to the agreement, and sold on the quiet to plumbers outside the association. He had to do this secretly, he said, or else he would have lost the trade of the association. Previous to 1904 he charged those outside the association 20 per cent. more than members of the association.

THE KLEINGBEIL MURDER.

Defence in Belleville Murder—Coroner's Jury Verdict.

Belleville, March 8.—Mrs. Wilhelmina Kleingbeil, who was killed by her husband on Monday afternoon, will be buried to-day from the residence of her daughter in this city.

When the coroner's inquest was continued yesterday afternoon the finding of the medical men who made the post mortem was submitted. In effect it was that the woman came to her death through heavy blows on the head and neck. She was also terribly bruised about the body and limbs.

Some unimportant witnesses were heard and then the case was given to the jury, who brought in a verdict that Mrs. Kleingbeil came to her death through blows administered by her husband, Ferdinand Kleingbeil.

The prisoner will be brought before the magistrate for a preliminary hearing in a day or two, and will be tried at the assizes, which will be held in about three weeks. The plea, it is said, will be temporary insanity.

Gained 10 Pounds

"I was all run down and could not do my own work. Everything I ate made me sick. In nursing others I had seen the good results of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I resolved to to try it. As a result of this treatment I have gained ten pounds, do my own work alone and feel like an entirely different person."—Mrs. H. A. Loynes, nurse, Philipsburg, Que.

ARCHAMBAULT'S MURDER.

Bloodstained Shirt Worn By Alleged Murderer Produced At the Trial.

Montreal, March 8.—The evidence heard so far in the trial at Valleyfield of D. Chatigny, accused of the murder of George Archambault on Aug. 11 last, is the same as already given at the coroner's inquest.

A sensation was created in the courtroom when Coroner Dr. Lefebre produced the bloodstained shirt worn by the prisoner on the day of the murder. Chatigny appeared to be in good spirits. On the production of this piece of evidence he broke down, bursting into tears.

Ran Into Moving Train.

London, March 8.—George F. Howell of this city was struck by an incoming G.T.R. express train last night and received injuries, although serious, are not thought to be dangerous. He ran across the tracks, not knowing of the approaching train, and was struck a glancing blow by the side cylinder. He escaped with a leg broken and few cuts about the head.

How Is Your Cold?

Every place you go you hear the same question asked.

Do you know that there is nothing so dangerous as a neglected cold?

Do you know that a neglected cold will turn into Catarrh, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, disgusting Catarrh and the most deadly of all, the "White Plague," Consumption.

Many a life history would read different if, on the first appearance of a cough, it had been remedied with

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

This wonderful cough and cold medicine contains all those very pine principles which make the pine woods so valuable in the treatment of lung affections.

Combined with this are Wild Cherry Bark and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other pectoral herbs and barks.

For Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness or any affection of the Throat or Lungs. You will find a sure cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. C. M. Loomer, Berwick, N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for coughs and colds, and have always found it to give instant relief. I also recommended it to one of my neighbors and she was more than pleased with the results."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup 25 cts. per bottle at all dealers. Put up in yellow wrapper, and three pine trees the trade mark. Refuse substitutes. There is only one Norway Pine Syrup and that one is Dr. Wood's.

Suppose you do like the tea you are using. How do you know it is the best tea you can get for the money?

MANY were satisfied with the tea they were using before they tried Red Rose Tea.

When they tried Red Rose Tea they found it had that "rich fruity flavor," found it was strong—that it requires less to make a cup of good tea than the brand of Ceylon alone they had been using.

Now, why not be sure you are getting the best tea to be had.

You cannot be sure till you try Red Rose Tea.

IN FASHION'S REALM; OF INTEREST TO LADIES

UP TO DATE STYLES.

Crystalline a Lovely Evening Fabric. An Off Year For Red.

Crystalline is a light texture with much the effect of chiffon and mousseline de soie, although of a far more durable quality and not so easily affected by dampness.

This is an off year for red. A few house gowns in scarlet silk or chiffon have been seen; but, on the whole, the color is not one of the season's shades.

The button craze will hold over into the spring and summer. Buttons are hardly ever used for the purpose of buttoning, but are almost invariably ornamental, the gown or coat fastening with hooks.

Dragons and griffins figure on the coats that form the fashionable wraps for afternoon and evening wear. They are embroidered by hand in repousse style. Some of the coats are of waist length, but their meager area is a riot of blossoms and beasts upon a splendid Chinese blue background.

There is a great charm in the shirred silk hats, the brim closely gathered and the necessary touch of contrast given by a long, delicate hued ostrich plume drooping over the hair. Ostrich plumes are a good investment, for they go year by year to the cleaners and emerge each time as good as they ever were in the heyday of their youth.

A charming gown of gray voile for a young girl is seen in the cut. The skirt is full, and the slightly bloused bodice is adorned with silver braid threaded with oriental colorings.

FORECAST OF FASHION.

Short Sleeves Predominate on Tailored Effects—The Spring Shoe.

In fancy or tailored effects short sleeves will prevail all spring and summer. The newer models show a tendency to cover the elbow or to have the sleeve reach a trifle below this point.

NAINSOOK CORSET COVER.

This idea will be welcomed by the girl who finds it necessary to have extra long gloves for her very short sleeves.

The new spring shoes have pointed toes and smart Cuban heels. Dull leather made on this model and buttoned with large dull buttons is the accepted walking shoe.

Gold is ahead of silver in popularity, but silver used in combination with gray and black and white has a quiet distinction that is very attractive.

Checks in two tones and in a broken pattern have superseded the regulation shepherd plaid, which is not as smart as it once was considered a few seasons ago.

An old empire frock is of silver gray mousseline de soie, covered with bands of raw edged cloth the same shade, sewed one over the other, leaving the smallest line of mousseline de soie between each row. The lower bodice is made with wider bands of the cloth, caught across the bust with embroideries of raised silver roses, forming a directoire bolero. Silver roses make the small shoulder braces. Pink roses are worn in the hair and at the bust.

A very simple corset cover is illustrated. The material is sheer nainsook, and the only trimming is a fitted emplecement about the neck done in eyelet embroidery.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

New Checked Cottons For Shirt Waists—A Gay Little Summer Coat.

Bold designs rank equally with delicate patterns for hand embroidery on blouses.

Some remarkably good looking checked cottons are shown for shirt waists. Checks in blue and black and blue and green make attractive morning waists or whole shirt waist suits.

A gay little outing coat is of red, braided with flat red braid the exact shade of the cloth put on in military style.

Handsome Japanese coral is a novelty. It is susceptible of a high polish, but the color is not pink, but a pinkish white that is very beautiful.

Gold beads graduated in size, the largest, of course, in front, are lovely. As these beads are hollow, the cost of such a necklace is not high. Those who possess the gold beads worn by their grandmothers are most lucky.

Judging by recent displays in the shops and a few examples on the stage,

BROWN STRAW HAT.

we seem to be threatened with a revival of the long earrings. These affairs are principally of pear shaped pearls, though occasionally there is seen a combination of diamonds and pearls. There are some earrings with three dangling stones.

It is gloves, gloves everywhere, morning, noon and night, not the old fashioned, sensible gloves of our grandmothers, which ended at the wrist, but gloves with a long arm, gloves which never stop till they reach the elbow.

One of the latest models in the millinery world is illustrated in the cut. There is a suggestion of the old English walking hat in the shape, which is of brown rough straw trimmed with a Persian crape scarf about the crown and caught in front with a dull gold buckle studded with rhinestones. A long brown plume starts from the left side and falls over the back of the hat.

The Gabardine.

The gabardine, so often mentioned by Shakespeare, was a cloak for rainy weather. In several countries the Jewish people were compelled by law to wear gabardines as a distinctive article of dress.

MOURNING MODES.

Stunning Hats and Smart Dress Materials For Mourning Wear.

Jaunty toques with draped veils have taken the place of the old fashioned crape bonnet. It is usually trimmed with folds of crape, sometimes the underfacing being of folds of white crape, just as the wearer fancies, for the up to date mourning headgear is designed to be as coquettish in appearance as possible.

A crape veil is now larger than ever, but it is so draped as to have all the folds fall at the back. Over the face is worn a net veil with a crape border.

Even in the deepest mourning one is supposed to put on as cheerful a face as possible at all times; therefore the period of mourning must be made attractive.

The list of materials for mourning gowns is longer than it used to be. Dull finished silks, mohair, cashmere, crape cloth and crape in different weaves are all in vogue, and all combine to make the planning of a season's wardrobe a pleasant task.

Crape jackets will be worn this spring that are quite original in design. Etons, boleros and short coats are among the newest models.

Entire costumes of crape are considered very smart, but at the same time are woefully expensive.

The mourning frock pictured is of dull black face cloth. The skirt is formed of a series of stitched bands inserted with folds of crape. The upper part is in many gores strapped with the cloth. At the waist dull black silk braid is arranged in graduated patterns between the gores. The same idea is carried out about the shallow yoke of crape on the bodice, whose bretelle straps finish at the shoulders with a dull crape button. The sleeves have a crape puff at the top and strapped cuffs.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MODISH FRIBBLES.

Hats Are Smaller—A New Shade in Gloves—Fashions in Girdles.

Hats are getting wider at the back than ever, though, on the whole, the shapes are somewhat smaller than those seen lately. The marquise hat never seems out of favor, and for morning wear there are a good many examples of the Henry II. toque. The eighteenth century riding hat, trimmed with clusters of peacock feathers, is seen in the morning on Parisiennes as they walk in the Bois.

Onion pink is a new shade in gloves. It is a delicate biscuit color, with the faintest tinge of pink in it.

ure with small waist measurement may wear a girdle wide enough to form a corselet or bodice effect, while for a larger waist a narrow belt will prove more satisfactory.

The bolero on dress bodices has not outlived its smartness by any means, and with it one finds associated the inevitable cut out neck, describing a heart shape of the latest elongated effect. Another one of the bolero's attributes is the shoulder cape, cut in one with the jacket and hat put on as an overtrimming.

The latest fancy is to revive the nightcap, but it is a very stunning nightcap, as the picture shows, and not the old time affair with which humorists have made us familiar. On the contrary, it is a dainty creation of lace.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Gray a Fashionable Shade In Cottons. Long Coats Not "Good Form."

A very attractive model for a cloth gown is of fine chestnut faced cloth trimmed with arabesques of velvet and velvet buttons a shade darker.

The bandeau used for tilting the hat at the sides is generally straight at the top edge and sloped at the bottom edges, making the sides at the bottom edge about half an inch deep and in the center about one inch.

Soft, light gray is a favorite color among the summer cotton materials, and three shades of violet on a gray ground is a charming combination.

Shepherd plaids are seen in the shops, but it remains to be proved whether they will be taken up by well dressed women.

Long coats in the spring models are hopelessly in the minority. The majority of the smart frocks show boleros, short box coats, caracos and fitted blouse jackets.

In thin fabrics squares composed of embroidered dots alternating with those of the plain color are smart and pretty designs.

The blouse illustrated is of fine French gray cashmere. Deep plaits are laid in from the shoulders and continue to blouse over the deep belt. A small vest of white silk makes a pretty foil for the scalloped edges of the fronts. The collar is of English embroidery done on heavy white silk.

You can get the Tablets from any medicine dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHIC CONCEITS.

Evening Gowns in Which Beauty of Material and Hand Work Figure.

Little tuckers of white chiffon or muslin are worn with low cut gowns. Although the tuckers are nothing but bands two or three inches wide, they show some exquisite needlework. A fashionable evening bodice is rounded at the neck from bust to shoulder, the sleeves are elbow length, and the waist is pointed and trimmed as a pointed stomacher, with deep bows down the center. This is a charming gown for an elderly woman.

The girl this season who dances, and dances well, wears a short skirt, and she is rewarded by looking well to the end of the evening.

Exquisite embroidery figures on evening gowns, and it must be of first class description to be admired.

Empire wreaths in roses and leaves are the garnitures for the evening coiffure most in favor.

Princess or semiprincess gowns in lace or a combination of silk and lace make charming evening frocks.

The gown pictured is of nile green crepe de chine. The skirt is shirred into a deep yoke about the waist and around the sides and back, leaving a plain panel in front. The trimming at the bottom is rather elaborate in character, consisting of a narrow band of ermine at the feet, above which is a row of embroidered roses and above this a band of guipure lace.

Table Saving Mats.

Asbestus mats in all shapes and sizes covered with white cotton flannel may be had from any of the shops, and are of great help to the careful housewife in protecting her fine table from spots due to hot dishes. These mats may be covered with doilies made on purpose to fit them, and in this way they do not soil the appearance of a prettily set table in the slightest. Another good way to keep the heat of the dishes from striking in is to cover the table first with a square of white oilcloth, then with a padded and quilted silence cloth underneath the table spread. The oilcloth is excellent for keeping out the heat and protecting the table in every way.

THE maxim of many housewives is, "When in doubt blame the flour." This is unfair.

If your baking goes wrong, investigate—find the cause. Look to your stove, your yeast, your baking methods.

If you succeed in pinning the trouble down to the flour—if you clear yourself—then take up the flour question in dead earnest.

Consider that flour, to be successful from a baking standpoint, must be fine to produce light bread or pastry, pure to make that bread or pastry wholesome, and rich in nutriment to make it nourishing.

The good housewives all over the country are learning that has these three qualities in the greatest degree.

Ogilvie's Royal Household is milled by the most modern methods, purified by the only process that makes for absolute purity and made only from Manitoba Hard Wheat which contains the highest percentage of nutriment.

Royal Household Flour, in competent hands, never disappoints. Your grocer will guarantee this and gladly furnish the flour.

The Dower Chest.

The "dower chest" as a gift for the newly betrothed maid is growing in favor and antique shops in the country are searched for the old carved chests of Virginia and Massachusetts pioneers. Some persons with money to spare are sending agents to Europe to find the real antiques, such as figure in historical pictures. The dower chest of carved oak with massive bands of brass would be loved by every prospective bride. Some chests are of generous proportions, and if they are filled with rare embroidered silks, cashmeres and fine linens, as was the old custom, their value will be enhanced very materially in the bride's eyes.

The Cup of Water

By HONORE WILLSIE

Copyright, 1905, by Ruby Douglas

Esterly thumped the pillow restlessly with his feverish hands, tossed his long legs about until the bedclothes were a hopeless tangle and then lay still. The little room was deadly close with the air that smelled of long sickness and of the cooking of bacon and corn cake in the adjoining kitchen.

Outside, through the tightly closed window, he could see shreds of white clouds scudding across the blue. For days it had been a matter of vital importance to him lest the green branches that tossed so continuously across the lower sash catch and hold the wisps of white as the upper twigs scratched against the blue, but now, as he tossed in the misery of his fever, not even the scud of the clouds mattered. He wanted water—just a drink, a single half cup, just a drop on his swollen tongue. Again and again he struggled to pull himself from the bed. At each whining shriek of the corded four poster old Mrs. Frazee came to the door, corncob pipe in mouth, and tucked him kindly but firmly back.

"You sure can't have no water—not till the fever breaks. It's the only way to break up one of these long runs."

Esterly looked up into the kind old face with his fever sick eyes.

"I know you are trying to be good to a stranger, but if only you would send for a doctor! And, for heaven's sake, just a little water!"

The old woman looked at Esterly with all the horror in her face that the suggestion of a physician brings to a backwoodsman. "Laws," she said, "it's thirty miles to a doctor, and we'll have you all cured by the time one could get here! You have nothing but a run of fever. Me and my old man are glad to take care of you."

Again she tucked the coverings about him. "My," she said, "ain't you a fine big young fellow?"

Esterly, like a child in his weakness and semidelirium, lay quietly till the old woman left the room. Then again the scudding clouds caught his eye. He wondered weakly how many days it had been since he had come into these Tennessee mountains to hunt. Old Frazee had found him crazy with fever and had brought him to his backwoods cabin, a thousand miles from anywhere, and with the insistent hospitality of their kind the old man and his wife were nursing him in their own primeval way. And in all this time no water; nothing but bowlfuls of thoroughwort tea, black and bitter as quinine, and at mealtime corn cakes with more thoroughwort tea.

With difficulty he turned and looked out the door into the kitchen. Old Mrs Frazee was tying on her sunbonnet. After she had finished and relighted her pipe she came in to Esterly's bedside and looked down at him, leisurely puffing the pipe as she felt his forehead with a hand hard and knotted as a man's. Then, seeing that his eyes seemed clear, she said:

"I've got to go over to Acksonville to meet my girl. She's been to school in Nashville for four years, and I haven't seen her in that time. But now she's home for good. I'll bring some more this wert back. Your fever's worse than ever. Remember, now, it's no use for you to try to get the water. Ain't any nearer 'n the spring. And remember if you do drink any it'll settle you."

Then with a motherly gesture she smoothed the covers about his shoulders and he heard her heavy boots clumping out over the back stoop. Then again he went off into delirium, tossed and turned and called for water. After awhile he was conscious that the sunset was lighting up the tops of the trees and that the clouds were no longer white flecks, but long streamers of purple and gold. He listened intently. No sound came from the kitchen. Mrs. Frazee had not yet returned. With a supreme effort he threw off the bedclothes and staggered toward the kitchen door.

"The spring," he thought, "the spring, the spring!" And then a black mist enveloped him and he fell.

After a long time he felt himself lifted and put into bed. Then he heard a woman's voice, a young, soft voice, saying:

"Poor fellow, poor fellow! Heaven's mother, what air! Open the window, father."

Then Mrs. Frazee's voice protested. "No, no, Rose; no drafts. He'll catch cold on top of it all."

Then there was the sound of a window opening, and with the sound he opened his eyes. The candle was on the shelf, just as usual, but instead of burning straight upward, with a long, yellow flame, it spluttered and flickered in a wave of air that Esterly drew into his lungs as though he never could stop. He looked up. Bending over him, soft and dim in the uncertain light, was a woman's face, with the sweetness and elusiveness of a Madonna.

"Water!" he gasped. The girl turned quickly. "Mother," she cried, "you surely have not been trying that worn-out theory."

The old woman drew up her gaunt figure. "It's the way I was brought up. Every one on the mountain was raised the same way."

Here old Frazee's gruff voice broke in: "I always said it was a fool idea. Water never hurt no one."

The girl put her hands on Esterly's forehead. "He must have water," she said.

The old woman shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, if you want to try your highfalutin notions, go on. I have nothing more to say." And she walked out into the kitchen, Rose and the old man following.

Esterly sank slowly back into his troubled sleep. Then he heard a movement beside the bed. Close to the pillows, on a chair, Rose was putting a wooden bucket, dark and dripping with water. She slipped one hand under his pillow and raised his head. With the other hand she raised to his lips a great dipper of water.

"Drink," she said. And Esterly drank. Never to his last day was he to forget the taste of that first drink after the long days of parching fever. He drank with sobbing gulps, drank and still drank until the girl put the dipper back into the water.

"Now sleep," she said. And Esterly sank into a long, dreamless slumber that lasted until the window framed the first glimmerings of dawn; then he had another deep drink.

It was afternoon when he woke again, with head clear and body weak and helpless after the run of the fever. Mrs. Frazee bustled in.

"Rose has made you a bed on the stoop, and the old man and I'll carry you out there. The water busted the fever, I guess."

In a few moments Esterly was lying on a cot that snuggled under the vines of the stoop. He lay and watched the splendor of the mountain view which stretched down and down for miles before him. Then he looked up. The girl stood in the doorway with a plate in her hand.

"Rose!" he cried. "Rose, Rose, Rose!"

The girl set down the plate and knelt beside him. "Isn't it strange? Isn't it wonderful?" she asked.

"I knew you had come from the mountains," he said "but"—

"They adopted me, you know. My own father left me a little money, but I liked to live with them, just as they were. You must forgive them their ignorance. The mountains are a hundred years behind, you know, and I love these people."

Esterly lay back. "Then so do I," he said.

"Now you must eat," she said.

He stayed her with feeble hand. "You said you wouldn't marry me because I didn't need you—that I merely wanted you for an ornament to my money. Dear, can't you believe that, rich or poor, I need you?"

The girl looked at him. She had cared for him before, but always there had been something lacking, something that kept her from feeling quite sure, but now that something came. With a gesture that was protecting, maternal, tender, she put her arm across him, her cheek close to his. In silence they looked across the blue haze of the valley, where the swallows circled and dipped, then soared again.

"Yes, you need me," she said.

Dogmatic People

Are often capable of doing injury to less positive people, the very emphasis of their affirmation making up for lack of argument and want of evidence. And the worst of all dogmatists are those doctors who, harking back to some old dogma of the schools, insist that certain patients are beyond all medical help, because, forsooth, their diseases are beyond the limited medical knowledge of the dogmatist.

"When the physicians had given me up I was cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery." That statement, varied sometimes in form but identical in fact, is one of the common expressions found in the letters of those cured by "Golden Medical Discovery." Sometimes the statement runs; "I was given up by four doctors," showing a desperate effort to find relief in local practitioners. But however the story begins, it almost invariably ends with the statement, "I am perfectly cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

Persons suffering from "weak" lungs, hemorrhages, deep-seated cough, emaciation and weakness, have been restored to perfect health by the "Discovery."

The philosophy of the cures effected by this marvelous medicine is not hard to understand. Life is sustained by food, digested and assimilated. The basis of health is a good appetite and a sound digestion. In almost all cases of disease loss of appetite is an early symptom, and this is promptly followed by a wasting of the flesh. For some cause the food eaten is not being converted into nutrition and the body and its organs, being starved, must grow weak. There is only one way to get strength and that is by food. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery heals diseases of the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition, so enabling the body to assimilate the needed nourishment. Thus various forms of "weakness," so-called, are cured by the "Discovery"—"weak" lungs, "weak" heart, "weak" nerves, "weak" or sluggish liver, etc., because the organs are made strong by food, which is perfectly digested and assimilated after the "Discovery" has healed the diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition.

PAIN ALL GONE.

"I have taken your medicine with the greatest satisfaction," writes Mrs. George Riehl, of Lockport Station, Westmoreland Co., Penn'a, and can honestly say Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured me of a pain in my right lung that the best doctors could not help. My appetite and digestion have improved so that I can eat anything at all, and I feel better than I have for years. Your 'Favorite Prescription' has cured me of womb trouble that I suffered from for fifteen years, and painful monthly troubles. I can work a whole day and not get tired. My pain is all gone and I feel like a new person. I suffered with headache all the time, but have no headache now since taking your medicine. Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription' do all that you claim for them, and more, too. I have been cured of troubles that I suffered from for fifteen years, and the best doctors in the State could not cure me. 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me of neuralgia that I suffered from for five years, and if my letter can save one other poor sufferer, you can publish it."

"ALMOST A MIRACLE."

"I took a severe cold which settled in the bronchial tubes," writes Rev. Frank Hay, of Nortonville, Jefferson Co., Kansas. "After trying medicines labeled "Sure Cure," almost without number, I was led to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took two bottles and was cured, and have stayed cured.

"When I think of the great pain I had to endure, and the terrible cough I had, it seems almost a miracle that I was so soon relieved."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not re-act upon the system and become a necessity, as do many other pills.

Americanisms Good Old English.

Most so called Americanisms, and, indeed, Irishisms also, are in reality archaisms of the English language which have a habit of surviving where one would least expect to find them. Many persons will tell you that the phrase "to let slide" is an Americanism, but students of English literature will call to mind the following stanza from Chaucer's "Clerkes Tale:"

I blame him not that he considered nought
In time coming what might him betide,
But on his lust present was all his thought
And for to hauke and hunt on every side.
Well neigh all other cures let he slide,
And eke he n'old (and that was worst of all)
Wedden no wif for ought that might befall.

Several other illustrations of so called Americanisms which occur in Chaucer may be given—as, for example, "I guess," which is frequently to be met with:

With him ther was his sone, a younge squier,
A lover and a lusty bacheler,
With lockes crull as they were laide in presse.
Of twenty year of age he was, I gesse.
—Prologue "Canterbury Tales."

Many quaint words are commonly used in America, as "pitcher" for "jug," "fall" for "autumn," "Homely" is invariably used to express the absence of beauty, as "a homely girl" for "a plain girl." An example of such usage may be found in Shakespeare:

Upon a homely object love can wink.
—"Two Gentlemen of Verona," ii, 4.

Charlotte Corday.

A memorable woman stands upon the scaffold, not in white, but in the red smock of a murderess. It is Charlotte Corday, born d'Armans, and she has killed Marat. If ever murder were justifiable it was this assassination. The sternest moralist cannot refrain from admiring this high souled, undaunted girl, for the murder that she committed is elevated far above an ordinary crime. She was impelled neither by lust of gain nor by jealousy nor by ordinary hate, and she only slew a monster in order to save unhappy France from wholesale slaughter. Shortly before his end Marat had screeched a demand for 2,500 victims at Lyons, for 3,000 at Marseilles, for 28,000 at Paris and for even 300,000 in Brittany and in Calvados.

No wonder that Danton, Camille Desmoulins and Robespierre went to see this extraordinary and most resolute young woman, whose motive had drugged her conscience and who neither denied her act nor sought to escape its consequences. She was beheaded at 7:30 in the July summer evening. Calm eyed and composed, she went to death, but she turned pale for a moment when first she caught sight of the guillotine. "I killed one man to save 100,000, a villain to save innocents, a savage, wild beast to give repose to my country." Never has murder found so noble an excuse, and she was only twenty-five.—London Spectator.

Cold That Kills and Cold That Cures.

In England severe cold generally kills a good many people. In certain parts of North America cold still more severe puts new life into them. It requires no argumentation to show that there must be a definite reason for this. The chief reason is that English cold is mostly damp, while in North America it is mostly dry. There is the greatest difference in the world between dry air and damp air. The former is usually air pure and simple, possessing a full quantity of oxygen and often charged highly with ozone. The latter consists of air mixed with the vapor of water. When the former air, fully oxygenated, is breathed it stimulates more powerfully than champagne. The latter, less oxygenated and charged with vapor of water, not only does not stimulate, but depresses.

To Keep Oil Fresh.

Oil becomes rancid because it absorbs the oxygen in the atmosphere. To keep it fresh pour a little good alcohol into the bottle. Alcohol, being specifically lighter than oil, swims on top and excludes every particle of air that penetrates, no matter how carefully the bottle is corked.

Fourteenth Century Hennins.

The hennins, or huge headdresses, worn by the ladies of Paris during the fourteenth century often cost as much as $20.

How a Fish Breathes.

The gills of a fish are situated at the back part of the sides of the head and consist of a number of vascular membranes, which are generally arranged in double, fringelike rows, attached to the parts by the base only. In some cases these membranes are feather shaped, in others mere folds attached to the sides of the gill cavities. The fish is a cold blooded animal—that is to say, its temperature is seldom more than a degree or two higher than the water in which it lives. This being true, the creature needs but a very small amount of oxygen to keep the blood at a temperature sufficiently high to sustain life. This oxygen is supplied to the blood of the fish by respiring large quantities of water, or, rather, drinking large quantities of water, and respiring the air separated from it by the gills. This explains why a fish cannot live in a tank of water which has been sifted through the gills time and time again any better than a human being or other animal can in air that has been deprived of all its oxygen by being taken into lungs and expelled without being aerated. Fish that die in the stale water of aquariums may be properly said to drown, because they perish for want of air, the same thing which occasions death by drowning in man and other lung breathing animals.

The Fate of Flies.

Some light on the fate of flies was thrown by H. Hill in a lecture at the Royal Victoria hall, London, on "Flies and How They Disappear." In England alone there are 3,000 different kinds of flies, and Mr. Hill mentioned the following principal ways in which flies perish: They are drowned in milk at the breakfast table; they get surrounded by a white fungus, which saps their strength; they are eaten by spiders, wasps, frogs, chameleons, lizards, field mice or fish.

With so many enemies it might be wondered how flies have continued to exist, but Mr. Hill said that he had himself witnessed a daddy longlegs whose front half was being devoured by a spider continuing calmly to lay eggs with the other half, as though nothing were happening.

Why Men Wear Mustaches.

The Gauls of Paris has been investigating that grave question, "Why do men wear mustaches?" About 100 men answered the question. Six replied that it was too much trouble to shave, one declared that it was to hide his teeth, another that his long nose, without it, gave him a bad appearance, and three that it avoided colds. Three others maintained that it improved the air they breathed, and seven were of the opinion that a mustache was necessary to health. Seventeen men were content to state that they did it to please themselves, while only two said it was to please their wives. About sixty gave the reason that women do not like clean shaven men.

Told by the Watch.

To tell the points of the compass by a watch point the hour hand at the sun; then south is halfway between the hour hand and the figure 12 of the dial. To measure an angle by a watch lay two straight edged pieces of paper on the angle, crossing at the apex. Holding them where they overlap, lay them on the face of the watch, with the apex at the center. Read the angle by the minutes of the dial, each minute being six degrees of arc. It is easy to measure within two or three degrees in this way.

Pasta's Wonderful Voice.

Mme. Pasta's voice extended from low A to D in altissimo and was one of the most remarkable illustrations ever furnished of the value of musical culture in overcoming natural blemishes. Her voice was stubborn and unmanageable, but by dint of study and indefatigable perseverance she brought it to a state of perfection that was the admiration of her contemporaries. Her delight was the bravura style of ornament, and where the composer had not been sufficiently liberal in bestowing ornamentation on her part she invented cavatinas of her own and used them with such effect that they were generally regarded as the best part of her singing. She made her first appearance on the stage in 1815, her last in 1850.

Vultures and a Dead Tiger.

The vulture is seen at its best when a dead tiger, brought into camp to be skinned, is exposed in the open. Overhead is a cloudless sky, and not a bird to be seen in that great void by the human eye. The tiger's body is thrown from the pad to the ground, and before the skin has been removed there above one and always nearing the earth are the vultures circling, poising like things of air, now a dozen of them, in a few minutes a score or two and then a hundred strong. Then, when the flayed carcass of the tiger is left by those who skinned it, the vultures descend. Down they come like feathered thunder out of the sky, and from east and west and north and south, the very embodiment of power while they whirled aloft and in their quick descent to earth, and now, as they waddle around that carrion beast, misshapen ghouls, whose only apparent strength is that of the ravening jaws which tear and gorge the tiger's flesh, until within the hour naught of that splendid brute remains but a clean picked skeleton.—Sir Edward Braddon's "Thirty Years of Shikar."

Caligula the Cruel.

Caligula, most cruel of Roman emperors, built a bridge of boats three miles long at Baiae and celebrated its opening by throwing many of his guests into the sea.

The Magpie.

In the folklore of almost every country the magpie figures very largely. In popular superstitions to see one magpie is unlucky; to see two denotes merriment or marriage; to see three, a successful journey; four, good news; five, company.

Washington's Acres.

Records of Fairfax county, Va., show that George Washington owned at the age of twenty-seven 50,000 acres of land and in 1700 the Washington family had killed 150 hogs for their use.

Pontius Pilate's Guards.

The oldest regiment in British service, probably also in the world, is the First Royal Scots, familiarly known as "Pontius Pilate's guards," on account of the very great length of time the regiment has been embodied.

A FOOD AND A TONIC

What the leading Medical Journal of the world has to say about FERROL.

After making a thorough test of FERROL in its own laboratory the London (England) Lancet published an article from which the following is taken:

FERROL

"This is a successful combination of the well-known valuable remedies, Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus. The formula is no secret, and our analysis showed the presence and amount of constituents as described. The preparation is a good one and of distinct therapeutic value. The association of an easily assimilable oil, in a fine state of division, with a phosphatic salt of iron which does not disturb the digestive functions and which is easily tolerated, determines its success as a food and tonic in wasting diseases."

What the London Lancet recommends as a food and a tonic in all wasting diseases must have very special qualities.

No higher endorsation is possible. The results following the use of FERROL for the past ten years have proved that this endorsation is well deserved.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in the prominent Hospitals, Sanatoriums, etc.

TERRIBLE ECZEMA ON LITTLE BOY

Mouth and Eyes Covered With Crusts—Face Itched Most Fearfully—Hands Pinned Down to Prevent Scratching.

MIRACULOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES.

"When my little boy was six months old, he had eczema. The sores extended so quickly over the whole body that we at once called in the doctor. We then went to another doctor, but he could not help him, and in our despair we went to a third one. Matters became so bad that he had regular holes in his cheeks, large enough to put a finger into. The food had to be given with a spoon, for his mouth was covered with crusts as thick as a finger, and whenever he opened the mouth they began to bleed and suppurate, as did also his eyes. Hands, arms, chest, and back, in short the whole body, was covered over and over. We had no rest by day or night. Whenever he was laid in his bed, we had to pin his hands down; otherwise he would scratch his face, and make an open sore. I think his face must have itched most fearfully.

ALFRED HOHRATH.

"We finally thought nothing could help, and I had made up my mind to send my wife with the child to Europe, hoping that the sea air might cure him, otherwise he was to be put under good medical care there. But, Lord be blessed, matters came differently, and we soon saw a miracle. A friend of ours spoke about Cuticura. We made a trial with Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and within ten days or two weeks we noticed a decided improvement. Just as quickly as the sickness had appeared it also began to disappear, and within ten weeks the child was absolutely well, and his skin was smooth and white as never before." F. Hohrath, President of the C. L. Hohrath Company, Manufacturers of Silk Ribbons, 4 to 20 Rink Alley, June 5, 1905. South Bethlehem, Pa.

GERMANY AND FRANCE.

French Delegates Think Way For Understanding Opens.

Algeciras, March 8.—Success of the conference on Moroccan reform cannot be described as absolutely secure since two of the main points in dispute, the allotment of bank capital and control of the police, are not yet settled. The French delegates show an inclination to regard the way as opened to an understanding, and the other delegates consider that a great forward step was made yesterday when a strong spirit of conciliation became evident.

Premier Has No Cabinet Yet.

Paris, March 9.—President Fallieres' efforts to induce one or other of the several statesmen with whom he conferred yesterday to undertake the task of forming a Cabinet, have not yet borne results. It is understood that M. Poincaire will be called to the Elysee to-day.

Election Offender Gets Off.

Montreal, March 8.—Eugene Sylvain, arrested on a charge of having committed personation in the Maisonneuve bye-election, was discharged by Judge Choquette on technical grounds. The judge held that the warrant on which Sylvain was arrested was irregular, in that it was not sworn, and that the charge mentioned was "telegraphing," which was unknown in law.

Thoroughness of The Insurance Investigation

Chairman, Judge MacTavish, Issues a Statement.

WILL COMMENCE 14TH APRIL

Insurance Commission Will Welcome Any Information—No Restrictions or Limitations to the Scope of the Investigation—Exhaustive Inquiry Into Insurance Conditions to Begin Wednesday Next.

Ottawa, March 8.—The Insurance Commission convened yesterday morning and adjourned again until Wednesday, March 14.

Little public interest was taken in the proceedings, there being present, besides a dozen reporters, only a couple of local insurance men, and Mr. N. G. Guthrie, representing the Mutual Reserve Life Association of New York.

Mr. E. T. Ross, secretary, read the order-in-Council appointing the commissioners and the commission under which the commissioners are acting. Then Judge MacTavish made this statement:

Responsibility Appreciated.

"The secretary has read the terms of the commission directing this inquiry which, with the order-in-Council already published, disclosed the very wide scope of the investigation now proposed to be held. It must be apparent to everyone that there is an absence of any restriction or limitation of the scope of the inquiry. Nor is there anything omitted therefrom that can at this stage, at all events, be suggested or anticipated.

"I desire to state on behalf of the commissioners that they appreciate the importance of the matters submitted to them, and the very great responsibility involved in the proper discharge of the duties they have undertaken. The inquiry is, perhaps, unique and exceptional in this regard, that I am not aware of any other inquiry directed by His Excellency in council in recent years wherein so large a proportion of the citizens of the country have a direct and a personal interest. The commissioners have deemed it expedient that counsel be retained in behalf of the Crown to aid in the investigation, and arrangements have been made whereby the services of counsel will be available. We will be glad to have the assistance of counsel on behalf of any interest affected, or likely to be affected, by the investigation. We not only desire but welcome the assistance of persons interested in the prosecution of this inquiry.

The Secretary's Work.

"Mr. H. T. Ross, of the Nova Scotia Bar, has been appointed secretary of the association. He has undertaken the duties of that position, and has secured an office in the city of Ottawa, where he will be ready to receive all communications and correspondence which anyone may think desirable to send to the commissioners. Any individual corporation or company having any claim, complaint or charge which it is desired to investigate may address a communication to the secretary at Ottawa, and it will receive the best consideration, and be inquired into. Anyone desiring to communicate with him will facilitate the proceedings by doing so at once.

"We would like to bring to the notice of all parties concerned that it is our desire to expedite the proceedings and to determine the matters submitted to us without unnecessary delay, always having in view, however, the necessity for a thorough and exhaustive investigation. No consideration must be permitted to restrict or impede the fullest possible inquiry.

To Continue In Ottawa.

"We, therefore, take this opportunity to announce that on Wednesday, March 14, at the hour of 11 o'clock, all at the Imperial building, No. 128 Queen street west, will sit for the purpose of proceeding with the inquiry.

"It seems to us that our first duty will be to inquire into the operation of the laws of the Parliament of Canada relating to the business of life insurance generally and how the provisions of such laws have been observed, and with that object in view we will first procure all possible information from the insurance branch of the Department of Finance. We propose holding our sittings in Ottawa until it is made to appear to us that the public interest requires us to sit elsewhere, in which case we will choose such place as may be deemed necessary, of which due notice will be given, regard being had to the convenience of the parties concerned."

He went to the office after supper Wednesday night, with the intention of making up his balance. It is supposed that in answering the phone he accidently touched the gas jet with his arm. It was found partly turned on. He leaves a widow and two small girls.

Dominion Permanent Loan Co.

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The fifteenth regular annual meeting of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company was held at the office of the company on Wednesday, March 7th, 1906. A large number of shareholders were present. The President, the Hon. J. R. Stratton, occupied the chair, Mr. F. M. Holland, Manager, acting as secretary. The President presented the following report of the Directors, for the year ending December 31st, 1905:

Your directors herewith submit the Fifteenth Annual Report of The Dominion Permanent Loan Company, together with a statement of the accounts for the twelve months ending December 31st, 1905, duly certified by the Auditors, both as to the correctness of the accounts and the satisfactory result of their inspection of the securities of the Company.

Your Directors are pleased to state that active employment has been found for the funds of the company during the past year, the demand for satisfactory loans being amply sufficient to call into requisition the available funds of the company.

During the past year the Company has declared and paid dividends amounting to $68,437.49, and has transferred $40,000 to the credit of the Reserve Fund of the Company. Besides paying such dividends and transferring the above mentioned amount to Reserve Fund, and writing off office furniture and premises $1,658.85, there remains to the credit of Profit and Loss for future distribution, $19,992.89. All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. R. STRATTON,
President.

(Signed) HARRY VIGEON, F.C.A.
(Signed) T. N. STEVENS.

Toronto, February 14th, 1906.

Hon. Mr. Stratton, President, in moving the adoption of the report, said:—

In moving the adoption of the fifteenth annual report of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, I have pleasure in submitting the statement of the Directors from the report of the General Manager of the Company, with the certificate of the auditors appointed by the shareholders.

This statement shows that the surplus of assets over liabilities, amounting to $1,453,429.42, is a substantial advance over that of the previous year, when the figures stood at $1,441,676.20, an increase of $11,753.12. The net income resulting from the operations of the year under consideration amounted to $205,088.08, and with the balance of $13,946.25 brought forward from last year makes a total of $218,614.33. After deducting from this amount the interest on deposits and debentures, writing $1,658.85 off office furniture and payment of dividends, it will be seen that there remained a balance of $50,092.89, permitting of the transfer of $40,000 to Reserve Fund, making the total of this fund $200,000, and leaving $19,992.89 for further distribution.

With satisfactory demands for the funds of the company at profitable rates, with the gratifying strengthening of the Reserve Fund, and with the other encouraging features, the statement suggests, there is no reason for doubting that the company will continue to share in the advantages incident to and arising from the great prosperity which promises to be a feature of a future of many years. Even in the short space of time from one annual meeting to another, we can all note the advanced position of prominence Canada assumes in the world of finance, industrial activities, commerce and general enterprise. Not only is our population being rapidly added to by a good and thrifty quantity of new subjects, and not only is foreign capital coming to an increased and increasing recognition of this country as a profitable field of investment, but the energy and enterprise of our own people are putting on foot important enterprises which the resources of the country justify. The expenditure of such large amounts as will be required, and the resulting development of the natural resources of the country, the stimulus that will be given to the farming and every other form of industry, will create conditions throughout the whole country favourable to the profitable operation of such an organization as the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, which can hardly avoid reaping its full share of the business benefit that will largely abound.

While in London, England, the late Vice-President of the Company, Mr. T. P. Coffee, died. He was more closely associated with the General Manager in the management of the Company than any other member of the Board, which makes his death the more to be regretted. The vacancy has not yet been filled, and that is a matter that will require attention to-day.

I have pleasure in moving the adoption of the report.

Mr. D. W. Karn, in seconding the motion for the adoption of the report, said:

It gives me much pleasure to second the motion for the adoption of the report of the Manager of the Company. There are grounds for gratification in the plentiful employment to be found for the company's funds, in the dividends paid, in the substantial addition and satisfactory magnitude of the Reserve Fund, and in the very favourable conditions that prevail, and promise to improve for future and prosperous operations.

I have great pleasure in seconding the motion for the adoption of the report:

The report, after some complimentary remarks by several shareholders was unanimously adopted.

The following directors were elected:

Hon. J. R. Stratton, President, Toronto and Guarantee Company, Limited; D. W. Karn, President of the W. Karn Company, Woodstock; C. Kloepfer, Director Traders' Bank of Canada, Toronto; William Findlay, Director Winnipeg Fire Insurance Company; George H. Cowan, K. C., Vancouver, B. C.

After the election of the auditors, Messrs. H. Vigeon and T. N. Stevens, the meeting adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Hon. J. R. Stratton was elected President, and Mr. D. W. Karn, Vice-President.

HAVELOCK PEOPLE

—WHILE OUT DEER HUNTING—

DISCOVER A MINE

A Remarkable Story Comes From That Village of Rich Silver Deposits in Belmont Township.

A Havelock Man Named McMullen Stumbled Across It Last Fall—Said to be Very Rich.

A Rush of Prospectors Expected—Lucky Discoverer Keeps the Location a Dark Secret.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Havelock, March 10.—There is considerable suppressed excitement in Havelock over a discovery of silver made in the township of Belmont, some months ago by a resident of this town, named McMillen. The prospector who made this discovery is exceedingly reticent on the matter, and positively refuses to divulge the location of the silver deposit, which he discovered. He states, however, that it is in the township of Belmont, and that it is quite close to the town. He has let a few of the men in the town into his secret, and one of them stated to the Examiner that the find was an exceedingly valuable one, and that once it was made public there would be a great rush of mining prospectors into the district.

The circumstances connected with his discovery of the silver are rather remarkable. It appears that he made it last fall while on a deer hunting trip. He became separated from the other members of the party, and lost the trail. He wandered around for some hours, and passed the particular spot where he found the silver, no less than three times in his wanderings. The last time he threw himself on the ground and was scraping the snow away to lie down to rest when he saw a piece of metal which proved to be almost pure silver, about a foot long and three inches in diameter.

Mr. McMillen knows silver when he sees it, and as soon as he picked up

Pauline Johnson At To-night's Pop

The citizens of Peterborough have in store a rare treat to-night, when E. Pauline Johnson will give one of the best entertainments of the season. The extremely low price of admission ought to ensure a bumper house. Being descended from a long line of Mohawk Chiefs on her paternal side and inheriting the refined and literary tastes of the Howells on her mother's side she is one of the most striking figures before the Canadian public today. In historonic and literary ability combined we have had nothing to equal her since the days of Mrs. Scott-Siddons. She ranks among the most popular of Canadian poets, and some of her poems breathe the intensity of her loyalty. During part of the entertainment she will appear in Indian costume while reciting some of her own poems. No one should fail to hear Tekahlowake.

Toronto Capitalists Get Stock In Shovel Factory

Mr. Frederic Nicholls, managing director of the Canadian General Electric Co., and Mr. A. P. They are now two of the most prominent shareholders in the concern.

ELOPMENT OF A CORDOVA COUPLE AND ITS SEQUEL

An Interesting Romance Which Reached Climax in Havelock.

Irate Father of the Girl Followed Them to That Village.

He Came Too Late, However, to Prevent Wedding Ceremony.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Havelock, March 10.—This town was the scene of an interesting little romance this week. A Cordova couple, the girl 16 years of age, and her companion some years older, drove into town and went to the Methodist parsonage, where they were made man and wife. They decided to remain in Havelock until morning, and then drive back home. Accordingly, they registered at one of the hotels.

They were, however, not to be allowed to enjoy their married bliss undisturbed for long. The girl's father, who, it appears, was opposed to the attentions which the young man was paying his daughter, and who became alarmed at her sudden disappearance from home, followed the pair to town and located them at the hotel. He went to their room and demanded admittance, which was granted, and then instructed his daughter to return home with him, when he was confronted with his daughter's husband, who produced the marriage certificate, which, to a certain extent, calmed his father-in-law's anger.

The latter, however, continued to protest against her action in marrying the man whom he characterized as useless.

The father, after seeing that his daughter was determined to remain with her husband, retired downstairs with the latter, and they made friends over the flowing bowl, until the last trace of bitterness had disappeared, and the father took his departure for home, followed in the morning by his daughter and her husband.

The Hamsworth Self-Educator

The sixth number of the Harmsworth Self-Educator Magazine, the number for March 1, is quite up to the high standard of preceding issues. The current number is full of interest, the lessons, most lucidly illustrated, covering almost every phase of educational interest, upon which help can be sought by the ambitious student. To any young man, or, for the matter of that, the older man, any single lesson on the subject he is interested in is worth far more than the price of the number. Everything is dealt with so succinctly and comprehensively as to be of the highest educational value. Indeed, to any one who is not a student in the formative sense of the term, the varied lessons are of use to revive knowledge, partially lapsed or forgotten. In a word, Harmsworth's educator is practically a repeating encyclopaedia of clearly presented and easily assimilable knowledge, and all who have missed the opportunity for school or college training have in it the means to splendidly make up the loss. Mr. Henry Mann is the editor, and Mr. C. H. Murray, Toronto, publisher.

A FATAL INJURY ALMOST RESULTED FROM ACCIDENT

Finlay James Forsyth Seriously Hurt in Warsaw Yesterday.

Was Engaged in Taking Down Old Store When Timber Fell.

He Sustained Some Serious Internal Injuries --Narrow Escape.

Special to The Examiner.

Warsaw, March 10.—An accident, which only by the merest chance results other than fatally, occurred here yesterday. While Mr. Finlay James Forsythe, a grandson of Mr David Forsythe, was engaged in taking down an old building in this village, a store which was erected many years ago, when Warsaw was in its heyday, one of the heavy timbers fell, striking him on the head, and glancing off to his shoulder, knocked him over, dropping on his chest. It was feared at first that he was fatally injured, and the services of Dr Douglas were at once procured. It was found on examination that no bones were broken, but he had sustained some rather serious internal injuries, and his lungs were affected. He was sufficiently recovered last night to be taken to his home, which is about five miles south of Warsaw, in the township of Douro. His recovery is now looked for all.

Finance Minister Mason Presented His Statement of Estimated Revenue and Expenditure.

Mayor Best Objected to Rate Being Lowered at Present Time When Conditions Are Prosperous.

Appropriation for Board of Works This Year $16,700, Largest Grant Yet Made to That Department.

The Committee of the Whole Council held a meeting last night in the Clerk's office. The principal feature of the meeting was the presentation by Ald. Mason, chairman of the Finance Committee, of the estimated expenditure and revenue for the year. The figures, a summary of which follow, are very interesting. It will be seen that the rate this year is 17 1-2 mills, which is 1-2 a mill less than that of last year. The total expenditure is estimated at $67,124.02 and the receipts at $15,175.00. The appropriation for the Board of Works for 1905 is, as will be noticed, $16,700.00, the largest ever made for that purpose, although last year while the grant made was not as large, yet the amount expended was as much as the appropriation this year. Stole Fifty Dollars From Lindsay Firm

Sixteen Year Old Youth Skips Away with Proceeds of Cheque.

Chief Nevison of Lindsay, this afternoon wired the local police to arrest William Eaton, 16 years of age, an English emigrant boy, who speaks with a decided English accent, on a charge of having stolen from his employers, the Lindsay Lumber Company, the sum of $50. The firm by which he was employed, gave him a cheque for $50 on the Ontario Bank, Lindsay, this morning, for the boy to cash. He received the money from the bank teller, and after receiving it left for Peterborough on the 11 o'clock train from Lindsay, buying his ticket at the railway station.

When the cheque was cashed the boy was given seven $5 bills, all of the Ontario Bank, and ten $1 bills, and $5 in silver. He is short and chunky, wears a dark grey suit, dark grey cap and short trousers. He has large eyes and rosy cheeks. Any merchant or other person who sees a boy in the city answering to the description given above, will please communicate with the police.

The "North Star" To Be Rebuilt

Mr. Thos. Harris, proprietor of Harris' Hotel, Gore's Landing, and his brother, Mr. Edwin Harris, merchant, were in town to-day on business. From them it was learned that preparations are now under way by Messrs. Wilbert Harris and Dan McAllister to re-build the favourite steamer, North Star, which was destroyed by fire over a year ago at her wharf in Gore's Landing. It has not yet been decided whether a regular daily service with Peterborough will be renewed, but it is certain that a North Star will again navigate the Otonabee River and Rice Lake.

PETERBOROUGH WATER CONSUMERS' LOW RATES; ONLY 3 TOWNS LOWER

Out of 35 Towns and Cities in This Province, 31 Charge Higher Rates Than Peterborough—The Net Rate Here is $11.25 Compared With $27.30 in Kenora—Three Cheaper Places Are Sarnia, Walkerville and Parry Sound---Some Interesting Comparisons for Water Consumers of This City.

Peterborough water consumers are in a pretty satisfactory position. Of thirty-five towns and cities in the Province of Ontario there are only three in which the net water rate per year is lower than that of Peterborough. These three towns are Sarnia, Parry Sound and Walkerville. Of the other thirty-two one at least charges more than twice as much as the water consumers of this city are called upon to pay. While the others vary from $1 to $10 per year net more than the Peterborough water consumers.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough Water Commissioners, has received from Mr. S. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Walkerville Water Company, Limited, who compiled a "tabulation of water rates," prepared by him, and the information given by it is of such an interesting character to the people of Peterborough, the very great majority of whom are water consumers, that the Examiner was given the privilege of publishing it. The rates follow:—

Is The Board Of Trade TRYING TO ASSUME CONTROL OF Trent Canal Deputation?

Communication to the Effect That a Committee Had Been Appointed by the Board Was Resented by the City Council—"We Will Not Play Second Fiddle to the Board of Trade," Was the Way Mayor Best Expressed Himself.

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night a communication was received from Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary of the Board of Trade, notifying the Council that the Board had appointed a committee composed of President D. Hughes Charles, His Worship Mayor Best, and Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P. to prepare a memorial to the Minister of Railways and Canals urging the early completion of the Trent Canal.

The council resented this, as they looked upon the communication as intimation that the Board of Trade was trying to assume control of the whole affair, whereas Ald. Mason, chairman of the Finance Committee, has been chiefly instrumental in arranging for the deputation.

The aldermen present expressed themselves strongly on the point, and apparently did not relish the "attempt," as they characterized it, of the Board of Trade to assume the credit for the deputation.

"We will not play second fiddle to the Board of Trade," said the Mayor vigorously, and this seemed to be the opinion of the whole Committee.

"If the Board of Trade had funds enough to pay the expenses of the deputation they would not consult us at all," was the way the Mayor looked at the matter.

The following resolution, moved by Ald. Hicks, seconded by Ald. Ball, was carried unanimously:

"That the question of a deputation to Ottawa re the completion of the Trent Valley Canal has been for some time in the hands of the chairman of the Finance Committee, and that the council cannot see its way clear to interfere with the arrangements already made.

The Isolation Hospital QUESTION DISCUSSED By The Joint Meeting

Board of Health and Committee of Whole Met Last Night to Consider the Matter—Necessity of Taking Some Step at Once Was Strongly Emphasized—Matter Was Left in the Hands of a Committee to Investigate.

A joint meeting of the Board of Health and the Committee of the Whole Council was held last night to consider the question of an isolation hospital. The state of affairs at present existing in Peterborough is so bad that the Board of Health considered it advisable to confer with the council. As matters now stand there is no provision for sheltering those suffering from infectious diseases. Both hospitals have been notified by the Government that they must not take such patients and the result is that there is no place where they can be accommodated. In view of this the joint meeting was called last night. The matter was discussed at some length and then left in the hands of a committee. There were present Messrs. Wm. Eyres, in the chair, A. Parker, Geo. Schneider, Dr. Burnham, Dr. Bingham, Dr. McNulty, His Worship Mayor Best, Ald. Mason, Johnston, Hicks, McIntyre, Duncan, Ball, Graham and Elliott.

Mr. Eyres explained the object of calling the meeting and strongly emphasized the need of an isolation hospital in Peterborough. As an example of this he pointed out that Dr. McNulty had been forced to receive a diphtheria patient into his own house. The arrangement had been that diphtheria patients were sent to St Joseph's and scarlet fever patients to Nicholls hospital. These institutions would no longer receive infectious cases. It was necessary to take some step at once and as the council had to provide the money it was for the aldermen to say what kind of a building they would provide.

Dr. Bingham, the Medical Health Officer, agreed with the chairman that the hospital was an absolute necessity and he could not see how

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women

Medicines, sold alike for men and women, never contain what will do a woman the most good, that is, the uterine and other female tonics. Such medicines may relieve for a little but that is all.

They do not cure, because they do not reach the cause of nine-tenths of the ills of women.

Women need a remedy compounded for their special needs. Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women are such a medicine.

They are a special remedy compounded by a specialist for a special purpose. The specialist is Dr. Hugo, of Paris, who perhaps knows more about the needs of women to-day than any other living physician. Their special purpose is to cure the ills of women and them alone. They are not for men.

Are Just for Women.

Mr. F. M. A Cobourg deputation recently waited on Hon. Dr. Pyne and asked for one of the schools.

MR. EARLE'S COMMENTS ON BROWNING'S "RABBI BEN EZRA"

1.—Rabbi Ben Ezra is an historical character. He was an eminent Jewish scholar and writer during the middle ages.

2.—The Rabbi is alone responsible for the opinions expressed. It is even probable that he actually held these views.

3.—"Youth" in the poem, includes the whole period of active life up to old age.

Some Leading Thoughts.

1.—The best of life is best. (Stanza I.)

2.—It is better that we should be troubled with doubts. (Stanza III.)

3.—If the gratification of the sensual appetites were all, then life would end with the ending of our capabilities for sensual enjoyments. (Stanza IV.)

4.—We are more nearly related to God than to the brutes. (Stanza V.)

5.—It is better that our lives should not run on smoothly. (Stanza VI.)

6.—Our real position depends, not on what we accomplish, but on what we aspire to be. (Stanza VII.)

7.—God's perfect plan combines the All-powerful with the All-loving. (Stanza X.)

8.—The soul when wearied with the struggle, sinks back upon the body for rest. (Stanza XI.)

9.—We cannot reckon our soul-gains while the struggle is going on. (Stanzas XI., XII. and XIII.)

10.—The Rabbi thinks we shall live other lives of struggle. (Stanza XIV.)

11.—He believes in pre-natal existence. (Stanzas XVI. and XXVII.)

12.—In the general summing up, many things will be taken account of that the world does not value. (Stanzas 23, 24 and 25.)

The last of life, being the period for summing up the results of life's struggles is the best. God planned life as a whole. Let us trust Him, and await the end with confidence.

I do not regret that the pleasures of life fail to satisfy the longings of the soul; but rather rejoice on account of the hopes and fears of youth, and

"Prize the doubt
Low kinds exist without."

Life would be poor indeed if it were formed only to satisfy the sensual appetites, and to end when we were no longer capable of sensual enjoyments.

The Divine Spark within us proves that we are more nearly related to "God who gives" than to His tribes that take."

Let us cheerfully welcome the pains and difficulties of life and struggle bravely to the end, knowing that, though we may not appear to accomplish much, we shall be rewarded for the efforts we have made.

Man is no better than a brute if his sole desire is to satisfy his bodily wants. What can the body do at its best towards projecting the soul on its lone way?

Yet the body has its uses. We receive knowledge through the senses which is treasured up in the brain, and, when the whole design becomes known to us, and we recognize perfect love as well as power, we see that it was good to live and learn, and thank God that we were men,

"For aye removed
From the developed brute."

The soul, at times, becomes weary with the struggle, and falls back on the body for rest. Though we may not be able, while the struggle is going on, to count our soul-gains, let us cheerfully acknowledge that all things are working for our good, and leave to age the summing up of results and the granting of youth's heritage.

By my experience in this life I shall be better fitted for new struggles in the next life. Age will enable me to weigh all things and properly estimate their real worth.

"Young, all lay in dispute; I shall know, being old."

When the evening of this life shuts and we get a view of the glory separated from the gray, a whisper comes—Add this (the gains of the life now closing) to the rest" (the results of struggles in former lives.)

It is better that men should cease from struggle, in old age, and watch the work of the Master, as it was better that youth should strive, however unskilfully,

"Toward making, than repose on aught found made."

It is sufficient if age can clearly see the Good and Infinite and rest in that absolute soul-knowledge which distinguishes great minds from small, and which is independent of the reasoning intellect of youth. Who shall decide when men, while life's struggle is on, disagree as to the merits of an act?

"Let age speak the truth and give us peace at last."

True success cannot be estimated by work accomplished—

"Things done, that took the eye and had their price."

All that the world failed to take account of—

"All instincts immature,
All purposes unsure,
Thoughts hardly to be packed
Into a narrow act
Fancies that broke through language and escaped...
All I could never be,
All men ignored in me,
This, I was worth to God."

It is only fools who say, since all is change, live in the present. All that really exists lasts forever.

"Earth changes, but thy soul and God stands sure;
What entered into thee,
That was, is, and shall be."

The Divine Potter used life's machinery

"To give thy soul its bent,
Try thee, and turn thee forth sufficiently impressed."

What does it matter though the pleasures of youth have lost their attraction, and though

"Shall-things in order grim Grow out in graver mood?"
"Look thou not down but up!"

The cup made by the earthly potter is meant for the

"Lamp's slash, and trumpet's peal,
The new wine's foaming flow,
The master's lips aglow!"

What needs thy soul, heaven's consummate cup, with the things of earth?

But I need Thee, God, as I needed Thee when the battle raged most fiercely; and, since, not even in the midst of the strife, did I forget that my proper end was to satisfy Thy desire, take now Thy work and "Perfect the cup as planned!

Let age approve of youth, and death complete the same."

Conclusion.

In what I have written, I do not pretend to have exhausted the thoughts suggested by this most difficult poem, and much less do I claim infallibility for the explanation given. Some of the thoughts are put forth tentatively with the hope that they may provoke discussion, and lead to additional light being thrown on a most interesting subject. This is especially true of what I have said on stanza XVI.; but, though I regard the explanation there given as rather fanciful, the fact of the Rabbi's belief in pre-natal existence remains unaffected, that belief being clearly stated in stanza XXVII.

I claim no originality for the method of treatment. Other writers have used the same method; but no other, so far as I know, has gone so fully into the subject.

If I have used the language of others, I have done so unconsciously. Most of the thoughts would, of course, be common to all.

I have written with nothing but the poem before me, and have tried to express my own opinions.

I shall gladly welcome any criticisms whether of a private character or through the columns of the press, which show a disposition to arrive at truth.

The work has cost me some time and thought; but, if it serves to awaken an interest in the study of Browning's poetry, I shall feel amply repaid.

Bensfort Friends Said Farewell To Mr. and Mrs. Kerr

Popular Residents of That Section Were Honoured by Their Neighbours.

A very pleasant gathering was held at the residence of Mr. Isaac Kerr, Bensfort, last night, when a large number of friends assembled to bid farewell to Mr. Kerr and his family who leave on Monday to take up their residence in the Northwest.

About ninety guests were present, and the evening was a most enjoyable one, although it signified the departure of those who had been most popular with their fellow citizens. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr proved ideal hosts and everything possible was done for the comfort and amusement of their guests. Dancing was the form of entertainment most in vogue, and excellent music for the purpose was provided by Messrs J. Chambers and Wm. Smith.

At an appropriate stage in the proceedings, Mr. S. Blakley, on behalf of the gathering, presented Mr. Kerr with a handsome fur coat, while Mrs Blakley gave a pair of fur gauntlets and a fur cap to Mrs. Kerr.

Mr. Robert Fisher read an address on behalf of the company.

Mr. Kerr replied on behalf of himself and his family expressing his regret at having to leave Bensfort, and thanking his neighbours for the many kindnesses shown.

At the present time there are in the Children's Shelter 16 children, from two to eight years of age, whom the officers would like adopted into good homes. These are all bright healthy children and the officers in charge are confident that they would grow up to be a credit to those who adopt them.

The Society also wishes to thank Mrs. Hazlett for a much appreciated gift of flanellette, thread, etc.

Do you know that the demand for copper far exceeds the supply?

Do you know that, in the whole of Canada, there is only one copper refinery?

Eggs Continue To Decline In Price

So seldom is it that such bright, clear weather, as is experienced today, occurs, that a greater number than usual was present at this morning's market.

Communities within radii of over fifteen miles from the city, were represented, and the country roads today all appeared to lead to the market.

Although there were many varieties of commodities the buying was generally brisk, and large quantities of produce were rapidly disposed of.

Eggs are still on the decline in price and sold to-day at 16c and 17c per dozen.

Butter remains firm in price and also in condition, notwithstanding the mildness of the weather. It was offered to-day at 25c per lb.; some creamery butter sold at 27c.

Chickens were in abundance to-day again, and sold at the reliable price of from 80c to $1 per pair.

Turkeys sold from $1.50 to $2 each, according to size.

There was some very nice pork on the market, which quickly changed ownership at from 9 to 10c for fore and 10 and 11c for hind quarters.

Beef, too, was rather plentiful selling at 5 and 6c for front and hind quarters respectively.

Vegetables, particularly potatoes and carrots, were much in evidence as there was no danger of them being frozen.

Sweet apples and Russets were offered at $1 per bag to-day; Spies, from $1.30 to $1.50.

The following were the prevailing quotations at to-day's market:

Canada Life
Assurance Company

Address at the Annual Meeting by Hon. Geo. A. Cox

At the Annual Meeting of the Above Company, Held on Feb. 28th, the President Spoke as Follows:

In business and financial circles there seems very general approval of the Government's Insurance Commission. Unbiased opinion favours its personnel as well as its scope and the hope is expressed on all sides that within a very short time definite results will be attained. If there are abuses to be corrected the coming session of Parliament will doubtless make the necessary changes in existing laws. The local insurance men—both fire and life—seem especially relieved that matters connected with their business are to be definitely looked into. They do not appear to dread the ordeal for their companies. The more strict and searching the investigation, the better, apparently, they will be pleased. Not only the agents of the various companies, but the heads as well, seem unanimous in approving of Government investigation. Statements have appeared from the managements of several companies referring specifically to the matter. Perhaps no other utterance of the kind has attracted more attention than the frank statement of Senator Cox, President of the Canada Life, at that Company's recent annual meeting.

Asked for Investigation.

In referring to the desire of that company for an official examination, he said:

On the 25th of May last we invited the Commissioner of the State of Ohio to join with the Commissioner for Michigan in making the usual periodical examination of the Company. We also intimated to the officers of the Canadian Insurance Department at Ottawa that we should be glad to have them join in this investigation, but the Canadian Superintendent, having only a few months before made his usual examination, did not then think it necessary to make a further one. The Commissioner for Ohio also had such confidence in the ability and integrity of the Commissioner for Michigan that he considered it unnecessary to join in the examination, which was duly made by the officials of the latter department.

Again, in the month of September of last year, when the public mind was a good deal agitated over the investigation in New York, we renewed the request to the Canadian Superintendent of Insurance that we should be glad if he would make such further examination of all our affairs as he might deem necessary. We were, however, officially informed that the accounts for the year 1901 had all been verified and the securities examined, and that any further examination would be made at the Superintendent's regular approaching examination. This latter is referred to in the Directors' report.

In the month of November, last, during the session of the Armstrong Commission in New York, we offered to send our officers with official documents to New York to give evidence before that Committee appointed by the State of New York, where we also transact business. Not only did we offer to give evidence in New York, but we invited the Armstrong Commission to send their experts to our Head Office and make an examination of our affairs here.

You will thus see that we have made two requests to the Canadian Superintendent of Insurance for a special examination, one request to the Comptroller for Ohio, one to the Commissioner for Michigan, and two offers to the Armstrong Committee of the New York Legislature. The directors and officers of this Company submit that the foregoing statement of facts will satisfy any fair-minded person that the Company has shown a disposition to submit its affairs for examination to any recognized existing authority.

Capital and Charter.

In referring to the relations existing between the shareholders and policy-holders, Senator Cox gave the following explanation:

The company was, as you know, organized in August, 1847, and was incorporated by an act of the Legislature of the late Province of Canada, in April, 1849, with an authorized capital of $500,000. By section xxiii. of the Charter, authority was given the shareholders to increase the capital to a sum not exceeding £250,000. This authority was exercised in 1855-6 and payments were made on account of subscribed capital in various years following until, in 1864, the amount paid up was $125,000.00, at which it remained until 1900, when it was decided, after careful consideration by the shareholders, to require payment in full for the shares. Every dollar of this amount, $875,000.00, was paid in cash to the company by the shareholders, and this, as you know, was completed in 1904, the company now having a paid up capital of $1,000,000.00, of which 94 per cent. was paid in actual cash, and the balance of 6 per cent. by bonus out of profits during the early years of the company—1849 to 1865—when little or no cash dividends were paid to shareholders. From this you will see that the oft-repeated story of only $4,000 having been paid by the shareholders on account of the $125,000 of capital, is entirely without foundation.

In the early history of the Company the Act of Incorporation provided that profits arising from the business should be divided in the proportion of 25 per cent. to the shareholders and 75 per cent. to the policy holders. It remained in that way until the year 1879, when the shareholders made application for legislation providing that only 10 per cent. of the profits should be allotted to the shareholders, and not less than 90 per cent. to the policyholders. In order to get this change made, each individual shareholder had to give his consent before Parliament would interfere with his vested rights. The shareholders thus, of their own accord, voluntarily surrendered to the policyholders three-fifths of the profits to which they were entitled. The 10 per cent. to which they are still entitled is not increased, decreased, or in any way affected, by the amount of paid-up capital, whether it be $125,000.00 as it was, or $1,000,000.00, as it now is; in either case, under agreement ratified by Act of Parliament in 1879, the shareholders are entitled to one-tenth of the profits. When the amount paid-up was $125,000.00 the shareholders received for many years a dividend and bonus at the rate of 30 per cent. per annum. They were liable to be called upon at any time for $875,000.00, or $7 1-2 per cent. of the amount of their subscribed capital.

I will ask you to bear in mind that the $1,000,000.00 paid in by the shareholders earns at the average rate of the company's invested funds $49,200.00, leaving only $30,800.00 per year from the profits of the company to make up the 8 per cent. which they receive as dividends; it took practically the same amount to pay 30 per cent. on the $125,000.00 prior to 1900. That this stock dividend is no hardship upon the policyholders is evidenced from the fact that when spread over the $107,000,000.00 of business in force, this dividend, (over and above the interest earned,) costs the policyholders only about 30 cents per $1,000 of insurance per year, and for this they have not only the guarantee of $1,000,000.00 additional security, but a continuity of management and an assurance that it is in the shareholders' interest to make as large profits for policyholders as possible.

Investments.

A printed list is laid upon the table showing in detail every dollar of our Assets, aggregating over $30,000,000. Mr. Alex. Bruce, K. C, Chairman of the Investment Committee, and Mr. H. L. Watt, the Treasurer of the company, will give to any policyholder who may desire it—at the close of this meeting—the fullest information as to where, when, at what price, and from whom these various securities were purchased. Every transaction in the Investment Department is carried out upon the recommendation of the Treasurer to the Investment Committee, composed of Messrs. A. Bruce, K.C., B. E. Walker, J. W. Flavelle, Hon. W. Gibson, Dr. John Hoskin, K.C., Mr. H. R. Wood, the General Manager and the President, and each transaction is then reported to the full Board, which meets every two weeks. The securities of the company are worth a good deal more than their face value, and a good many thousands of dollars more than the price at which they stand in the books.

Strengthening of Our Reserves.

The strengthening of the Canada Life's policy reserves has received a good deal of discussion. Senator Cox explained the situation as follows:

The Act of 1899 required all companies to compute their reserves at 3 1-2 per cent. upon all business issued on and after the first of January, 1900, and to change all business then on their books to 4 per cent. before the end of 1910, and to 3 1-2 per cent. before the end of 1915. The shareholders, directors and officers of the company, after prolonged and careful consideration, and after consultation with our own actuary as well as the most eminent British and American actuaries, with a number of the most prominent financiers in Canada, and a number of our policyholders, came to the conclusion that it was in the best interests of the company to proceed with as little delay as possible to comply with the law, rather than take the full time that had been allowed by the Government at the request of some companies who thought that they would find it impossible to make the change at an earlier date. We believed then, and we as firmly believe now, that the course decided upon was the correct one in the interests of the policyholders as a whole. The sum of over $2,500,000.00, which had been added to our Reserves somewhat sooner than required by law, has not been lost or diverted from the policyholders any more than has the $10,000,000.00 of Reserve Fund held by the Bank of Montreal been diverted from its shareholders; indeed, there is added security to the policyholders, in that the portion of this sum represented by his policy is credited direct to his policy account. The amount has been carefully invested, providing additional security for policyholders and earning additional interest, which will increase their future profits.

As many persons do not understand the nature and function of a Reserve in life insurance, I may say that it is entirely different from the term Reserve in a Bank or ordinary joint stock company. In a life company the Reserve grows out of the idea of a level premium, for while the level premium is greater than is required to cover the mortality risk in the earlier years of the policy, it is less than would be required for the later years. This overpayment, with interest thereon constitutes the Reserve, and is a distinct liability, and absolutely necessary to enable the company to carry out its contracts. Without this accumulated Reserve, a level premium company would soon become insolvent. From another point of view the reserve is the sum which one company would have to hand over to another company to assume its contracts. Hence it is often called the Re-insurance Fund.

We have the most conclusive evidence that a very large majority of our policyholders are entirely in accord with the strong and safe policy that has been carried out, even though it did temporarily reduce the amount of surplus available for distribution as profits. The steady increase in our new business, a good percentage of which is additional insurance upon our present policyholders and new insurance upon the members of their families, testifies to the fact that we have a contented and satisfied body of policyholders, and well they may be satisfied. I have no hesitation in making the statement that no other company doing business in this country, Canadian, British or American, stock or mutual has given better security or better results to its policyholders — spread over a long term of years — than has the the Canada Life, and in these years I include our last two quinquennial distributions that have fallen somewhat below the previous distributions because of the strengthening of our Reserves.

The Minimum System.

These low-premium contracts, which it is stated were withdrawn in 1896, have come in for a good deal of discussion by holders who do not bear in mind the terms under which they were issued. Senator Cox explained that they are the equivalent of other contracts issued by the Canada Life at the same time, their distinguishing feature being a very low premium owing to the immediate application towards premium reduction of future profits. The policies specified that if the actual rate of profit earned was less than that assumed in advance the difference would be charged up against the policy. This, it was explained, was merely a measure of justice between minimum and full-profit policies.

How low the minimum premiums were is shown by the comparison with other plans made by Senator Cox:

WHOLE LIFE RATES.

Age	Full Profit 1879	Non-Prof. T 1879	Maximum Premium Minimum 1879	Present Rates
21	$18 60	$16 60	$13 80	$19 60
25	19 60	17 50	14 50	21 70
30	21 30	19 10	15 80	24 25
40	29 10	25 70	21 70	32 60
50	42 00	39 00	33 70	47 05

To further illustrate the working of this Minimum System let me give you the following example: On a $10,000.00 policy, issued in 1876, at age 35, where the premium was $294.00:

At the division of profits in 1885 the amount added to the policy was	$825 00
At the division in 1890 the amount added to the policy was	6 7 50
At the division in 1895 the amount added to the policy was	675 00
At the division in 1900 the amount added to the policy was	375 00
At the division in 1900 the amount deducted from the policy was	300 00
At the division in 1905 the amount deducted from the policy was	225 00

Showing that the policy now stands at $11 257.50

The Expense Ratio.

The expense ratios of all life companies have of late been criticised, and that of the Canada Life was very fully discussed by its president. He adds:

We have, in common with all other companies, been criticized because of our increased Expense Ratio, but the very keen competition has made it more expensive to obtain business; and, even with the largely increased commission which all companies are obliged to pay, the field men are not in many cases sufficiently well paid, because of the prevailing abuse that has in recent years crept into the business, whereby many agents are forced, through stress of competition and the importunities of assurors, to vie with each other to see who can give the largest rebate. The result is that the assurers received by way of rebate a very large proportion of the commissions on new premiums supposed to have been paid to the agents in Canada in 1905, and on account of which the companies are blamed for increased Expense Ratios. It is to be hoped, in the interest of the agents, the companies and the assured, that through some better understanding between the companies, through legislation or in some other way, this evil may be effectually eradicated from the business.

In respect to our own Expense Ratio, it is to a large extent the outcome of a well-considered policy that the directors deliberately entered upon when it was decided to extend our business to the United Kingdom and to further extend it in the United States.

It will be seen by reference to the records that our new paid-for business for the year 1900 was $6,207,943.00, whereas for 1905 it was $13,914,146.63. The total amount of business in force as at the 31st December, 1905, was $107,681,883.00; of this amount $42,461,831.00 has been placed on the books since January 1st, 1900, or say 40 per cent. of the total amount for the last six years, as against 60 per cent. for the previous fifty-three years of the company's history. This has been accomplished by the extension of our business to the United Kingdom, by opening additional Branches in the United States and by improved organization at home.

The opening up of new territory, the planting of new agencies and the rapid increase of new business are invariably and unavoidably accompanied by an increased Expense Ratio. While cordially and unanimously supported by my co-directors in the adoption of this policy, I, personally, take the full responsibility of having advised it, and I have no doubt whatever in my own mind that it will ultimately be of very great benefit to the Company and to the country. If it had been done fifteen years earlier we should by this time have had $100,000,000 of money invested in Canada to assist in the development of the country, instead of only $30,000,000, as we have at present; in other words, we are trying to bring back to Canada a portion of the many millions that foreign insurance companies have been taking out of this country for the past fifty years.

Perhaps the supreme test of a life company is not its Expense Ratio, which may properly vary with changing conditions, but what the company has done for its policyholders. In this regard the Canada Life can challenge a comparison with the best companies of the world. Here is its record as read by Senator Cox:

Returns to Policy Holders.

Shortly after the close of the year 1904 we proceeded to calculate and allot the profits due as at that date and other amounts due in April, 1905. From the Directors' Report you will see that we have, during the past year, paid out in profits to policyholders or applied to purchase bonus additions to policyholders nearly $1,200,000.00. When I say that after compiling, during the last quinquennial period, the transfer to the new reserve basis, we were able besides to allot to policyholders during the last year $1,200,000.00, I do not think that this Company or its Directors or agents have any reason to be ashamed of the records, especially when that record was accomplished at a time when we were rapidly extending our agencies to new territories at a considerable initial outlay.

I would like to place before you briefly a statement of the profit account between the Company and its policyholders since its commencement up to the end of 1905. It is often difficult for one not intimately acquainted with our total record to realize just how well the Directors of this company in the past 59 years have managed the great trust committed to their care.

From its organization to the end of 1905 the Company has received in premiums from policyholders	$52,630,923
Paid Policyholders and Beneficiaries	$30,911,307
Credited to Policyholders	29,329,367
Total paid or credited	$60,240,674
Ratio of amounts paid or credited to policyholders to premiums received from policyholders	114.5

In other words, during the past 59 years the Company has paid or credited to policyholders on the average, the sum of $114.50 for each $100.00 received in premiums from policyholders.

Further, of the amount received from premiums, while the larger part is for "with profit" policies, yet a considerable portion is also in connection with non-participating and annuity policies, and it may interest you to know that we have paid or allotted in profits to policyholders over $11,000,000.00, or over 20 per cent. of all premiums (both with and without profits) received from policyholders, and that, too, exclusive of the large amounts transferred at different periods from the surplus to strengthen the policyholders' Reserve, owing to the fall in the rate of interests from time to time. If we exclude the non-participating premiums and considerations received for annuities, the ratio of profit allotted to premiums received is approximately 25 per cent.

If a uniform bonus of 2 per cent. per annum or $20.00 per thousand had been allotted to the policyholders for every year since the Company came into existence, that would have been an exceptionally good record and we should have been able to strengthen our Reserves on a 3 1-2 per cent. basis without making any reduction whatever in the profits, but for many years the bonus additions to the policies were $25.00 and $26.25 per thousand per annum. This rate of bonus, which was quite too liberal for the years between 1865 and 1890, could not be maintained when the average rate of interest earned by the company on its investments fell at least 2 per cent. per annum. It was easier to obtain 6 1-2 per cent. per annum during that time than it is now, on equally good security, to earn 4 1-2 per cent. If you compute the difference of 2 per cent. per annum on our present assets of $30,000,000.00, you will see the loss in interest amounts to $600,000.00 per annum, or $3,000,000.00 for each quinquennial period of distribution. To overcome that difference in our interest earnings, to comply with the Government requirements in the strengthening of our Reserves, and to pursue, as we have done, a progressive policy in the extension of our business to the United Kingdom, will satisfy any fair-minded man that the attacks which have been made upon the Company and used by our competitors in distant fields, are unpatriotic, disloyal and false.

Policy Holders' Directors.

Two of the Policyholders' Directors, Mr. J. W. Flavelle and Hon. Wm. Gibson, spoke at some length upon the points touched upon in the Canada Life's annual report, and the president's address. Mr. Flavelle expressed himself as personally greatly pleased that the Government had issued a Commission, and as hoping the examination would be thorough, fearless and searching. He admitted frankly that it was hardly possible that its findings would endorse the judgment of the Directors, of any or all life insurance companies, Canadian, British or American, in all their methods of doing business or securing investments. He hoped, however, that it would establish the good faith and honour of the men who sat on the respective boards. For himself and his fellow directors he felt he could say without reservation that any possible errors were due to limitations of their human judgment and were of the same inadvertant character as the errors all men make at some time or other in their business affairs. Of one thing he was sure, and as policyholders' director wished to emphasize, that at no time had any director or body of directors attempted to secure advantages for Canada Life shareholders as against policyholders.

Hon. Mr. Gibson said in the course of his remarks:

Every gentleman upon this board, whether he be policyholders' director, or shareholders' director, does what he can to uphold the best interests of the company. I want to say here in the presence of these gentlemen who have done so much for the policyholders of this company, that the question of the shareholders is never considered at this table — only the best interests of the Canada Life and its policyholders. Never for the ten years that I have had a seat on this Board have the claims of the shareholders been discussed against the interests of the policyholders. I do not know that I could make it stronger, but I join word for word, if I could make it more emphatic, with the statement made by Mr. Flavelle that neither one man nor another during the whole ten years that I have been on this board has had one dollar pledged to his advantage directly or indirectly by any recommendation made by this board. All the investments of the company are most carefully and honestly considered, and if found wanting are cast aside, and if one man on the Board says that any particular investment should not go through, that particular investment won't go through, and that settles it.

DOMINION PERMANENT LOAN COMPANY.

The 15th annual meeting of the dominion Permanent Loan Company was held in Toronto on Wednesday, March 7, a large number of shareholders being present. The report presented showed that after payment of dividends amountint to $69,427.40, writing $1,058.85 off office furniture, and transferring $40,000 to the reserve fund of the company, which makes the total reserve $200,000, there was a balance of profits of $19,099.89 left for further distribution. The president in presenting the report, dwelt upon the satisfactory demand for loans experienced by the company during the past year, the great prosperity of the Dominion, as evidenced by great activities in financial, industrial and general enterprises, creating a constant growth in population and a consequent greater demand for moneys, from which he gathered that the future years of the company's existence would prove even more successful than the past. The following directors were elected: Hon. J. R. Stratton, D. W. Karn, Woodstock; C. Kloepfer, Guelph; Wm. Finlay, Winnipeg, and George H. Cowan, K.C., Vancouver. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Hon. J. R. Stratton was elected president, and Mr. D. W. Karn, vice-president.

NEED OF THE CANAL.

The lake navigation returns show that 41,025,845 bushels of wheat were shipped out of Fort William and Port Arthur during the season of 1905. More than 29,000,000 bushels were carried by Canadian vessels, and less than 12,000,000 bushels by foreign vessels. Some 27,254,342 bushels were carried to Canadian ports and 13,771,503 bushels to American ports. Buffalo got 11,285,499 bushels of this Canadian wheat. Depot Harbour came next with 8,887,163 bushels, Montreal 6,581,855, Owen Sound 2,474,175, Midland 2,731,714, Point Edward 2,273,846, Goderich 1,895,710, and Kingston 965,625 bushels, while Meaford, Port Colborne and Thorold received smaller consignments. The fact that a third of the shipments went through American channels shows that there is still room for improvement in Canadian transportation facilities, which circumstance emphasises the necessity for improving our canal system by the completion of the Trent. Great strides have been made in two or three years, and still greater will be made in the next two or three. Lake port facilities will be increased, and the railways will be in a position to handle the grain trafffic more efficiently east of the great lakes, but the greatest strides of the decade, or indeed, of the century, will be the introduction of the finished Trent Canal.

TWISTING THE DRAGON'S TAIL

Our Yankee neighbours, must, it seems, have an object for their mania for tail twisting. The British lion was for a long time the object of this national pastime, and the dignified old beast paid but indifferent attention so that the exercise was comparatively harmless. Now China comes in for a little spread eagleism, and a little twisting of the dragon's tail. The United States has excluded Chinese citizens from its borders, and Chinese goods by a Chinese tariff wall. In recognition of these attentions the Chinese people decided to boycott Yankee goods—won't buy American cotton even if treated with China clay. The boycott became so serious a matter that the United States becomes alarmed, and now it seems is adopting a policy of bluster, threatening war to compel the Chinese to buy American goods. The Yankees by tariff arrangement compels their own citizens to buy goods at a higher price than other countries would supply them. China naturally declines to be coerced, and American bluster, it appears, does not seriously frighten them. The New York World speaks plainly of the effect of the American attitude in influencing the Chinese against foreigners. The World says:—

If the United States had expressly sought to inflame the Chinese mind against foreigners it could hardly have gone about it more effectively. The General Staff works out the plan of an invasion of China by an American army. Secretary Taft sends its recommendations to Congress, and follows them up by appearing before a House Committee to urge an appropriation. When he gets little encouragement he publicly expresses his disappointment. The newspapers are told in Washington that this or that General will command the expedition if it starts; that this and that regiment are being sent to the Philippines to be in readiness; that the Government is negotiating with steamship-owners for transports. Even eminent strategists like Gen Funston are permitted to give out interviews about the necessity of the campaign and a large force.

Reports of all these official sayings and doings reach the Chinese people, and the Imperial Government finds itself embarrassed in allaying popular resentment. An Imperial edict is published in Pekin declaring that the reports are circulated by traitors who hope to separate China from her friends. Yet it is in official circles at Washington that they originated. They have been kept going and growing there and in China by the cynical rectlessness of spokesmen of the Administration. Senator Hale does well to protest that the declaration of war must lie not with the General Staff or the War Department, but with Congress.

We speak with contempt of the Chinese people because they are a weak nation, because they submit to foreign bullying and display no sense of patriotism. Yet when they grow restless under provocation we magnify local disturbances into national outrages and even think of nothing to do but invading their territory with armed forces because they are not more passive under threats of violence than we should be ourselves.

LEADERSHIPS.

It may be possibly a little disheartening to Hon. Mr. Ross, Leader of the Ontario Opposition, to confront a strong and arrogant Government side of the House, at the head of so small a band of followers. But he knows that they are a Spartan band — full of courage and of fight, faithful and loyal to his leadership, and heartily united. But it must be intensely disheartening for Hon. Mr. Borden, leader of the Dominion Opposition, to face the House with so small a band of followers, and to know that among his nominal following, small as it is, there are several candidates for the constituency first represented by Judas, that an uncasy hand steals often towards the handle of the knife, and especially that the hoary leader of the Conservative party in thee grave and reverend Senate, repudiates his leadership, and refuses to respond to the caucus call. As an able and high-minded gentleman, Mr. Bordon is entitled to sympathy, the more because the fault is not his. How can a leader lead who is not the leader of a party that can be led. The party as a whole would doubtless follow Mr. Borden — but afar off, seeing that the loaves and fishes are far away — but the ambition or insubordination of several leading cranks of the party create conditions that no leader can cope with. Sir John Macdonald himself could not have done so. And he wouldn't have tried. He would simply kill the mutinous element, and rule over a united party, or know the reason why.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It seems a little paradoxical, but members of the Dominion Parliament can better earn their increased sessional indemnity by doing less work. The longer the session lasts the greater the expense, and the more the members talk — their form of work — the longer the session.

The Globe recalls the curious fact that several of the most helpful expositors of the British constitution have been foreigners — principally Frenchmen. This, in turn, recalls the fact, that the most helpful, if not the only considerable expositor of the Canadian constitution, was a Frenchman, by descent, at least — Sir J. G. Bourinot, author of "The Constitution of Canada."

The proposition to enlarge the jurisdiction of the Division Court, to include amounts of $100, in suits for damages, $200 in suits on open accounts, and $400 when the amount is known, is regarded by many as a move in the right direction, inasmuch as a larger opportunity is given to litigants of moderate means to make an attempt to get justice at a minimum of costs, that is, if there is such a thing as a minimum in connection with law costs. Yet, on reflection, is this a benefit? Does not the experience of most men with litigation suggest the idea that if law expenses were made so great as to deter the people generally from going to law no very great calamity would follow?

Guild Concert At St. Paul's An Enjoyable One

Musical Programme Last Night Was of a Delightful Character —Numerous Solos Given by Talented Singers and Violinists—Y. M. C. A. Orchestra Assisted—Shepherdess Drill a Feature of the Evening—Addresses on Wit and Humour

SUCCESS OF CONCERT DUE TO REV. MR. McKAY

Those who were at St. Paul's church last night to hear the concert given under the auspices of the St. Paul's Presbyterian Guild were not disappointed.

The programme was chiefly of a musical character, interspersed with a number of humourous addresses, and was listened to by an appreciative audience which filled the Sunday school room to its capacity.

Rev. Dr. Torrance occupied the chair, and introduced in his customary affable manner the delightful programme.

The Y.M.C.A. orchestra was present, and in three excellent selections showed their capability as musicians. Miss Clara Belleghem sang "Forebodings" with excellent effect, and was so heartily encored that she gracefully responded with "The Parting Hour." "Irish and Scotch Wit and Humour" was the subject of an address by Mr. Walter Davidson. His many witty stories in the exemplification of his subject were very catching and easily captured the approbation of those present.

Mr. W. L. McIlroy's solo, "Killarney," was rendered with an excellent accent and is worthy of mention.

Miss Eva Irwin, a youthful virtuoso, gave a charming violin solo, the "Cradle Song," by Hausor, and as a violinist is most promising. Miss Mattie Robertson performed the important role of accompanist to Miss Irwin in a very pleasing manner.

The "Shepherdess Drill," by 12 girls from Knox church, was one of the most pleasing features of the evening. It was of an intricate character, but was executed very gracefully by the young ladies. Miss Gwendoline Hall presided at the piano and assisted greatly in making the drill a successful one.

Messrs. Dawson and Crane were heard to excellent advantage in the duet, "The Battle's Eve," and received well-merited recognition from the audience.

"English and American" wit and Humour" was treated in a masterly manner by Mr. F. H. Dobbin. His anecdotes, like Mr. Davidson's, were of a very amusing nature and were thoroughly enjoyed.

Miss Lilian Moore sang a solo in her usual exquisite style, which was so heartily enjoyed that she was forced to respond, giving as an encore "The Carnival."

Miss Clara Belleghem was heard again in a sympathetic solo, "Love's Coronation." Her numbers during the evening were much appreciated and were all characterized with a delicacy of finish which made them most satisfactory.

Those who presided as accompanists were Mrs. (Dr.) Torrance, Mr. F. E. Waldon and Mr. John Crane.

The delightful evening was brought to a conclusion by the singing of "God Save the King."

Much credit is due Rev. McD McKay, who was instrumental in the preparation of the excellent programme which undoubtedly proved very gratifying to him.

BABIES NEED Lactated Food Instead of Medicine

Ninety-nine babies out of every one hundred who are emaciated, weak, sickly and almost lifeless, require food, not medicine. When we say food, we do not refer to the poor preparations such as many babies are now fed on, but Lactated Food, that perfect substitute for healthy breast milk—a food that babies love, that builds up flesh, bone and muscle, and that makes the little ones happy and contented. Infants fed on Lactated Food are never sick; they are raised to childhood vigourous and strong. Try it for your baby, dear mother, if it is not thriving. All Druggists.

Canada Life's Banner Year

The Policy Holders' Profits Amounted to $1,200,000.

There is a "monotony of success" in the Canada Life's Annual reports which is far from uninteresting. The published statement appearing in these columns shows 1905 to have been a "banner year." That 1906 is not going to fall behind seems already assured, for more new business has been written during January and February than in the corresponding months of even 1905. The paid-for new business of the past year was $12,246,000, this being more than $1,000,000 over that for 1901. The total business of the company is shown as being now well on to $108,000,000.

Policyholders received from the Company in 1905 no less than $3,272,000, of which about $1,200,000 consisted of dividends upon policies. In this connection a statement of the President in his annual address is not without bearing. The records show that in affording its millions upon millions of insurance protection, the Canada Life has already paid or credited to policyholders $114.50 for every $100 received as premiums. There is evidence here of unusual and continued skill in the handling and investing of the great fund entrusted to the Company's charge.

A Lecture to Men Only.

A lecture of interest to men will be given in the Sons of England Hall Friday, the 16th inst., at 8 p.m., by Mr. S. A. McCaw, manager of the Canadian "Viavi" Company, who has been invited here by a committee of prominent citizens. He will speak to MEN ONLY of the construction of the human body, some causes of ill-health and Dr. Law's natural system of treatment. This system suggests methods of education along natural lines and will enable men to care intelligently for their own health and the health of their wives and children. Dr. Law, who is the founder of the "Viavi" system of treatment, is the lecturer on the History of Medicine in the Hahneman College, San Francisco, the largest homeopathic college west of Chicago. A cordial invitation is extended to the intelligent men of Peterborough.

An Appeal For A Courageous Woman

A short time ago subscriptions were asked towards the price of a sewing machine for a woman lately arrived from England. She had suffered the amputation of one leg, and was completely dependent. She was very anxious however not to become a public charge, and felt that if she had a sewing machine she could earn her own living.

In response to the appeal $15 was raised, and with the generosity of Mr. Swift, of the Singer Company, the machine procured, and a balance of $5 now remains in the treasury, which will be used for her benefit. As she has a little child depending on her for support it will be extremely difficult for her to earn a living for herself and her child with a sewing machine, especially since she has but one leg. It is now proposed to purchase a small electric motor to provide the power. The cost will be $26, and the cost of institution small. If $26 is subscribed it can be arranged and she will be placed in a position where she would be independent. An appeal is made for funds for this purpose, and the Examiner will be glad to receive donations.

Since writing the above it has been learned that the police yesterday arrested a total stranger who was collecting for this fund. He had in his possession ten dollars, which he had collected, and the Magistrate directed that it be given to the fund, which leaves now only $15 to be subscribed. Those who gave money to this stranger will have the satisfaction of knowing that their money will be directed to the purpose they intended in giving it

The Home Circle Order Attains Its Majority

Annual Meeting to be Held Here Next Week—300 Delegates Will be in Attendance—Membership of the Order Has Reached 17,5 —Has Paid Out $2,485,000 in Death Benefits—No Rate Agitation in the Order.

A SURPLUS OF $275,000 REACHED

The annual meeting of the Supreme Circle of the Order of Canadian Home Circles will be held in the court house Peterborough, this week, beginning at 2 p.m. on Tuesday. There will probably be about 300 delegates in attendance, as there are about 375 lodges extending from Halifax to Vancouver and each lodge is entitled to a delegate.

The order has just closed its 21st year, and this is the first time the Supreme Circle meeting has been held east of Toronto. The Supreme officers of the order are as follows:

John S. Dench, Past Supreme Leader, Trenton.

J. L. Buck, Supreme Leader, Port Rowan.

Wm. Stark, Supreme Vice-Leader, Toronto.

J. M. Foster, B.A., Supreme Secretary, Toronto.

W. H. Weston, Supreme Treasurer, Toronto.

Rev. R. M. Phalon, Supreme Chaplain, Blackstock.

John R. Brown, Supreme Marshal, Sault Ste. Marie.

W. A. Trueman, Supreme Warden, Campbellton, N.B.

E. C. Phelan, Supreme Guard, Amherst, N.S.

John Wilson, Supreme Sentinel, Alliston.

W. A. Dowler, B.A., K.C., Supreme Solicitor, Tilsonburg.

P. M. Pattison, Supreme Organizer, Toronto.

A. T. Hobbs, Supreme Medical Examiner, Guelph.

A. M. Tobin, A. R. Thompson, Supreme Auditors.

Elias Clouse, M.D.; T. R. Young, M. B. Graham, Supreme Trustees.

C. H. Denton, Dent Dalton, Jas. S. Scarff, Supreme Finance Committee.

T. Paradine, M. Y. Keating, S. Devlin, Supreme Committee on Laws.

Mrs. A. E. Cameron, R. W. Hawkins, R. R. Mowbray, Supreme Committee on Appeals.

Rev. E. B. Stevenson, Hon. R. Harcourt, John S. Dench, Board of Past Supreme Leaders.

In the 21 years of the existence of the order it has attained a membership of over 17,500, and it has paid $2,485,000 in death benefits, over $29,000 in Total Disability Benefits, and about $20,000 in old age or Life Expectancy Benefits, besides $45,000 to those who have been temporarily disabled by sickness or accident.

The Home Circle is one of the societies that has no rate question agitating the membership, because it has adhered to its original plan and has collected the number of assessments required each year to pay its claims and accumulate a surplus of about $275,000. Instead of raising the rates this order has raised the number of assessments as required. In 1904 16 assessments were collected, being the highest in the history of the order. In 1905 only 14 assessments were collected and about $20,000 was added to the surplus.

The meeting will likely last two days.

Murphy And McManus Boys Were Fined

Thos. Campbell admitted being drunk and disorderly at the police court this morning

"Whore do you come from?" asked the court

"From Scotland" said Campbell

"Why, they don't get drunk in Scotland, do they?" said His Worship, in apparent surprise "I'll let you go this time," he added, "but don't come here again"

Patrick Murphy appeared on a similar charge

"Is this the man that had his ear bitten off?" asked the Magistrate He was informed that it was not

James and John McManus were also accused of being drunk and disorderly The whole three entered a plea of not guilty Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for Murphy, and Mr. F. D. Kerr looked after the interests of the McManus brothers

The row occurred in the bar of the Royal Cafe, and Wm Davidson, the bar-tender, was the first witness examined He said that Murphy struck the first blow He told the combatants to go out if they wanted to fight The police were sent for, but the fight was over before they arrived

"In your experience," said the court, "how long does it take to put an Irishman up in the fighting line?" The query evoked much mirth in the court room

The witness was not prepared to answer the question

A man by the name of Morrison the hostler, went after the chief, but didn't see the row

Patrick Murphy said he was knocked down and kicked on the head by both the McManus brothers Jas McManus said to John, "There he is now, you'll never get a better chance"

Witness knew of no reason why they should pick a quarrel with him He had always been good friends with the brothers

"After you heard the threat made, what happened?" asked Mr Kerr, in cross-examination

"I got it," said Murphy

Witness didn't remember much of the aftermath of the altercation Said he was conveyed to Hogan's Hotel

John McManus said that Murphy called him a foul name and accused him of trying to beat his brother Witness said he wasn't intoxicated

Jas McManus didn't know where Murphy got his black eye He didn't kick him, nor did he know of his brother kicking him Mr. Kerr argued that John Murphy was in no way involved in the row, and did not think that he should be punished His Worship thought they were all three guilty of a breach of the peace, however, and fined John McManus and John Murphy $2 and $2 60 costs each, and Jas. McManus $5 and the same costs

BENZINE TANK EXPLODES.

Four Hamilton Workmen Badly Burned and Battered.

Hamilton, March 10.—Four men were hurt last evening about 7 o'clock at F. W. Bird & Sons roofing paper factory in the annex, and a small building was wrecked, by the explosion of a tank of benzine.

The men were engaged in a little brick building, about 15 feet square, in which benzine was stored in iron tanks. They were mixing benzine with a preparation used for roofing paper.

They had a lantern, and one of the men, John Leith, saw that it was beginning to splutter. He grabbed and started for the door, but he was not quick enough to prevent it from igniting the benzine fumes.

The whole tank of benzine exploded, blowing Leith out into the yard. He was not very badly injured, but the other three men who were penned in the building were very seriously, though not fatally injured.

The explosion practically blew the whole building down, and the men were battered by the flying bricks and pieces of iron, badly burned about the face and arms.

The injured are: Supt. Fisher, 211 South James street; J. Hainsworth, 297 North James street, and Hugh Reid, 81 Charles street. All were taken to the city hospital.

Fletcher was committed to stand his trial on two different charges; of stealing a barber's hydraulic chair, a mirror, about one dozen razors, two sets of hair clippers, and other paraphernalia of a barber's outfit, the property of Angus McLean, whose place was burned, and of stealing double and single harness from eGorge Brooks, Township of Huron.

SIDE OF OFFICIALS.

New York State Investigating Committee Hears "Big Three Presidents.

Albany, N. Y., March 10.—For many dreary hours yesterday, until nearly midnight last night, the joint special legislative insurance investigating committee listened to arguments of insurance president, actuaries and agents against some of the most important and far-reaching provisions of the bills amending the state insurance law and embodying the recommendations of that committee as the results of its protracted and sensational investigations of the conditions of the life insurance business in this state.

The hearing was in striking contrast with the investigation itself, and was a marked disappointment to those who had expected either a bitter onslaught upon the bills or an occasion of sensational utterances. With few exceptions the speeches were of an extremely technical character.

An interesting feature of the hearing was the presence and speeches of three new presidents of the "Big Three" life companies of the New York City, Paul Morton, ex-Secretary of the Navy, who succeeded James W. Alexander at the head of the Equitable; Alexander E. Orr, successor to the late John A. McCall, as president of the New York Life, and Charles A. Peabody, successor to Richard A. McCurdy, as president of the Mutual Life.

The hearing was adjourned at about 11.30 p. m., until next Thursday at 2 p. m., when it will be resumed and continued Friday as long as may be necessary.

Kentucky Reforms.

In House of Lords Also.

London, March 10.—The Earl of Onslow, Conservative, gave notice in the House of Lords yesterday of his intention to question the Government as to whether, in view of the disclosures made regarding certain American insurance companies, it proposes to compel foreign companies doing business in Great Britain to keep in this country a sufficient proportion of their securities to cover the claims of British policyholders. The matter will come up in the House next week.

KLEINGBEIL MURDER CASE.

During Daughter's Evidence Old Man Broke Down and Cried.

Belleville, March 10.—The preliminary investigation into the Kleingbeil murder case began in the police court here before Magistrate Flint yesterday afternoon. Intense interest is manifested in the case, and the court room was crowded.

William Little told of his discovery of the crime, and how he had informed the authorities. Dr. Yeomans, who was first called to the injured woman, told of how he had visited her and how old Kleingbeil had said he pounded her with his fists because she was "sassy"; he also told that they had quarreled over their son, Herman, who, the old fellow said, was not his son.

Drs. Gibson and Boyce, who conducted the postmortem, gave technical descriptions of the woman's injuries, which, they said, caused death and could not have been self inflicted.

Mrs. Dulmage, daughter of the Kleingbells', was the object of much sympathy as she gave her testimony. She sobbed all the time, and the old prisoner broke down and cried as his daughter told of finding her mother in a dying condition. Her father told her that he and her mother quarreled, her mother was saucy and he beat her. Drink, he said, was the cause of it. He also spoke of her brother Herman.

Herman Kleingbell was a new witness. He testified that before he left home, years ago, he had known his father to abuse his mother, both with his tongue and his fists.

The old man grew excited as his son gave this testimony, and afterwards denied it to the police magistrate.

At 4.30 the hearing was adjourned till Tuesday morning next. Very little sympathy is expressed for Kleingbell, especially among those who know him best.

Seals Plentiful.

Halifax, N.S., March 10.—A despatch from Moat Cove, C. B., says good harp seals were taken at Magdalen Islands Thursday and a large catch for the season is predicted.

Starfish and Oyster.

The starfish kills the oyster by enveloping him closely in his arms; then, placing his mouth to the crevice of the shell, he injects a very acrid and venomous juice within. The poor oyster, disgusted by the poison, opens his shell to admit water and so rid himself of it, and thus falls a prey to the destroyer.

Poppaea, one of the wives of Nero, used to take with her a troop of 500 asses so that she could enjoy the luxury of a bath in asses' milk, which was supposed to have the property of making the skin tender.

Long ago poverty stricken English parents sold their offspring to the Irish, who made slaves of them.

Greenland Women.

Many Greenland women are perfectly bald on the sides of their heads, owing to their method of dressing the hair, which is pulled back with painful tightness and held in place by a ribbon.

A WOMAN'S BACK IS THE MAINSPRING OF HER PHYSICAL SYSTEM.

The Slightest Backache, if Neglected, is Liable to Cause Years of Terrible Suffering.

No woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well, and regular in their action. When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to have filtered out of the blood are left in the system.

The female constitution is naturally more subject to kidney disease than a man's; and what is more, a woman's work is never done—her whole life is one continuous strain.

How many women have you heard say: "My, how my back aches!" Do you know that backache is one of the first signs of kidney trouble? It is, and should be attended to immediately. Other symptoms are frequent thirst, scanty, thick, cloudy or highly colored urine, burning sensation when urinating, frequent urination, puffing under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

These symptoms if not taken in time and cured at once, will cause years of terrible kidney suffering. All these symptoms, and in fact, these diseases may be cured by the use of

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

They act directly on the kidneys, and make them strong and healthy.

Mrs. Mary Galley, Auburn, N.S., writes: "For over four months I was troubled with a lame back and was unable to turn in bed without help. I was induced by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills. After using two-thirds of a box my back warms well as ever."

Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

BANQUETTED AT BRANTFORD.

Prof. Graham Bell Is a Guest of "the Telephone City."

Brantford, March 10.—More than 200 attended the annual banquet of the Brantford Board of Trade at the Kirby House last night.

The principal attraction was Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, who delivered an address in which he outlined the events leading up to his invention in 1874 and the first transmission of speech over actual wires in 1876.

He declared Brantford was the home of the telephone, and that the first actual transmission had occurred here.

Forestry Journal Wanted.

Ottawa, March 10.—E. Stewart has been elected president of the Forestry Association, and H. M. Price, vice-president. Yesterday morning a deputation from the Canadian Forestry Association asked the Prime Minister for further Government aid towards forestry work. One of the objects aimed at is the publication of a monthly journal.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

An Effective Evening Coiffure—New Umbrella Handles—Care of Veils.

An effective and new way of ornamenting the hair for the evening is to purchase a yard of silver or gold gauze ribbon, tie it around the coiffure and fasten at the left side in a series of smart upstanding bows and loops. In place of the gauze ribbon chene effects may be used.

A woman would be difficult to please who grumbled at the selection of umbrella handles which are being shown just now in the shops. Apart from the ordinary designs in plain woods and metals, oriental effects are prominent, particularly in long handles of antique wood inset with ivory. Handles covered with skin and mounted with silver or gold are among the season's novelties. Frog, alligator, elephant and pig skins are used for this purpose.

A net veil that has been caught in a shower of rain is not necessarily a spoiled veil, for by carefully detaching it from the hat in order not to tear the mesh and then pinning it over a pillow the impromptu bath will sometimes prove a blessing by restoring the original stiffness. Chiffon veils stand considerably rough usage, and the black ones sometimes survive a season of almost continuous wear if they are not folded when damp.

The plaid gown in the cut is an attractive design for a useful little costume. The skirt is an umbrella affair, with a center front seam, the edges of which are cut out in mitered straps about two inches and a half in length. Velvet finishes the neck and makes the girdle and the cuffs on the short sleeves of this simple skirt waist.

Plaid Skirts Worn With Plain Coats. The New Circular Skirt.

Plaid skirts are to be much worn in the spring, with coats of a plain color harmonizing with the dominant tone in the plaid. The skirt is a semicircular shape, with graduated plaits starting from the hips until they arrive at deep folds, which hang loose at the hem.

by placing the corset cover over the slip.

New short petticoats in white china silk are made for smart trousseaux and have designs in English eyelet holes embroidered on them.

The success of a real Josephine tea gown or evening dress depends largely on the straightness of the corset in front. A curious skimped appearance near the knees is a peculiarity of the gown which on a tall and graceful woman is an acquired taste that has many admirers.

It is a noticeable fact that pure white in lace, chiffon, lawn and linen has taken the place of cream shades. As a rule, the former is vastly more becoming.

The spring hat illustrated is of white straw. The dome crown is encircled with a band of black velvet. At the indented side of the hat are a couple of black and white wings.

Nervous Diseases No Longer a Fad

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

"The breakdown of the nervous system is no more society craze from which it is fashionable to suffer, but is becoming a national calamity which bids fair to rob our descendants of many of those qualities which have done so much to make this empire what it is," writes Dr. Guthrie Rankin, an eminent London physician.

The keen competition of life is now felt in all grades of society, and as the result prostration, paralysis and insanity are becoming more and more common as the natural outcome of exhausted nerves.

Sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, headache and general lack of energy and ambition are among the early indications of nervous troubles, and with women the result is not infrequently derangements and irregularities of the feminine organism.

If a committee of experts on diseases of the nerves were to prescribe for you they would give you just such a formula as that of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for this medicine is composed of the most powerful nerve restoratives known to medical science.

This is no idle boast, as we shall be pleased to prove to you if you will have your physician call at these offices and examine the formula.

What we consider as better proof of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do for you is to be found in the letters of recommendation published from time to time in Dr. Chase's Almanac and in the newspapers of this country.

Naturally and gradually this great food cure forms new, rich blood, the substance from which the brain creates new nerve force. This is the only means by which diseases of the nerves can be actually cured. Stimulants and narcotics give temporary relief, but with great expense to the nervous system. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food slowly but ceretainly revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and by filling the body with vitality overcomes ness, sickness and disease.

A favourite means of proving this is by noting your increase in weight while using this medicine. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Latest News Of Winter Sports

What The Stratford BEACON HAS TO SAY Of Champions Treatment

The Supporters of the Goderich Team and the Way They Took the Defeat of Their Pets—Disgraceful Conduct Which the People of That Town Were Guilty Of—Could Not Stand Defeat.

That there are persons and newspapers in this province, to whom the victory of the Peterborough Intermediate Team was not a very pleasant dose, is quite apparent. Some of the papers have been ready enough to "pitch into" the Peterborough team on any pretence of rough play, but it is somewhat interesting, not to say amusing, to see the way questionable work is passed over when the offenders are outside teams.

The Peterborough team has had some pretty hard deals this winter, but they have said nothing about it at home or abroad and, so far as the Examiner is concerned, not one word has been said in these columns on the rough usage they have met with, except to republish the comments made by outside papers. The Examiner has studiously refrained from making any references on its own account on those occurrences, which have been anything but creditable to the perpetrators, for the reason it might be said that this paper had a brief for the team, and that it was "sore," because of some criticisms on the Peterborough players, something which cannot now be said.

Comparisons are odious, but if it was desired to make comparisons, the Examiner might refer to the "wails" of the Berlin papers ever since the games that they played with the Argos. They have done nothing but cry about "dirty hockey" until they have made themselves look ridiculous.

But, while the Examiner has not made any original comment on the treatment which has been meted out to the team on one or two of their trips, the other fair minded papers of the province have not been silent, and the following, from the Stratford Beacon will show what this class of journals have to say about the Peterborough team, and the way they took what was given them. The Beacon says:

"Many disgraceful acts of rowdyism occurred at Goderich on Monday night at the close of the Peterborough-Goderich game, which will, if condoned, result in Canada's great winter sport becoming not only unpopular but positively distasteful to the masses. We refer to the manner in which which some supporters in the northern town took their defeat. We can readily sympathise with a town or city when they see a coveted championship slipping from their grasp, when it has been all but won. Such was the case with Goderich. When they had blanked the visitors in the first half, and succeeded in scoring four goals, they were right in believing that they had more than a passing chance of tieing them on the round. And we must confess that the situation appeared hazy for Peterborough. However, when the sturdy Easterners reversed the order of things, and beat the sailors at their own game, why could the supporters—we do not blame the players — not take defeat like men, instead of resorting to such contemptible tactics as snow balling the players and their handful of supporters? Nor did the rowdies stop at this. It is stated that much harder missiles were used, and that some windows were broken by these, which had evidently missed their intended victims. One Peterborough player had in his possession several good-sized boulders which he alleged had been thrown at him, and which he had picked up to take back to his home as mementoes. If this is true there are several young men in Goderich who are dangerous to be at large, and terms in prison would serve as a fit deterrent to such shameful conduct. The subject is an oft-repeated one, but its lessons are so supremely important that it would be folly to ignore them.

Central School And Victors Even

Two juvenile hockey teams the Victors and the Central School figured last night between 7 and 8 at Brock street rink in a strenuous game for youngsters.

At half time the score was 3-2 in favour of the students; at full time the tally was 4 all. In ten minutes' over play each scored a goal, making another tie. For the Victors, Wade and Pratt put up a good sample of hockey and Long and Crane were the stars of the Centrals. The teams lined up as follows:—

Victors.		Central School.
O'Rielly	Goal.	Meldrum
Porter	Point.	Long
Wade	Cover Point.	O. Giroux
C. Giroux	Centre.	Heffernan
Harrison	Right Wing.	Hall
Pratt	Left Wing.	Crane

Port Hope Juniors Received O H. A. Medals Last Night.

The Port Hope Ontario Junior O.H.A. champions were banquetted in royal fashion last night, when they were presented with the O.H.A. medals. Mr. Melville Moore, of the local club, was one of the guests of the evening. A very enjoyable time was spent. The O.H.A. was represented by Secretary W. A. Hewitt.

HOCKEY

The Peterborough team, intermediate champions of the O.H.A., have challenged the Berlins, senior O. H. A. champions. Looks like a case of playing to the grand stand. Berlin has all to lose and nothing to win, and will hardly accept.—Belleville Intelligencer.

It's not a case of playing to the grandstand. The object of the game would be to decide the fastest team in the O. H. A.

• • • •

In sizing up the players of the two teams which will play in Toronto the News, speaking of the representative from Peterborough on the Eastern team, says:— Whitcroft, the centre man, comes from the champion intermediate team of Peterborough. It would be hard to surpass this player, as he can shoot from either side, and is as fast as almost any man in the O. H. A. Whitcroft has done a lot towards the winning of the championship for his team this season. He works well in combination plays and never "hogs" the puck.

• • • •

That challenge of Peterborough is one grand bluff. They know that Berlin is badly crippled and that some of the best players have quit the game. If they had not Berlin would have had a larger representation on the All-West team.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

• • • •

That's one of the unkindest cuts ever handed out and of the falsest and most dastardly libels that a sporting editor ever penned. Peterborough challenged Berlin with the intention of meeting their best team not for the sake of adding to their reputation by meeting a crippled seven.

Youths Quarrel On Street Corner

A jouvenile quarrel at the corner of Hunter and Water streets this afternoon, caused a great deal of excitement among the bystanders.

A youth by the name of Taylor, who lives on the 4th line of Smith, was casually walking along the street, when young Innis, a thirteen-year-old city boy with a none too good reputation, assaulted him without pretext. Taylor immediately took the law into his own hands and used his pedal extremities freely. Innis resorted to missiles from the roadside, but before much damage was done P. C. Stewart appeared on the scene and Taylor was taken to the police court in a much frightened condition. The young pugilists will appear before Magistrate Dumble next Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

THE STORY Is MISLEADING and FALSE

Some manufacturers of weak and almost worthless package dyes, now advertising their common products, and advising the ladies to use them, make the false and misleading claim that their crude dyes will colour all kinds of materials—wool, silk, cotton and mixed goods—equally well. This false claim has deceived many women in Canada, and to-day, disappointed women and girls deplore the loss of good garments and materials as well as hard-earned money.

MORAL:—Carefully avoid all adulterated, weak and common package dyes that may be offered to you by dealers looking for large profits and caring little for the comfort and welfare of our thrifty and economical women.

DIAMOND DYES, the world's favourites for successful home colouring, have scientifically prepared dyes for wool and silk, and for cotton and mixed goods, giving the best and most profitable results—bright, full and everlasting colours that never fade in sun or washing. Each colour of the DIAMOND DYES sells for 10 cents per package, same price that is demanded for the imitation and worthless dyes which destroy your goods and ruin your hands. Ask for the DIAMOND DYES and refuse all others.

Send your name and address to Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal, P.Q., and you will receive free of cost new Dye Book, Card of Dyed Cloth Samples and Booklet in verse, entitled "The Longjohns' Trip to the Klondike."

Endorsement For Carnegie Library

Havelock People Discover A Mine

the metal referred to, saw that it was exceedingly rich. He at once began to make some further investigations and found evidences of a considerable quantity of silver ore. He left the spot, after marking it well, and soon found the other members of his party, to whom he showed the specimen, and they were as enthusiastic over it as he was. They have kept their counsels well through the winter, however, and are jealously guarding their secret. They have never given the slightest hint as to to the location of the silver deposit, but those who have seen the metal say that there is no doubt as to its richness.

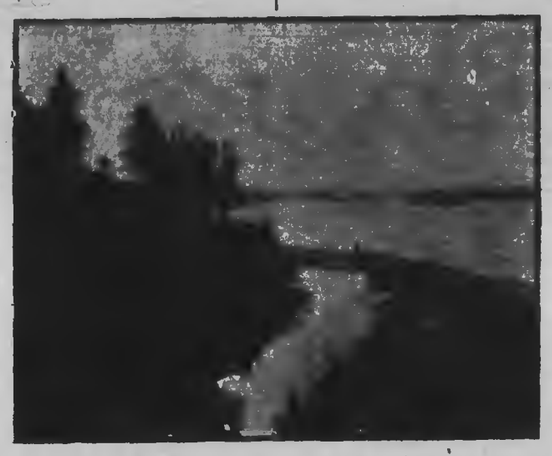
Since this find has leaked out, a number of persons have been quietly prospecting in the township, but, so far, it is said, they have not found the secret place of the silver deposit. The few who are on the inside state that as soon as the location is made public there will be a great rush to the district.

In the meantime the people are "lying low," and waiting for spring to start in to work the property. The persons interested profess great confidence in the future prospects for mining in Belmont. They say that the silver deposits rival those of the Cobalt district, a statement which will strike the majority of people as somewhat visionary, but which, in their opinion is feasible.

ron Prospects.

The mining question is one which is creating considerable interest in this vicinity at the present time. The recent success of the electric smelting process at the Soo has revived the question of re-opening the Blairton Iron Mines. It is understood that already negotiations have been entered into between the Peasee Company, the present owners of the property, and capitalists who are interested in the electric smelting business.

The close proximity of Healey Falls, four miles from the mines, gives rise to the possibility of applying electricity to smelting the ore at Blairton. There is no question as to the quantity of iron at this really wonderful mine. There are hundreds of thousands of tons in sight, but the presence of sulphur in the ore has, hitherto, made it unprofitable to smelt by the old method, but with the perfecting of the electric smelting process this difficulty will be overcome, and it would not be surprising to see Blairton the centre of an active mining camp in the course of a short time.



The above cut shows a view of the abandoned Blairton Mines. The hill to the left of the picture is of solid iron ore, and there are thousands of tons of it. Crow Lake is in the background, and the centre of the picture refers to the scene of former operations. The hole now filled with water, was once filled with ore. There is talk of the mines being re-opened.

Banquet Tickets Selling Rapidly

The General Committee appointed to arrange for the banquet to the hockey team will meet to-night in the Oriental Hotel to complete its work. It is reported that the sale of tickets is proceeding well, and the prospects are that the whole number issued will be disposed of. The citizens are taking a deep interest in the effort to honour the team, and the prospects are that there will be a large number of their admirers present.

Isolation Hospital Question Discussed

the city could do without some building for that purpose. Dr. Burnham concurred in this opinion.

A letter written by Dr. Bingham to the Provincial Secretary in reference to the hospitals being compelled by Dr. R. Bruce Smith, InSpector of Hospitals, to stop receiving infectious cases was read, as was Mr. Hanna's reply to the effect that he had not known anything about the matter and that it would receive his careful attention.

Mayor Best thought that before anything was done they should wait until they heard from the Provincial Secretary again.

Ald. Hicks said that the question was a large one to deal with, and suggested that the matter be left in the hands of a committee composed of the chairman of the Board of Health, Dr. Bingham, M.H.O., Dr. Burnham and the Finance Committee. This would give ample time to hear from Mr. Hanna and also to thoroughly investigate the question. The time had come when some steps had to be taken. He did not think that a heavy expenditure would be necessary.

A motion by Ald. Hicks, seconded by Ald. Johnston, along those lines was carried. Ald. Johnston in seconding the motion said that the matter must be considered as a serious one. He suggested that some of the buildings on the Hilliard property might be utilized for infectious cases until something better was provided.

It was pointed out that a deputation from Peterborough would be in Toronto on Tuesday next in reference to the city's private bill and it was moved by Ald. Elliott, seconded by Ald. Hicks that this deputation be empowered to wait upon the Provincial Secretary in reference to the question of an isolation hospital.

Dr. McNulty, who arrived at this stage of the meeting, said that there had been a radical change in the opinion of the medical profession as regards the efficiency of isolation hospitals. At the annual convention held in England last year it had been unanimously agreed that isolation was a failure. The country was divided into health districts about half of which contained isolation hospitals and the statistics went to show that the mortality and the number of cases was greater in the districts where there were isolation hospitals. The remedy suggested was to isolate the patient at home. It had been found that about 78 per cent. of the cases at home were single cases.

No further action was taken in the matter and the meeting then adjourned.

Honoured By Old Bensfort Friends

Mr. and Mrs. John Riddell Presented With an Address and Easy Chairs.

On Tuesday night, March 6th, the School Hall, Bensfort, was the scene of a very happy gathering which will be held in pleasant remembrance by many, especially Mr and Mrs. John Riddell, who contemplated leaving the township and becoming residents of the City of Peterborough, and were given a hearty "send off."

The officers and teachers of the Bensfort Union, undenominational, Sunday School invited Mr. and Mrs. Riddell to the Sunday School Hall, where they met a large attendance of their old friends and neighbours.

The gathering was brought to order by Mr. D. N. Dodds, the coming superintendent, taking the chair.

Following this was a very pleasant musical programme presented. This programme consisted of excellent solos sung by the Misses Waterman, and choruses by the Sunday School children under the direction of the public school teacher, Miss Kerr, who also acted as accompanist.

At the conclusion of the entertainment Mr. and Mrs. Riddell were invited to the platform where they were presented with an address read by Mr. Dodds, on behalf of the Sunday School and teachers and officers expressive of the general regret at their departure from the vicinity, and of hearty good wishes for happiness and prosperity in their new home.

The address was accompanied by the presentation to Mrs. Riddell, by Miss Dodds, Mrs. Freeman Thompson and Miss Verna Morrison, of an elegant rocking chair, and the presentation to Mr. Riddell, by Mr. Harry Kerr and Mr. Richmond Morrison, of a luxurious easy chair.

Mr. Riddell made an effective and affecting reply to the address on behalf of Mrs. Riddell and for himself. He returned thanks for the expressions of neighbourly appreciation and good will it contained and stated that his associations with the Sunday School had been a source of genuine pleasure.

Mr. Riddell has been connected with the Union Sunday School at Bensfort, in the capacity of pupil, officer and superintendent ever since its organization, over half a century ago. During that time he has occupied at one time or another every office connected with the school, and for 28 years the position of superintendent.

At the conclusion of the presentation ceremony the formal meeting came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem, Mr. and Mrs. Riddell taking advantage of the opportunity to say a personal good-bye to their old friends. Last Sunday afternoon Mr. Riddell said good-bye to the assembled Sunday School.

Next week Mr. and Mrs. Riddell will remove to the city, and will take residence in their new home, Homewood avenue, west of Walton street.

Debating Club's Good Meeting

A Very Interesting Programme Was Given.

The Y.M.C.A. Debating Club held one of the most interesting sessions of the season this week, the men who have stood by the club being present.

Mr. Fred. Ray gave a review of the things going on in the world, in a very able manner.

Mr. Wilfred Shiner gave a deeply interesting paper on Socialism. The subject was dealt with in a most fair and convincing manner and was free from the dogmatism of the extreme Socialists. In fact, the paper positively depreciated that kind of thing.

Mr. Shiner's paper showed a clear, thoughtful grasp of the subject, and in the animated discussion which followed he dealt ably with the arguments from the opposition.

Smoke Testing Machine Wanted

Sanitary Inspector Called Attention of Board of Health to the Law.

The Board of Health held a short meeting last night prior to the joint session with the city council. There were present Messrs. Wm. Eyres, in the chair, Dr. Burnham, Dr. Bingham and Jas. Schneider.

The Sanitary Inspector, M. P. Thompson, was heard in reference to the purchasing of a smoke-testing machine, which he said was needed. The Board decided that the matter was one that should be dealt with by the council and therefore took no action in the matter.

Ald. Mason also gave the following statement which shows that Peterborough compares very favourably with other towns and cities in the province:—

	Net Debt. per head.	Population
Berlin	$2263	10851

In the discussion following the reading of the estimates, Mayor Best objected to the rate being lowered on the ground that it would be better now, that times are good, to keep up the assessment in the interest of the labouring classes and then when bad times came a lower rate could be struck. Any accruing surplus might be used for local improvements.

Ald. Hicks also expressed himself as being against the lowering of the rate.

Ald. Mason's argument was to the effect that the increase in the rate and assessment last year affected the middle and working classes principally. An increased rate is not felt by large industries with a fixed assessment half as much as small property owners. The reduction in the rate had been made in the interests of the working man. Ald. Mason did not approve of making the present generation pay the whole cost of improvements that would be of benefit to generations to come.

Wanted a Rebate.

Mr. Richardson, a fish peddler, waited on the council to state that he thought $40 was too high a license fee and asked for a rebate.

On motion of Ald. Hicks, seconded by Ald. Elliott, the matter was referred to the Finance Committee, who will report on Monday night. The Aldermen generally seemed to think that the fee was too high when applied to a resident of the city, and it is likely that if it is at all possible that Mr. Richardson may have his request granted.

A letter was read from the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., claiming a portion of land in the southern part of the city, known as the Kelly property, and asking that it be formally transferred to them. The matter was referred to the City Solicitor.

Street Watering Rate.

The chairman of the Board of Works, Ald. Hicks, submitted the estimates for street watering which is paid by frontage tax. The whole assessment value is $4,043,433, and the total cost of the work is estimated at $2,021.71. The cost is divided as follows:—

Eastern district	$ 300 00
Western	324 00
Southern	350 00
Northern	379 00
Central	338 00
	$1691 25
Repairs	330 46
Total	$2021 71

To provide for the work one-half mill will have to be taxed on assessable property.

Ald. Hicks moved that a bylaw to cover this be prepared for Monday night's meeting.

The Committee then adjourned.

Abounding Prosperity OF THE NORTHWEST IS Mr. R. R. Hall's Theme

Member for West Peterborough Has Just Returned From Trip to Pacific Coast—Lumbering Industry, Along With Every Other Branch of Business, is Prospering—Export Trade Grows—The Fruit Business in British Columbia Becoming an Important Branch—Great Growth of the West—Mining Industry in Good Condition.

Mr R. R. Hall, M.P., returned yesterday after a six weeks' absence, during which time he has been in British Columbia on a trip of inspection of the operations of the Big Bend Lumber Co., Limited, Arrowhead, B.C., and the Pacific Coast Lumber Co., Limited, Vancouver, B. C., in both of which companies he is interested as a shareholder and director. Mr. Hall has made a number of trips to the coast, and on each succeeding trip great improvement in condition of the western country is noticed, but this time the rate of progress evidenced is greater than that of any previous occasion. All along the line from Winnipeg to the coast great improvements are noticed. Towns and cities are growing rapidly, and tracts of country which a few years ago were uninhabited are being settled.

The cities of Winnipeg and Vancouver are growing faster than any other two places in Canada. On every hand prosperity is being given evidence of every line of industry is flourishing, that in which Mr Hall is interested, lumbering, particularly so.

The Lumber Indurtry

Speaking with reference to the Big Bend Lumber Company, Mr Hall said that the plant had recently been enlarged by the installation of a double cutting band saw, which will increase the capacity of the mills to 100,000 feet a day, and the dry kiln and planing mill capacity is sufficient to handle the entire output.

Speaking generally, he said that the lumber business in British Columbia was prosperous. There was a good export demand and the prices are advancing. The demand from China, Japan, Manchuria and South Africa is taking the output of the coast mills, and the mills of the Interior are busy supplying the trade of the Northwest Provinces, where building operations are very active, the many new settlers requiring great quantities of lumber, while the growth of the towns and cities also contributes to the demand.

In reference to the mining industry in the Pacific Province, Mr Hall was most optimistic. The wildcat speculative element has been eliminated, and the mining business is now being conducted along hard-headed business methods, with a very material benefit to the industry as a whole. The immense deposits of rich gold, silver, copper and lead areas are attracting capital, and the mines are being profitably operated. An evidence of substantial condition of the industry is furnished by the fact that the Granby smelter is one of the largest and most successful smelters in the world.

The Fruit Industry.

Another branch of industry and one which is rapidly developing into an important one, is that of fruit culture. The value of fruit grown in British Columbia last year was upwards of $1,000,000. The belief that Ontario is the only place in Canada where fruit can be grown successfully, can be easily disproved by a visit to the Rocky Mountain fruit valleys. Fruit grown there took first prize in England last year, and is equal in colour, size and flavour to that grown anywhere. The average price of land suitable for fruit farming is $100 to $300 an acre, and the farms run from 10 to 30 acres each, the profit from a 10-acre farm averaging $2000 to $3000 a year.

Labour Conditions.

The scarcity of labour works to the disadvantage of the industries of British Columbia, but this is condition which will remedy itself in time. In the woods the wages run from $40 to $50 a month with board, while mechanics get much higher wages. Bricklayers get from $6 to $7.50 a day, and carpenters from $5 to $7.

The remarkable railway development which has taken place in the West in recent years is marvellous. At the present time the G.T.P. has under contract one thousand miles from Winnipeg to Edmonton, and the C.P.R. and C.N.R. have also under contract sufficient to reach from Chicago to the waters of the Atlantic.

On the whole the prospects for the West are of the brightest, and Mr. Hall is very enthusiastic over the prosperity which is being experienced there.

He leaves on Monday night to attend the sessions of the Dominion Parliament.

OBITUARY.

ADA JACKSON.

Special to The Examiner.

Warsaw, March 10. — The death occurred this morning here, after two years' illness, of Miss Ada Jackson, at the age of 26 years.

The late Miss Jackson had been a sufferer from lung trouble, and, for the period mentioned, has been gradually sinking. She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing parents and three sisters, two of whom reside in Peterborough. They are Mrs. Ed. McDonald, Mrs. Robert Tighe and Miss Gertrude, the latter being in Buffalo, N.Y.

The funeral will take place in Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the family residence to St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw, where interment will take place.

MINNIE WRIGHT.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Minnie Wright, wife of Mr. William Guy, Mark street, East City. The deceased lady was 38 years of age and had been ill for about five weeks with heart disease. She had lived in Peterborough nearly all her life.

Her husband is at present in Parry Harbour and two daughters survive. Mr. Guy has been notified and will be here for the funeral, which will likely be held on Monday to Little Lake Cemetery.

Was Abusing Young Girl On The Street

Young Man and Girl Placed Under Arrest This Afternoon.

Wm. McKnight, of this city and Bella Palmley, a young girl, who says she comes from Orillia, were taken into custody this afternoon while McKnight was using profane language towards the girl on the street. The girl says she is sixteen years of age, and, amid much weeping, told the officer from behind the bars that it was the first trouble she had ever been in. She seems to feel her position very keenly and claims that she did not know McKnight's character when she associated with him. McKnight took the matter very philosophically and told the girl who was sobbing hysterically to shut up her mouth that she was all right.

Although not greatly perturbed, McKnight is indignant over his arrest, which he claims is a great injustice. He was under the influence of liquor when taken in charge by the policeman.

Saturday's "Pop" Drew Largest Crowd Of Series

A Delightful Programme Was Presented by Pauline Johnston, the Indian Reader, and Mr. Walter McRay—Many Persons Turned Away—The Hall Packed—The Entertainment Was Much Enjoyed—Dr. Drummond's Poems Given

AN INTERESTING PROGRAMME GIVEN

The seventh Y.M.C.A. Pop on Saturday night drew one of the largest audiences that ever packed the hall. Every seat was taken, many were obliged to stand and others were turned away.

The Association was fortunate in securing two of Canada's favourite entertainers, Miss E. Pauline Johnston, Mohawk Author, and entertainer, and Mr. Walter McRaye, humourist.

They have appeared in many of the great cities of the British Isles, the United States and Canada, and everywhere they have by reason of their talents, won for themselves the highest praise.

Miss Johnston appears in the first part of the programme attired in an Indian costume, parts of which are very historic. Her appearance in this costume, together with her manner in giving the selection, impresses one at once of the race to which she belongs. She possesses wonderful dramatic powers, and makes the scenes she portrays very realistic indeed.

Her selections were all her own composition and were from her work, "The White Wampum." They included "Ojistoh," "The Legend of Qu Appelle," and "As Red Men Die."

She was enthusiastically received by the audience and each time responded to encores.

Mr. McRaye's selections were all from Drummond, and he proved himself an artist without a peer in such selections. He even surpasses the author himself in his interpretation of the Habitant. He too was accorded a very flattering reception in his selection, "Le Viens Temps," "Johnnie Corteau" and "When Alouts Sang."

The second part of the programme was the presentation of an amusing sketch "Fashionable Intelligence," composed by Mr. McRaye. This was given by Miss Johnston and himself.

The programme concluded with a patriotic selection by Miss Johnston, entitled "Beneath the British Flag."

The 8th Pop, next Saturday evening, will take the form of a stereopticon lecture by Mr. Richard Lees on "Forestry."

Col. E. B. Edwards will preside and Mr. H. W. Morphet will sing. Silver collection at the door.

Choral Society's Next Rehearsal

The Choral Society will rehearse at 8.15 sharp on Tuesday evening next, March 13th, in the Central School. It is confidently expected that there will be a large turn out on this occasion.

Bring Down The Water Rates Still Further

Further Lowering of the City Water Rates Demanded in the Public Interest—Commissioners Should Still Better Their Present Excellent Record of Administration—People Entitled to Fullest Return for Their Investment.

A DUTY CONFRONTING THE COMMISSIONERS

The Water Commissioners deserve credit for having established a claim for Peterborough to the reputation of having amongst the lowest water rates in the province. This is satisfactory, so far as it goes, but the Commissioners are called upon to do better even than this. The citizens now get a discount of 25 per cent. for prompt payment.

There is no good reason why this rate of discount should not be increased to a still larger degree, in the interest of the taxpayers, who are more directly interested than the Commissioners, for they have to do the paying. The water works are owned by the people, and the people look to the Commissioners to supply water at as low a rate as possible. The proverb says that "One good turn deserves another." The Water Commissioners have considerably lowered the water rate. Let them try again. There seems to be no good reason why they should not still further increase the discount to water consumers.

It's "up to" the Commissioners to take out another stop-log.

An Enjoyable Event To-night

The Hockey Team Banquet Will Be Informal.

The Committee of arrangements for the Hockey banquet to-night met Saturday night when the details for the function were completed. The prospects for a successful banquet are see the most enjoyable event of its excellent, and to-night will probably hold in the history of Peterborough. It is the intention of the citizens promoting the banquet to make it as informal as possible. Everyone will go in for a good time, and it is hoped that no restraint will be felt.

The intention is to give everyone a free and easy time, and with this in view it has been decided to dispense with formality as much as possible. Those who have not purchased tickets may procure them from members of the Committee and from the Oriental Hotel.

Inspector Smith Meets Council

In Reference to the House of Refuge Question.

This afternoon a special meeting of the Building Committee of the County Council is being held at Lakefield. Dr. R. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, arrived in the city on the 11.38 C.P.R. train, and left for Lakefield with the members of this committee. The meeting is called for the purpose of conferring with Dr. Smith in reference to the selection of the site, and the construction of the building.

Although there is some opposition to the lot selected, it is not probable, according to the opinion of a number of the members of the council, that any action will be taken reconding the motion by which the Preston lot was selected.

Dr. Smith will be able to give the committee some valuable suggestions on the construction of the building.

THE MAIN THING IN DRESS

Simplicity of Colour Is the Prevailing Note in Men's Wear.

Art in personal attire is as necessary to the harmony and culture of life as is the study and cultivation of the paintings of the Old Masters. Upon this axiom, and a Semi-Ready suit should be permitted to pass the Customs free as a real work of art.

The main thing in artistic personal attire is simplicity; and in the matter of colour in dress it cannot be made too emphatic. Not much colour, not many colours. The individual is the unit, and must be studied first. Civilization does not use the bald bright colours, because it indicates crudeness, and not refinement. The Indian loves bright colours. Crudeness means loudness.

The elemental principles are learned by the average tailor but the Semi-ready system was founded on a study by the individual unit in every form and type of physical manhood. The price and fit are guaranteed by the Semi-ready label on the garment.

Mr. W. A. Lewis Presented With Chain and Locket

By Members of Typographical Union and Review Printing Company—Also Received Address of Eulogy—Leaves for London, Ont., on Saturday—Has Accepted Position There His Departure is Regretted by Friends in the City.

A LARGE NUMBER WAS PRESENT

On Saturday evening a large number of the members of the Typographical Union and of the Review Printing Company, assembled in the Foresters' Hall to honour one of their number, Mr. W. A. Lewis, foreman of the Review Bindery, before his departure for London.

Mr. Lewis is the treasurer of the Union and the loss sustained by his departure will be deeply felt by all its members.

As a testimony of the esteem in which he was held by the Printers of the city he was presented with a very eulogistic address, accompanied by a gold chain and locket.

The address was read by Mr. R. B. Pearson and the presentation was made by Mr. G. F. Cairns.

The following was the address:—

Mr. W. A. Lewis,

We, the employees of the Review Printing Co., and members of Typographical Union No. 248, have learned with regret of your decision to leave Peterborough to accept a responsible position in the city of London. During which period you have filled the position of foreman in The Review and Times binderies, you have succeeded in winning the esteem and respect not only of the management, but also of the employees of the different departments.

As a member of Typographical Union No. 248, you have filled with credit the position of treasurer almost ever since the organization of that body.

We feel we would be amiss in our duty if we did not in some way recognise your worth and kindness as well as express our sincere regret at your departure. We would therefore, ask you to accept this gift, coupled with the prayer that your residence in the Forest City may be a pleasant one.

Signed on behalf of the Typographical Union No. 248,

R. B. PEARSON,
G. F. CAIRNS.

In reply Mr. Lewis thanked the members for the great honour they had conferred upon him in presenting him with such a handsome tribute. He would always look back upon his life in Peterborough with gladness and particularly the pleasant times he had spent with the members of the Union.

Mr. Lewis has accepted a position with a firm in London, Ont., and leaves next Saturday for that city.

Kingston And Belleville Claim Normal School

The Kingston Whig says:

"The prevalent opinion in Toronto, in political circles, is that Belleville and Peterborough are in the front of the race for the new eastern Normal School. But the aforesaid P. 's. had not heard the effective presentation of Kingston's superior claims."

The Belleville Intelligencer, in noting the above, says:

"Don't deceive yourself, old man; the new Normal School will be situated just about fifty miles from Kingston."

Cressman's

O.H.A. Officials At The Banquet

Mr. W. McIlroy, secretary of the Citizens' Committee, arranging for the hockey club banquet to-night, has received word from Mr. D. L. Derroch, president of the O.H.A., that he will be here to attend the banquet to-night.

Mr. W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the association, will also be here.

The members of the team will be presented on behalf of the citizens, with handsome gold rings, suitably engraved, in recognition of their work this year, and this feature will add interest to the affair.

The banquet will be entirely informal and those attending will not come in full dress.

The Feast Of Saint Patrick

On Saturday the Feast of St. Patrick was celebrated at St. Peter's cathedral. There were masses at 8 and at 9 o'clock, the latter being a high mass when the sermon was preached by Rev. Father Kelly.

Rehearsals will be held each night this week in preparation for the play "Colleen Bawn," which will be given on Friday at the Grand Opera House, by St. Peter's T. A. S. in connection with St. Patrick's Day celebration. Those taking part are most enthusiastic and are taking great interest in their work.

AN HISTORICAL RECORD GIVEN THIS AFTERNOON

An Interesting Document Was Read at Warsaw This Afternoon—A Record of the Progress of the Church in That Village is Given.

At the meeting in Warsaw this afternoon, in connection with the 50th anniversary of Presbyterianism in Warsaw, Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, clerk of the Presbytery, read a statement in which a history of the denomination in that township was given. The address gives a complete historical record, and is an interesting document, not only to the members of that church, but to the public generally.

On account of lack of space to-day the address is held over, for publication, until to-morrow.

The Net Water Rate In This City Is $11.25

An unfortunate error occurred in the Examiner on Saturday. In making the comparison of water rates in Peterborough with those of other Ontario towns and cities, the net rate for Peterborough was given as $19.00, whereas it should have been $11.25. The figures were correctly given in the heading, but in the body of the article they were incorrectly quoted. As was stated in the article there are only three places in which the net rates are lower than those in Peterborough, while thirty-one places charge higher rates.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes:

"I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use.

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bloat after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant for many years before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is strictly confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds where Others Fail.

How About The Moral Standing Of Peterboro'?

The Police Were Kept Very Busy on Saturday

The bluecoats of the Peterborough police force were much busier than usual on Saturday last, and the criminal business of this usually quiet city savoured strongly of metropolitanism. The serving of summonses, the issuing of warrants, and the making of arrests kept the police going all day.

A large crowd witnessed in the morning an interesting session of the police court before His Worship Police Magistrate Dumble, when Alex. Campbell, a Scotchman, who has recently come to Canada, was allowed to go with a warning after pleading guilty to being too hilarious on the public thoroughfare, while under the influence of "oonta'n dew."

Pat. Murphy and John and James McManus, were also fined for a breach of the peace, and during this case Murphy claimed that the McManus brothers had used his head and face much after the same manner a football enthusiast would punish the inflated bladder. Word was got from Chief Nevison of Lindsay, to arrest William Eaton, an English emigrant boy, 16 years of age, on a charge of leaving the Scugog town with fifty dollars, the proceeds of a cheque given him by the Lindsay Lumber Company, his employers, to get cashed.

In the afternoon a young boy was taken to the police station, having been caught on the street by a citizen while kicking another young boy and afterwards handed into the custody of P. C. Stewart. He was afterwards allowed to go on promising to appear in court next Saturday.

An Italian was summoned to appear for selling liquor without a license, and a boy laid a complaint against a George street merchant.; Joseph Rickerby was arrested on a charge of theft; Bert Byers was served with a little paper charged with using abusive language towards Mrs. Smith of Reid street; and a man entered the police station, and complained that a friend of his had been "touched" for $19 while under the influence of liquor.

Verily there is an opening as large as a breach in a wall after a dynamite explosion, for a missionary revival campaign in this city of ours, which very suddenly seems to have gone "all to the bad," as shown by one day's record in police circles.

Cobalt Beats Wall Street For Sensations

A Wild Rush to Get Stock in Silver Mine.

A gentleman who has recently returned from Cobalt tells of a sensation which a man from the Michigan Soo named Mann caused in Haileybury Thursday. He went up from Cobalt to apply for a lot in Coleman Township, and had an endorsation for his application which few if any ever probated. The collateral in question was a five pound nugget of silver, which he struck from a rock with an axe. Speculators got on his track, and he was offered and refused $100,000 for his claim. It was a case of who would bid the highest for the property, and Mann had a striking half hour before train time.

It was like Wall street, New York, in a burning fever on Thursday and Friday when the Foster mine stock was put on the market for the first time. The price was 80 cents, but nothing less than a block of fifty could be sold.

The strangers in the Silver City, as well as citizens generally, rushed to get stock in so rich a mine. The office, when the stock was sold, was not only packed, but a string of people blocked the street clamoring and waving bunches of bank bills and cheques. The sale stopped Saturday morning, after 100,000 shares had been disposed of.

People absolutely begged to be allowed to buy. When the sale closed men refused double what they paid, and there is enough ore ready for shipment to pay a 12 per cent dividend.

Mr. J. J. Lundy Sold His Farm

Messrs. Robinson Brothers Buy His Ops Property.

The Lindsay Post of Friday said: Some thirty-six years ago Messrs George and Thomas Robinson, brothers, rented from the late Wm Lundy, of Peterborough, the 200 acre farm known as lot 1, in the 9th con of Ops, adjoining Manvers boundary. Year after year they improved the property, and Mr. Lundy increased the rental very little because of the betterments they were making, and when he passed away his son, Mr J. J. Lundy, followed the same course. To-day the farm is one of the best in the district, with fine buildings. Last week Mr. Lundy visited the brothers, and as a result Thomas concluded to purchase the farm for which they had paid rent at a reasonable future George, the other brother, is not in good health, and has decided to retire.

Montreal Divine Preached Good Sermon Yesterday

Rev. G. W. Mingie Was at St. Paul's and Knox Churches—'Principle of Concession' Was His Theme at St. Paul's in the Morning—The Advantages of the Twain Mile of Concession Were Dilated Upon in an Able Manner.

REV. MR. MINGIE IS FORCIBLE PREACHER

Rev. G. W. Mingie, of Montreal, was in the city yesterday, and occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's church in the morning, and at Knox church in the evening.

There were large congregations at both services and Rev. Mr. Mingie's sermons were listened to with a great deal of pleasure, and could not fail to be profitable to all who heard them. He is an earnest speaker with a vivid power of description, and a freshness and originality in his treatment of the text, that makes his argument most impressive.

In the morning at St. Paul's Rev. Mr. Mingie took as his text, St. Matthew v., 41, "And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile go with him twain."

In beginning he referred to the custom which gave rise to the text, and told of Herod's runners, who, if they were prevented in some manner or other from carrying their message through, they had by the Imperial law of Rome the right to make any one they desired carry it one mile on its way.

Rev. Mr. Mingie chose this as the foundation of his remarks. He emphasized the necessity of going the twain mile of concession in Christian life, of going the second mile beyond that which people are compelled to go. He spoke of the advantages that would come from this second mile of concession. The world would be a better, sweeter and grander place.

In business life this second mile would be of great benefit. We often see a man whose character is that of the greatest integrity and honesty. He merely gives what he has; no less, perhaps, but certainly no more. The clerks merely do what they have to do. The twain mile of concession would be of great benefit in this case. It college life it was not the man who merely prepared the lessons, as he was told, that achieved success. It was the student who did more than that who made a success of his studies.

The same thing prevailed in social life. Often one saw in a house one to whom temptation had come, and who had fallen by the way. Instead of holding that person's character up to scorn, over the tea cups, would it not be better to cover her sin as far as possible, with the mantle of charity? In home life it often happened that a son who had been sternly and rigidly brought up succumbed to temptation, when he left the parental roof. The second mile of concession on the part of the parent would have saved him. The relations between husband and wife would also be sweeter and better if the principle of concession was carried out between them.

BOTH FOOD AND MEDICINE.

We like best to call Scott's Emulsion a food-medicine. It is a term that aptly describes the character and action of our Emulsion. More than a medicine—more than a food, yet combining the vital principles of both. It is for this reason that Scott's Emulsion has a distinct and special value in all wasting diseases. There is nothing better to remedy the troubles of imperfect growth and delicate health in children. The action of Scott's Emulsion is just as effective in treating weakness and wasting in adults.

Presbyterianism Reigns Fifty Years In Warsaw

Jubilee Anniversary Commemorated Yesterday—Large Congregations at Three Sessions—Rev. A. C. Reeves, of Campbellford, Conducted the Services—An Interesting Talk to the Children—Members of the Presbytery Delivered Addresses This Afternoon—Progress Very Encouraging.

Special Staff Correspondence.

The jubilee anniversary of the Presbyterian church of Warsaw was celebrated yesterday. The services were held in the same building which accommodated the first Presbyterian congregation on March 3rd, 1856. During the past fifty years Presbyterianism in Warsaw advanced so rapidly that at the present time the followers of John Knox in that village have greatly increased, and the membership of the church now is very gratifying to the Presbytery of Peterborough.

The congregations yesterday morning and evening were so large that extra seating capacity had to be arranged to accommodate all.

Special music was prearranged for the occasion, and two appropriate anthems, "Father, we Come," and "Sweet is the Work," were excellently rendered by the choir.

Rev. A. C. Reeves, pastor of the Campbellford Presbyterian church, conducted the anniversary services in the morning afternoon and evening, and rendered impressive and profitable addresses on all three occasions. The Rev. W. L. Atkinson, pastor of the Campbellford church, conducted the Campbellford services in the absence of Rev. Mr. Reeves.

Morning Session.

Rev. Mr. Reeves took his theme from the third chapter of I. Cor., the 11th, 12th and 13th verses: —"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood., hay, stubble; Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."

These words, which are a portion of St. Paul's letter to the people of Corinth, are very appropriate to the individual, the congregation, as well as to the church at large. The subject of a true foundation to the Christian, is one that should certainly have a prominent position in every mind. If we have any regard for the extension of the word of Jesus Christ throughout the world, we should know what this truth is. If we build on false foundations, no matter how ardent we may be, the work will not be successful. Just the same as a good foundation is essential to the stability of it, so a true commencement of a Christian life is of intrinsic value.

There are oftentimes many rumours drifting about, which, although they may appear to be authentic, have no foundation. So it is in human life. Many persons profess to be Christians who are far from actors of Christian lives, because they have not built upon the true foundation, Jesus Christ, for it is written "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away."

Just as there is a difference in value of earthly property, there is a difference in Christians. Some, in the sight of God are of the value of gold, silver, precious stones; others of wood, hay and stubble; and it is for each individual to decide the value of his Christianity.

At the Judgment Day there will be a test fo each life, and there will undoubtedly be many changes and many surprises to man. But no trial, no sorrow, no temptation can finally separate us from the true foundation if our faith is strong strong in Christ.

Afternoon Meeting.

At 2.30 in the afternoon the children's service was held. A large attendance of adults as well as children, was present to hear Mr. Reeves. The service consisted of the singing of children's hymns, Scripture reading and a most interesting address, in which the speaker told the story of "The Wonderful Lantern," to illustrate the Bible.

Evening Meeting.

Mr. Reeves took as the subject for the evening discourse Gen. xxxii, 24, 'And Jacob was left alone."

These words, the speaker said, refer to a very important time in the life of the patriarch Jacob. It was twenty years before this that he had stolen the birthright from his father that rightly belonged to his elder brother Esau. He had deceived his father and was forced to flee from home. During the twenty years he was absent he lived with his uncle, and prospered greatly, but once more on account of underhand dealing he had to leave his uncle's roof, and so commenced his journey to his old home. His heart was filled with apprehension and dread forebodings, at the thought of meeting his brother whom he had wronged. His former self appeared before him, and to make Esau more lenient with him, he sent on before everything he owned. With his thoughts upon the past and future he was left alone with his God. There was a great struggle in his soul between his own will and that of God, but finally the divine conquered and deceitful Jacob resigned his will to God. Blessed is the man who, left alone, sees himself as the Almighty sees him, for then he will change.

The continuation of the anniversary services will be held this afternoon, at which Rev. Mr. Camp of Havelock, Moderator of the Presbytery; Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, and Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Keene, will give addresses. In the evening a tea and concert will be held which will include the commemoration of the fiftieth birthday of Presbyterianism in Warsaw.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—I should like to get my fingers in the hair of the Alderman or men who are supposed to look after the streets they don't look after,—especially the crossings. I refer particularly to the crossing on Park street where it crosses Charlotte—the north side. For months it has been a disgrace. I should like to know how they expect a woman to come out with any self respect or clothes left with one hand full of skirt and the other full of baby carriage and her boots full of mud of this nasty crossing. Please touch them up in the Examiner.

Great Praise For Canon Davidson

In announcing the meetings for the week at St. John's church yesterday morning Rev. Canon Dixon said that it gave him great pleasure to be present with the congregation, and to allow the rector to go and preach at the special Lenten services in the western American city; and it was an honour not only for him to have the charge but it was an honour to the congregation of St. John's, Peterborough. He also spoke in an eulogistic strain of the high esteem in which Canon Davidson was held by the clergy of the diocese.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's church will be held on Tuesday afternoon in the Guild room. All the women of the parish are invited. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Girls' Guild will meet on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

Successful Meeting Of The T.A.S. Literary

Miss Anna Hurley, on Friday Night, Read Interesting and Instructive Paper on "Father Ryan"—Life of "Poet-Priest" Was Dealt With Skilfully—His Training for the Priesthood—A Confederate Soldier.

A MUCH-BELOVED MAN WITH HIS PEOPLE

The Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peter's T. A. S., held another very successful literary evening on Friday, when an excellent paper on "Father Ryan," was read by Miss Anna Hurley, to a large and appreciative audience.

The essay, which was most interesting, showed much literary skill and careful preparation. Miss Hurley in a clear and concise biographical sketch, dealt with the early life of the "poet-priest." Many dispute about the exact place of his birth, some asserting he was born at Norfolk, Va., others claim Hayerstown, Md., and still more who say it was in Limerick, Ireland, he first saw the light. However, his early education was received from the Christian Brothers at St. Louis, where from his earliest years his remarkable intelligence gave promise of his subsequent brilliant career.

His progress in his studies was rapid and his modesty and his unassuming manner won for him the respect, esteem and affection of his teachers and companions. Discerning eyes soon recognized in his instinctive reverence for things sacred a future vocation in the priesthood and it came as no surprise when on the completion of his college course he entered the seminary at Niagara N. Y., to commence his ecclesiastical studies. Beyond the natural regret at leaving parents at home the heart of the youth was all aglow with the fervor that animated him in the pursuit of his high and holy calling. Like nearly all great men Father Ryan owed much to the early training and example of his truly Christian mother and the deep and tender affection he ever had for her is manifested by the dedication of his poems to her memory.

In due time, having completed the prescribed course of study at the seminary, he was ordained priest and he entered upon the active duties of missionary life. Little was heard of him until the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861, when he joined the Confederate army as chaplain, and served in that capacity until the close of the war.

He was subsequently stationed at Nashville, Clarksville, Tenn., and Augusta, Ga., where he founded a paper "The Banner of the South," which exercised great influence over the people of that section.

In 1870 he was appointed pastor of St. Mary's Church, Mobile, Ala., where he remained until 1883, when leave of absence was granted him to go on an extended lecture tour to further a praiseworthy and charitable movement of great moment to the South. It was while so engaged that the Angel of Death summoned him, on April 23rd, 1886, and the soul of the poet priest passed quietly away to be "great beyond."

But during the many changes and journeyings of all the years that elapsed between his ordination and death, his busy brain was almost incessantly employed in composing those immortal poems which have won their way to all hearts, by touching their tenderest chords and which have elicited widespread and unmeasured praise from critics of the highest repute. Of his poetry Father Ryan himself said that it was written at random, with little of study and less of art, and always in a hurry. His style is not that of Milton, who soared aloft into the eternal mansions; nor of Shakespeare, who fathomed the "dark abyssm of the human heart"; nor least of all is it like that of Dante, who wrote in words of fearful and awe-inspiring grandeur, but the rare and chaste beauty of his conceptions, the richness and grandeur of his thoughts, will pass down through the ages, bearing the stamp of genius, impressed with the majesty of truth, replete with the power and grandeur of love, which are the purest sources of poetic inspiration."

Chief among his poetic works are "Nosturni," "Re-united," "The Old Year and the New," "The Prayer of the South," "The Conquered Banner," and "Their Story Runneth Thus." Father Ryan also wrote several works of prose, chief amongst which is that entitled "A Crown for Our Queen," which, like his poem, "Last of May," is a loving tribute to the mother of God, whom he wished to honour as the highest type and grandest embodiment of womanhood.

A pleasing preliminary to Miss Hurley's interesting paper was a song, "Mamma's Boy," by Master Willie Maher and George Henry, who had to respond to an enthusiastic encore. The essay was followed by a bright and cleverly rendered dialogue, "Troubles at Satterlee's," in which there taking part were the Misses Mary Tearney, Florence Hurley, Gertie Crowley, Kathleen Walsh, Katie Tobin, Loretto Foley and Katie O'Brien.

Miss Vivian Donoghue occupied the chair.

Difficulties Of Pioneer Life

How the Pioneer Settlers in Ontario Made Their First Homes.

If the immigrants of to-day were forced to undergo the same experiences as the Canadian settlers of a hundred years ago, the Department of Interior would probably be deluged with complaints. When the Loyalists came to primitveil Ontario, for instance, they faced the crudest conditions. The story of this early immigration is interestingly told in Duncan Campbell Scott's Life of Governor Simcoe, the latest volume in the Makers of Canada series, which is being published by Morang & Co., Toronto. This is Mr. Scott's picture of the first Loyalist settlers:

"The Government gave them a little flour and pork and a few hoes and axes, and with those they were to dispossess those ancient tenants who had for ages held undisputed possession. They drew lots for their lands. The lucky ones obtained the farms with the posts or where some advantage of water, springs, groves or mill made the situation desirable. Where they were located began the great work of providing shelter. While the trees were felled, and the rude hut was taking shape, the family slept under the stars upon the ground, huddled together for warmth or protection from the dew and rain. Blankets they had none; their clothes were tattered, and as the chill nights of September came upon them, thus exposed, they suffered from cold. With dull axes, which they could not sharpen, they made their clearances, and when they were made they had no seed, of but a handful, to sow between the stumps upon the rich loam which was ready to yield them an hundred-fold. Their single implement was the hoe, with which they chopped roots, turned the soil, covered the little seed. With toil in the clear air they sharpened hunger that could not be assuaged from the small supply of food which they were compelled to hoard against the length of the winter. Their staples were flour and pork, but to these could be added fish, that were in such plenty that a hooked stick was all that was required to take them from the streams, and wild fowl that could be captured with the most primitive snare."

If You Suffer

From Germ Troubles, Please Learn What Liquozone Can Do.

Thousands who were sick—like you, perhaps—are well to-day because of Liquozone. Many had doctored long. Many were discouraged because other treatments had failed. But they were treating germ diseases with remedies which do not kill germs.

We offered to buy them a bottle of Liquozone—just as we offer you. They did what other remedies failed to accomplish. And those countless cured ones — scattered everywhere — are now telling others what Liquozone has done.

Kills Disease Germs.

Contact with Liquozone kills any form of disease germ, because germs are of vegetable origin. Yet to the body Liquozone is not only harmless, but helpful in the extreme. That is its main distinction. Common germicides are poisons when taken internally. That is why medicine has been so helpless in a germ disease. Liquozone is exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying; yet no disease germ can exist in it.

The virtues of Liquozone are derived solely from gases. They are generated from the best producers of oxygen, sulphur dioxide and other germicidal gases. The process of making requires large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. The object is to so fix the gases, and to combine them, as to carry into the system a powerful tonic-germicide.

We purchased the American rights to Liquozone after thousands of tests had been made with it. Its power had been proved, again and again, in the most difficult germ diseases. Then we offered to supply the first bottle free in every disease that required it. And over one million dollars have been spent to announce and fulfill this offer.

The result is these 11,000,000 bottles have been used, mostly in the past two years. To-day there are countless cured ones, scattered everywhere, to tell what Liquozone has done.

But so many others need it that this offer is published still. In the last few years, science has traced scores of diseases to germ attacks. Old remedies do not apply to them. We wish to show those sick ones—at our cost—what Liquozone can do.

Where It Applies.

These are the diseases in which Liquozone has been most employed. In these it has earned its widest reputation. In all of these troubles we supply the first bottle free. And in all—no matter how difficult—we offer each user a two months' further test without the risk of a penny.

THE ATTRACTION.

In Peterborough where we have schools and churches in abundance we, to a sad extent fail to appreciate the advantages they represent. Parents permit their children to absent themselves from school, while by common consent thousands of persons easily make the sacrifice of not attending church. But whether we make use of them or not we put value upon these conveniences — we point to Peterborough as a desirable place of residence because of the number of churches and schools. In this connection the importance of the social conditions expressed by the presence of schools and churches is demonstrated in the Northwest of Canada, to which thousands of American farmers are flocking from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan. Apart from the fertility of the soil a high official of a great railway company says, that the immense actual and prospective traffic of American farmers over his railway to the Northwest, chiefly composed of well-to-do farmers, is due very greatly to the conditions prevailing at many places in the Northwest, even in new communities, where are found good schools and churches. Many of these so-called American immigrants to the Northwest, are returning Canadians, who from past experience have a larger appreciation of the privileges they, in many cases, left behind them when they went to the United States to better their material condition. Thus it is seen that from the merely sordid and material point of view it pays to be good, that is, that thousands of persons whose daily lives are not perhaps practically guided by moral considerations, are at heart influenced, perhaps unconsciously, to themselves, by these considerations.

The British Columbia Government May Fall

One Rumour Says it May be Summarily Dismissed—The Minority Report of the Kaien Island Investigation Committee Reveals a Grave Scandal, in British Columbia Provincial Administration.

The fate of the McBride Conservative Government is trembling in the balance. The Kaien Island investigation committee has brought in a whitewashing report, but the minority, consisting of James A. Macdonald, Opposition leader, and T. W. Patterson submitted a minority report which has been published, the Government refusing to permit its submission to the House.

This report is an exhaustive and masterly summing up of facts, and concludes with the following finding:—

(1) That the Provincial reserve, dated the 12th of October, 1891, did not extend to Kaien Island, and was not intended so to do.

(2) That the application, under the land laws of the Province under the South Africa war grant act, and under the mineral act, were not considered by the Government upon their merits, but were rejected under the subterfuge of applying the reserve of 1891 to the said lands, contrary to the purport and intention of the order in Council creating the same.

(3) That the Government did not deal directly with the G. T. R. Railway Company, but, on the contrary, with bold adventurers (male and female) who applied for the said lands for purely speculative purposes to the knowledge of the Government. That the Government had no communication, either verbal or written, with any representative of the Grand Trunk Pacific prior to the passing of the order in Council of May, 1904, and that the telegram of the 29th of April was a mere move in the game to enable the speculators to contend that they could carry out the original intention of procuring the establishment of the Grand Trunk Pacific terminus on these lands, and to give the Government the pretence—a very specious one at that—that they had heard in an indirect way, if not in a direct way, from the G. T. P.

(4) That by orders in Council in May, 1904, the Government placed in the hands of Messrs. Anderson & Larsen one of the most valuable public assets in the Province for barter with the G. T. P., and that Anderson shortly after the passing of the order in Council proceeded to Montreal, where he succeeded in getting an agreement from the G. T. P. to pay himself and Larsen $40,000 for the concession which they had obtained from the Government by the said in order in Council.

(5) That no satisfactory evidence was offered before your committee showing the ultimate fate of this $40,000 agreement.

(6) We find that the Government had no power to make this grant either to Messrs. Anderson & Larsen or to the G. T. P. without the assent of the Legislature, and that the Ministers wrongly advised his Honour the Lieut.-Governor and obtained the order in Council contrary both to the spirit and letter of the law.

(7) That the Government took no steps whatever to ascertain whether the grant in question was in the public interest. That the Ministers had no knowledge upon which to proceed in deciding that question, and beyond making one or two modifications in Mr. Bodwell's original proposal were utterly reckless with the rights of the Province.

(8) That the provision to divide the foreshore into blocks of not less than 1,000 feet was most unwise, and enables the G.T.P. to divide the foreshore into large blocks, and, after the Government has selected its block or blocks, to place its terminals and wharves in such a position as to render almost valueless that portion of the foreshore belonging to the Government.

(9) That by reason of the secrecy maintained by the Government and Messrs. Larsen & Anderson, the said Larsen & Anderson and their immediate associates were enabled to obtain other lands, including North and South Porpoise Islands, contiguous to Kaien Island and the proposed railway line, to the extent of over three thousand acres.

(10) That James Anderson received from his partner Larsen, in settlement of their interests in Kaien Island and other ventures in the immediate neighbourhood, the sum of $10,000, besides salary and expenses. He also received one-sixteenth interest in North and South Porpoise Islands, and in other lands contiguous to Kaien Island, located by him under South Africa war scrip, and also about five square miles of coal lands some distance from the coast.

The Lieut.-Governor has secured copies of these resolutions, and there are all kinds of rumours afloat regarding the probable dismissal of the Government.

Mr. D. H. Charles Spoke At Board Of Trade Banquet

At Lindsay on Thursday—President of Local Board Spoke of Importance of Booming Town.

The Board of Trade Banquet held in Lindsay on Thursday night was a great success. Mr. D. Hughes Charles of the local Board of Trade, responded to the "Visitors' Toast." The Post says:

"With the toast to 'Our Visitors' was coupled the names of Messrs. D. Hughes Charles and W. C. Moore, presidents of Peterborough and Bobcaygeon Boards. The first named on rising, to respond, was given a hearty reception. He was glad to know that there was a live Board of Trade in Lindsay — the effect would be speedily made manifest in improved conditions generally. He had been surprised to learn from one of the previous speakers that the county of Victoria was one of the best in the province—if it wasn't quite that it was the best thing to preach and talk anyway; and the citizens should hold up their town as one of the best on earth—or as good as Peterborough. (Laughter.) Unless they were going ahead, however slowly, they were going behind. The speaker also referred to the proposed monster deputation from Trent Valley points to urge upon the Government the speedy completion of the waterway, which would benefit the country at large and prove particularly beneficial to Lindsay and other points on the system."

A Hard Pair To Identify

The pictures in the Examiner on Saturday, in the "prominent citizen" series, were the most difficult of the series to identify. The picture of Mr. W. G. Morrow, was recognized by only four persons out of a large number of guessers. The telephone was kept busy during the evening conveying replies which were disappointing. Anyone who knew Mr. Morrow in the early days could see a resemblance in the picture. Those who correctly named Mr. Morrow were, Messrs. Patrick Collins, Stewart street; T. Pratt, G. Adams and R. E. Wood.

The other picture was one of Hon. J. R. Stratton, taken in his very early days. No one who had not previously been told identified him. Everybody was guessed at, but no one was correct.

In the photos taken years ago, it is extremely difficult to reproduce clear half-tones, the method of photography in those days not lending itself well to reproduction in half-tones.

The Penalty Of Overeating

THE LIVER FIRST TO SUFFER, BUT KIDNEY DISEASE COMES LATER—GOOD RESULTS FROM THE USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Few people realize that it is not what they eat but what they digest and assimilate that goes to form new blood and repair the waste effected by the act of living.

Hurried eating and lack of proper mastication of the food are among the most common causes of indigestion, and overeating is undoubtedly the beginning of trouble with the liver and kidneys.

Kidney disease and rheumatism are not usually the first indication of a deranged system, but these troubles follow unheeded headaches, constipation and bilious attacks.

Because of their direct and combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective in whatever stage of such derangements they may be used, except when the structure of the kidneys has been wasted away by Bright's disease.

What we would emphasize, however, is the advantage of beginning this treatment at the first indication of trouble with the liver. It is the liver which first feels the result of overeating because of its difficulty in filtering the blood. Keep the liver right by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills and you not only prevent headaches, biliousness and constipation, but entirely escape derangements of the kidneys, which are at once so dreadfully painful and fatal.

Reliability is the word most frequently applied to Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, as well as to his other medicines, for people have come by experience to know that, as a means of ensuring the regular and healthful action of the kidneys, liver and bowels, there is no medicine to be compared to this.

With these filtering and excretory organs in health, indigestion and bodily pains are unknown and one runs little danger of contracting colds or contagious diseases.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Will Consider The New School

At Special Meeting of the City Council To-night.

To-night a special meeting of the City Council and Board of Education will be held, when the question of the new South Ward School will be discussed. The Board will ask the Council for the necessary money to erect the school, and the question of the extension of George street will also be considered. This extension will have an important bearing on the school question in case the Board decides to purchase the McGill lot.

Crippled by Kidney Disease.

"I was troubled for years with kidney disease and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have entirely cured me. When I began the use of these pills I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field, and work like any other man."—Mr. W. H. Mosher, South Augusta, Grenville, county, Ont. This statement is certified to by Rev. E. H. Emmet, Baptist minister of Brockville, Ont.

THE BEST STOVE CO

Rev. Canon Dixon At St. John's Church

Two Powerful Sermons Were Preached by the Eloquent Toronto Divine.

At St John's yesterday Rev. Canon Dixon, of Toronto, preached two powerful sermons to large congregations In the morning he preached from Gal 6: 14. "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. He said almost all men have something wherein they glory Every bird has its note of song Many glory in their shame, strength, gold or their palaces, forgetting that they will all have to give an account off it all to their God We must all give all glory in all that we have or do as unto the Lord In the wisdom of Holy Writ we would ascribe the whole glory to God If Christ had done as the Jews thought He ought to, He would have been their most honoured rabbi Let us look at the negative side of the question this morning St. Paul said "Let us glory in the cross of Jesus Christ" Was there anyone who suffered more for the cross of Christ than St Paul? No man in the Christian church went through more for that Christ He never in all his writings glorified his own works You can find nowhere in his writings that St Paul ever glorified in the incarnation of Jesus Christ, or the life of Christ, on the death of Christ, or of the resurrection or the ascension of Jesus Christ, but on the contrary, St Paul glorified in the cross of Jesus Christ Let me, a comparative stranger among you, to say to you, to come with me in this blessed season of retirement and of worship, and say with St Paul, "God forbid that I should glory save in the forces of Jesus Christ" St. Paul took that dreadful word, "cross," for in his days this word was classed with the "gibbet" or the "hangman's scaffold of our day and he pointed to that dreadful cross of shame and said I glory in the cross of Jesus Christ Why did he glory in the cross? What did he mean by the cross? Did he mean to look at the scene that took place on Cavalry, another shame, which in those days meant a good deal In many of his epistles he refers to Jesus Christ as "Our Lord," and I say to you on this Lenten Sunday morning, I point you to that cross, whereon our dear Lord died for our sins Did he not glory in the doctrine of the cross? It is the power of God, and of His son, our dear Lord. What is this doctrine of the cross? Justice The Book of Moses, when telling of the brazen serpent in the wilderness, tells us that the Son of Man would be lifted up

The Romans sneered at St Paul when he presented this doctrine of the cross of Jesus Christ, but St Paul in all his littleness of stature stood as brave as a lion and proclaimed The doctrine of the cross Thank God that the church makes so much of the cross of Jesus Christ The preacher, in referring to the Church's Prayer Book, stated that not one word which it contained but what can be proved by Scripture.

There is no use of me pressing home that great doctrine unless I plead with you to take it as yours Is He yours? Is He yours? The pleasures of the world may be your God, but do they satisfy you? No! No! Nothing but the Christ of Cavalry, or the cross of Jesus Christ can satisfy you Who can fill the sorrowing heart but the Jesus Christ, who suffered on the cross of Cavalry In the cross of Christ we have our doctrine and our church. There is only one solution of the difficulties of this world, whether in the home, or the labour question, or in society;

The Boxes Are Being Decorated

The boxes at the opera house which will be occupied by the champion hockey team are being decorated with the Club's colours, blue and white, and will present a very pretty appearance.

Yesterday At Park St. Church

Large congregations gathered at the Park street Baptist church yesterday. The school room was opened to receive the overflow. The theme of the sermon was the second in the March series, "Is there a chance for Salvation after death?" From Mark 2; 10: "The Son on Man hath power on earth to forgive sins." The subject for next Sunday is "Is there a hell and will it be everlasting fire?"

The teachers met to complete arrangements for the Sunday School Festival on Friday next. The following committees were appointed:—Platform Committee, to enlarge area for drills and to erect a gallery for chorsus; Refreshment Committee, to provide supper for the children, etc.

B.Y.P.U. open session will be held to-night, when two papers will be read and a violin orchestra will render selections.

On Tuesday the Ladies' Circle will meet, an address will be given by Mrs. Morrow.

Question Now Is What Will The Miners Do

Anthracite Coal Operators Refuse Miners' Demands.

WILL THE MINERS STRIKE

Operators Ask For a Three-Year Renewal Agreement on Basis of the Anthracite Coal Strike Settlement by Commission—President John Mitchell of United Mine Workers Has Nothing to Say.

New York, March 12.—The propositions of the United Mine Workers of America for a readjustment of wages and conditions in the anthracite coal fields, as a whole, have been denied by the committee representing the anthracite operators. As a counter proposition, the operators suggest that the awards made by the anthracite coal strike commission on the principles upon which they were established by the commission, and the methods established for carrying out their findings and awards, shall be continued for a further term of three years from the first day of April, 1906. The present agreement terminates March 31 of this year.

Announcement of the anthracite operators decision and their counter proposition was made last night in a long formal statement. In every instance the contention is made by the operators, either that conditions in the coal fields do not warrant the changes proposed by the miners, or that the questions at issue already have been passed upon by the strike commission.

In conclusion, the statement says: "It is not to the interest of employers or employes, nor of the public, to have the mining business as well as the general business and comfort of the people seriously disturbed by these yearly contentions."

Mitchell Is Silent.

President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America left yesterday for Indianapolis, where he goes to prepare for the convention of the mine workers March 15. Mr. Mitchell declined to say anything regarding the reply of the operators refusing the demands of the miners. None of the other members of the miners' committee would talk. Prior to Mr. Mitchell's departure there was a lengthy meeting of the miners' committee.

CORRESPONDENCE LARGE.

Public Fully Interested in the Coming Insurance Investigation.

Ottawa, March 12.—Public interest in the forthcoming investigation respecting life insurance is indicated by the volume of correspondence being received by Henry T. Ross, secretary to the commission.

The prevailing wish expressed is that the commissioners probe fully into the workings of the different companies and their methods of doing business, and it is understood that some information considered to be of use in that connection is being volunteered.

The commission is fitting up permanent offices in this city, and the desire is that, so far as possible, the sitting should be held here.

However, Montreal and Toronto, where the head offices of several companies are located, will have to be visited, representations having been made that only by going there personally can the commission readily get at the facts.

The enquiry commences on Wednesday.

An Appalling Mine Horror In French Colliery

Over One Thousand Die in Mine Disaster In France.

700 RESCUED OUT OF 1,800

Flames So Fierce After the Explosion That Bodies Are Incinerated — Leon Cerf a Rescued Miner, Gives Graphic Description of Awful Experience — Agonizing Scenes Among the Families of Dead.

Paris, March 12.—The worst fears as to the enormity of the mine disaster in the Courrieres district of the Pas-de-Calais Saturday morning have been realized. The death list numbers 1,100, and the whole of the region stands appalled at the terrible tragedy which has brought sorrow to 4,000 mothers, wives and children.

The last great mine disaster in France occurred in 1885, when 293 persons were killed and 80 injured, but that and all others sink into insignificance before Courrieres. The vast mortuary camp is under military guard, 400 soldiers having arrived there to assist in holding in check the crowds of distracted mourners. For a time hope had been held out to the people that tappings on pipes by the imprisoned men had been heard, but gradually this hope vanished, and the people demanded admission to see the bodies, and even threatened to break through the cordon of troops, who had the greatest difficulty in keeping the crowds from the pit.

One man named Sylvestre succeeded in entering the mine, but he never returned. It is believed he grouped about inside until he was overcome by the gasses and perished. It is reported that a rescue party numbering 40 had been cut off by the caving in of one of the galleries.

Relief Measure.

Minister of Public Works Gauthier, Minister of the Interior Dubief, and the secretary of President Falleres remain on the ground endeavoring to comfort the distressed families of the miners.

President Falleres has given $2,000 to aid in relief measures. The Ministry will add a further sum to this, and the Chamber of Deputies will be asked to vote $100,000 for the purpose of alleviating distress.

Ministers Gauthier and Dubief have received complete details of the catastrophe from M. Lavaurs, the director of the mine.

"Of 2,000 miners who were down in the pits when the explosion occurred," he said, "673 were working in pit No. 4; 482 were in pit No. 3; 571 in pit No. 2, and the remainder in pit No. 10. Those taken out were as follows: From pit No. 4, 100; from pit No. 3, 15, escaped through pit No. 11; 400 came up from pit No. 2, and 74 from pit No. 10. A number of these were injured and some of them have since died. At the present moment over 1,000 men remain imprisoned."

Another director declared that the imprisoned men numbered 1,100.

All Dead.

Minister Dubief enquired: "Have you still any hope?"

To this the director replied: "No, I believe all of them are dead."

This was whispered into the ear of the Minister, in order that his words might not be overheard by the pale-faced miners who stood anxiously about the mine building waiting for an official view on the state of affairs.

Then the Ministers listened to a graphic description of the scene in the mine by Leon Cerf, one of the men rescued and who is still suffering from the terrible effects of his experience.

"I was working with a gang when the explosion occurred. The foreman immediately shouted for us to follow him, and dashing into a recess in the gallery we were followed by a blast of poisonous gasses which rushed by, however, without effecting us. We remained there for eight hours when, feeling that suffocation was gradually coming upon us, we attempted to escape. We crawled in single file toward the shaft, but several of the men dropped dead on the way, including my son and the foreman. I carried my nephew on my back for 40 minutes and succeeded in saving him. It took us eight hours to reach the shaft."

For the time being the mine building has been transformed into mortuary chambers, and all about in it, lie the carbonized and almost unrecognizable bodies of miners which were taken there as brought up from the mines.

Heartrending Scenes.

Heartrending scenes are witnessed. The women with children in their arms attempt to break through the cordon of troops which form a lane through which the body-bearers proceed to the mortuary chamber.

Some times the burden consists of a mere heap of burnt flesh, and in nearly every case the body is terribly lacerated. Only one-half of the bodies recovered have been identified.

Despite the danger incurred, the volunteers, who include a number of those who were successful in escaping at the time of the explosion, do not hesitate to descend the shaft. Some of them have been down more than a dozen times.

One of them, after having brought up 14 bodies, was suffocated on his 15th attempt, and it is feared that other fatalities among the volunteers will follow, as the air in the mines is still impregnated with noxious gasses.

Replying to an inquiry as to whether hope remained for the finding of more men alive in the mine, an engineer who had been down the shaft, said: "It is scarcely possible. The state of the galleries is such that clearing them will be a difficult task, while the flames were so fierce that many of the victims must be reduced to ashes."

One Life Was Lost.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 12.—The tugboat Thomas Lysle was suddenly sunk Saturday evening by striking a rock in the Monongahela River. Christine Dempsey, a chambermaid, said to be a sister of Jack Dempsey, the pugilist, was drowned, and Capt. Wm. Brown sustained a broken arm while endeavoring to save the girl, who jumped overboard immediately following the accident. Twelve other members of the crew had narrow escapes from drowning.

Recommendations of Commission Embodied in a Bill.

NEW BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Will Exercise Powers Now Exercised by Crown Except Where Expressly Reserved—Senate the Same as Now—Caput Will Enforce Discipline—President's Position as Chief Executive Officer is Improved.

Toronto, March 12.—Since the year 1827, when the first university charter was granted by the crown, the cause of higher education has advanced along lines well adapted to result in the final establishment of Toronto as the educational centre of Ontario. To accomplish that desirable end there needed to be eliminated all points of sectarian difference and a free and elastic constitution fitted to further the federation and affiliation of other universities and colleges originating to meet special requirements, yet at one in their desire to promote the highest type of general culture. The act of 1901, which in a measure recast and embodied the best features of previous statutes, proved to be in some respects deficient, and the time at last arrived for the preparation of a statute of a act, codifying the whole legislation relating to university education with such improvements and extensions as experience has found to be necessary and advisable.

In September last the Provincial Government appointed a commission for the purpose of reporting upon the present administration of the university and the nature of the act, which should now be passed. The commission is composed of Chancellor Meredith, chairman; Professor Goldwin Smith, Rev. Canon Cody, J. W. Flavelle, Byron E. Walker and the Rev. D. Bruce Macdonald—A. H. U. Colquhoun being secretary. Although it has not yet formally reported, its recommendations have evidently been made known to the Government, and a bill has been prepared which will in all probability pass the Legislative Assembly during its present session.

New Board of Governors.

A leading feature is the constitution of a new board of governors, which will be accorded the whole powers over the university and University College, which are or may be now exercised by the crown—except so far as expressly reserved. The special powers conferred are of the widest description, but a check is afforded by the provision that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may remove any of the elected members. The board will consist of the chancellor and president of the university, who are the only ex-officio members, and of thirteen other members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The Senate.

The composition of the senate has been altered to some extent, and its powers and duties revised and extended, but it remains substantially as it now exists. A similar remark applies to convocation, but a new departure is made by the constitution of a "Council of the Faculty of Arts," with power to fix and determine the courses of study in arts subject to the approval of the senate. Like councils are also to be created for each faculty of the university and a council for University College. The object of these provisions is no doubt to secure equality in the courses and the maintenance of a proper standard of instuction.

Enforcing Discipline.

Enforcement of discipline is placed in the hands of the Caput, a committee composed of the president of the university, the principal of University College, the heads of the federated universities and colleges, and the deans of the faculties of the university. The Caput will, in addition, fix the timetables for lectures and other instruction, and deal with all matters assigned to it by the governing board or the senate.

The position of the president as chief executive officer is improved and strengthened, and he is given power to suspend any member of the teaching staff of the university and of University College—reporting his action to the board, with his reasons. He will also recommend all appointments, promotions and dismissals. Similar powers are given the principal of University College who will, however, report his reason for action to the president.

Revenue.

It is understood that the Government have in contemplation the setting apart of certain areas of crown land as part of the endowment of the university, and as a further provision to pay to the board a percentage of the receipts coming from the provincial succession duties.

cession duties. Another interesting item is that the board may facilitate the removal of Trinity College to Queen's Park. The bill also unites the School of Practical Science to the university, and constitutes it the faculty of applied science and engineering. A new college affiliated with the university is the Western Canada College of Calgary.

The bill, which will extend to 150 clauses or so, makes many minor amendments on the present governing acts, and it is safe upon the provincial statute book.

USED UP AND TIRED OUT

MEN AT THE OFFICE WOMEN IN THE HOME CHILDREN AT SCHOOL

Every day in the week and every week in the year men, women and children feel all used up and tired out.

The strain of business, the cares of home and social life and the task of study cause terrible suffering from heart and nerve troubles. The efforts put forth to keep up to the modern "high pressure" mode of life in this age soon wears out the strongest system, shatters the nerves and weakens the heart.

Thousands find life a burden and others an early grave. The strain on the system causes nervousness, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faint and dizzy spells, skip beats, weak and irregular pulse, smothering and sinking spells, etc. The blood becomes weak and watery and eventually causes decline.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

I decided as last to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and I would not now be without them if they cost twice as much. I have recommended them to my neighbors and friends.

Latest News Of Winter Sports

The Federal Champions
WILL PLAY PETERBOROUGH HERE
On Wednesday Night

Arrangements Concluded for an Exhibition Game With Smiths Falls—Game Will be the Attraction of the Season in the Hockey Line.

Arrangements have been completed by which the Smith's Falls team, champions of the Federal League will play an exhibition game with the Peterborough intermediate O. H. A. champions on Wednesday night. The game will be the event of the season and no doubt the largest crowd that ever saw a hockey match in Peterborough will be on hand. Smith's Falls, as shown by their splendid attempt to carry off the Stanley Cup from the Ottawa team have one of the strongest teams in Canada and the match will be a corker. The local team is about as strong as any that ever represented Peterborough and are confident of giving the Federal League stars the time of their lives. In fact it would surprise a great many people in the city if Peterborough doesn't carry off the honours. There is no doubt but that Smith's Falls have a remarkable team but they will have to be very speedy to stop Peterborough. They will find the Intermediate O. H. A. champions foemen worthy of their steel.

Harold Armstrong, once Peterborough's idol and still regarded by the citizens with admiration will be at cover for the visitors and it will be worth the price of admission to see him perform some of the stunts he learned on the old Charlotte street rink. Brown, formerly of Belleville, and well known here will also be with Smith's Falls.

The local team are in fine fettle and are prepared to put up the best article of hockey they have displayed this winter which is saying a good deal. The indications are that there will be good ice, in which case the crowd is sure to be a record-breaker.

The team are undergoing very heavy expense in bringing such an attraction here and they should be encouraged by a very liberal patronage at the game.

Goderich Press On Championship

The "Signal" Tells How Peterborough Won From the "Sailors."

The Goderich Signal of last week reports the winning of the Intermediate O. H. A. championship by the Peterborough team. In part the paper says:—

"The finals in the O.H.A. intermediate championship, at Peterborough on Friday and in Goderich on Tuesday, put the Easterners at the top, giving them the championship and the Dunlop trophy by a score of 14 to 8 goals on the round. In both the games the Goderich boys put up excellent work in the first half, holding their opponents down to a tie score of 1 to 1 at Peterborough and scoring 4 goals to their opponents' 0 here, but in the second half they were out-played. However, to Goderich falls the distinction of being the only team that succeeded in defeating the champions this season and the home players maintained their reputation of never losing a game on their own ice.

The match here on Tuesday night was the most closely contested ever played in Goderich, and although the ice was a trifle heavy, chiefly in the second half, was an exceedingly speedy one. Although the admission was put up to 50c, that did not seem to have any deterrent effect on the attendance and ten minutes after the doors were opened saw the youngsters climbing into the rafters and the best positions taken up, while those who came a few minutes later had to put up with what they could get, and many paraded the ice in the ineffectual attempt to find an opening on the sides. The white and blue septette were on the ice early getting acclimatized and limbered up and they no sooner struck the ice than ten or a dozen megaphones, backed up by lusty-lunged rooters in the centre gallery, were levelled at them individually and a fusillade of chaffing was showered upon the visitors.

In the second half the ice grew heavier. The visitors, however, seemed to come on with renewed energy and scored first. The next went to Goderich, but the locals began to show signs of inability to keep the pace. Their passes more than half the time were picked up by their opponents who made the most of their opportunities and made some brilliant rushes. The home defence were kept on the alert almost continuously. The forwards gave their opponents a hard tussle, though. They made a number of long shots on Peterborough goal, but failed to find the nets. Harris made several of the speediest of his rushes but was not followed closely enough with support and was unable to score. Peterborough scored three more goals before the bell rang, making the result of the game 5 to 4 in favour of Goderich.

Whitcroft's Playing Was The Feature

Of the All-Star Team Which Played Saturday.

The general impression among those who saw the game in the Mutual street rink in Toronto on Saturday night, when the All-Stars played, was that it was the fastest game of the season. Though it was the fastest game that the Toronto people had seen, but—in Peterborough—not on your life. The Goderich game and part of the Parry Sound game was equally as fast, and on the whole, better hockey.

Of course it is not to be supposed that two teams of men who have never played together would be able to play the best hockey, the kind in which combination plays are seen, as a team the members of which are accustomed to each other's peculiar styles. The intermediate champions, the Peterboroughs, could pretty nearly put either of the teams playing Saturday night in the shade. Whitcroft, who played position which was new to him, and in which he could not do as good work as at rover, was the pick of the forwards, and had he had anyone with him to play combination he would have been able to do even better work. A number of times he took the puck up the ice and passed it only to find that there was no one to take it. The first goal was scored by Whitcroft and he assisted in a number of others, taking the puck through the defence and passing to Clark, who put it in the nets. The pick of the defence players was Gee, who this season played with Barrie, and who was here last year with Markham. He is one of the most effective defence men in the O.H.A., with a style very much like Glover's. He and Hamber worked well together on Saturday and were puzzlers to the westeners. The World, speaking of the work of the only two intermediates on the team says:—

"If Whitcroft and Carr-Harris are intermediate players, some Toronto teams should have been playing junior this year."

The Mail and Empire comments are:

Whitcroft was very fast too, and his checking would be hard to equal. In fact the three Eastern forwards combined speed and pretty stick-handling with hard checking and effective shooting.

Whitcroft and Carr-Harris, the two intermediates, starred some for their respective teams. Not bad for Intermediates.

The Globe says:

Whitcroft and Clarke were the pick of the forwards. In the first half Clarke played on the wing with the Peterborough man in centre, and the latter featured.

Does Your FOOD Digest Well?

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body and the purpose of eating is defeated; no matter how good the food or how carefully adapted to the wants of the body it may be. Thus the dyspeptic often becomes thin, weak and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vim are lost, and in their place come dullness, lost appetite, depression and langour. It takes no great knowledge to know when one has indigestion, some of the following symptoms generally exist, viz.: constipation, sour stomach, variable appetite, headache, heartburn, gas in the stomach, etc.

The great point is to cure it, to get back bounding health and vigor.

is constantly effecting cures of dyspepsia because it acts in a natural yet effective way upon all the organs involved in the process of digestion, removing all clogging impurities and making easy the work of digestion and assimilation.

Mr. R. G. Harvey, Amelissburg, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with dyspepsia for several years and after using three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was completely cured. I cannot praise B.B.B. enough for what it has done for me. I have not had a sign of dyspepsia since."

Do not accept a substitute for B.B.B. There is nothing "just as good."

Coming to Canada, he preached successively in Glencoe, Preston, Cargill, Hamilton, Rockford and several other places. Tunnel Under Behring Strait.

St. Petersburg, March 12.—A more favorable attitude is being shown here toward the scheme for a tunnel under Behring Strait and an all-rail route from the United States to Europe, Baron Loicq de Lobel, representing the American-Transalaskan-Siberian Co., is again pressing the project vigorously, and has made considerable progress toward getting a concession from Russia. A distinct party of the Government, which has the sympathy of Premier Witte, earnestly favors closer commercial relations between the United States and Russia, and this scheme appeals to it, not only as a method of accomplishing this end, but of developing the resources of Siberia.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY.

On Saturday afternoon there was a nice gathering of relatives and friends of the performers and friends of the Conservatory in the Music Room, to listen to a recital of pianoforte music exclusively given by pupils of Miss Alice Roger.

The following programme was presented:—

Duet, "County Dance"—Nevin—Miss Gladys Seward and Miss Grace Taft (Tweed).

(a) "Ich Liebe Dich"—Greig. (b) "La Filleuse"—Raff—Miss Bradburn.

Rondo—Weber—Miss Edwina Palmer.

Spinning Wheel—Rondo—Bendel—Miss Grace Taft.

"La Coquette"—Brawski—Miss Lottie Davidson.

"Moments Musical"—Schubert—Miss Jean Hill.

"Air de Ballet"—Chaminade — Miss Gertrude Sanderson.

"Bolero" —Moszkowski.—Miss Gladys Seward.

Duet for two pianos—La Matin. Miss Bradburn and Miss Aylmer.

Papillons. Roses—Thome — Miss Grace Taft.

Though the performers were many of them very young it will be noted by the programme that the music presented was not of the "easy" character generally assigned to beginners. While one cannot, obviously, particularize, some of the performers showed remarkable proficiency and all gave evidence of having industriously profited by excellent and painstaking instruction. Not only was the music played correctly according to the score, but all the performers played with an intelligent appreciation of the spirit of the compositor and an attention to expression, which showed that they had not been merely drilled to a slavish subserviency to the written music, but taught an understanding of its spirit.

The Toronto Globe to-day says:—The Saturday programme of the Strolling Players' Club was presented by Mrs. Hurley Roberts, the large number of the members and their friends being delighted with the singing of Madame Alberini, Mr. Jolliffe and Mr. Piggot, Mrs. Franklin Dawson giving some beautiful selections on her violoncello.

Suggest That Board Of Education Act

"Education" Endorses Proposal to Ask Mr. Carnegie to Furnish Peterborough With a Free Library—Board of Education Should Take the Matter up With Mr. Carnegie.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

I have read with much interest the recent letters that have appeared in the Examiner favorable the proposal to ask Mr. Carnegie for a library for Peterborough. I trust that there are many others in this city, sufficiently alive to the advantages of a free good public library, to encourage the project and to keep the matter in discussion until something tangible is accomplished. Indifference and inactivity on the part of those who would be benefitted by such an institution, will most certainly result in nothing being accomplished until it is too late to secure the donation, and Peterborough is left behind those other enterprising cities that have already accepted Mr. Carnegie's gifts. Such an opportunity can not remain open for many more years and it seems to me that any city is indeed foolish to allow trifling sentimental considerations to stand in the way of profiting by Mr. Carnegie's generosity. Now, writing letters to the papers, while useful in keeping the subject alive, will be of little use if nothing more is done, and therefore, I beg to offer a practical suggestion. If any one can propose a more feasible scheme by which the Library can be secured it will receive my hearty support. As the Public Schools—the pupils and the teachers—will probably be the chief beneficiaries of a free public library, I suggest that the Board of Education take the matter in hand and write to Mr. Carnegie, first ascertaining whether he would be willing to make such a gift to Peterborough on the same terms as to other cities. If the board feels doubtful as to whether such a move would meet with popular support, let them invite several of the school children to circulate papers advocating the scheme and see how many names can be procured in support of the project. I feel sure that not one member of the board—whose chief duty is to aid free liberal education in every practical way—will be found to raise his voice against any legitimate plan for enlarging the opportunities of rising generations. I believe that this city can make no more plausible or more paying investment than that required by Mr. Carnegie, as a condition necessary to his donating a library: namely, the annual grant by the city of the funds necessary for its support and maintenance. Certainly the amount at present contributed by this city for the support of the library is a disgrace to a place the size of Peterborough.

One Day's Doings At The Police Court

Won't Discuss Cases Out Of Police Court

His Worship Police Magistrate Dumble Makes Himself Understood.

At the opening of the Police Court this morning His Worship, P. M. Dumble, stated that the Police Court was an open and public court and that all cases that his duties as Police Magistrate necessitated him dealing with had to be disposed of there and not at his residence or office. All the business of the court, he said, had to be transacted openly and publicly. "A man wouldn't think of going to a High Court Judge," said his Worship, "to consult him regarding a case upon which the judge was to try him. He further explained that if he had been rather short in his replies to any who came to his office or residence respecting matters that should only be discussed in the Police Court, it was not on account of any wish on his part to show discourtesy to those who came to consult with him on the subject.

Warrant Out For A Horse Thief

A. E. Cline is Wanted by the Canadian Authorities.

Acting Chief Adams received the following letter, from Mr. Silas H. Carpenter, Chief of Detectives, Montreal:—

Montreal, March 10, 1906.

Chief Constable,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I hold warrant for the arrest of A. E. Cline, on a charge of horse stealing. Cline is an American; about 27 years of age; about 5 feet 9 inches in height; weight about 160 pounds; full round face; sallow complexion; has served in the United States Army in the Philippines and was subsequently attached to Fort Ethan in the State of Vermont. He deserted from there some four or five months ago and has been employed as coachman or groom here up to Sunday last when he left taking with him a horse belonging to his employer in this district. When he left here he wore a dark overcoat with belt, and black hard hat. Claims to be a veterinary surgeon and will likely make himself known to some of the "Vets" and livery stable keepers in your district. I shall feel obliged if you will cause inquiry to be made with a view to his location and arrest.

Yours very truly,
SILAS H. CARPENTER,
Chief of Detectives.

The local police would be much obliged for any information leading to the capture of Cline.

Said To Have Stolen Articles

Joseph Rickerby was accused of stealing several articles from the Metropolitan Manufacturing Company. His counsel, Mr. R. F. McWilliams, refused to plead or to elect. The Crown was not prepared to proceed with the case so it was enlarged until to-morrow morning. It is alleged that Rickerby bought several articles from the Metropolitan Company on the instalment plan and disposed of them before they were paid for.

Timber Case Was Not Disposed Of

The case of Alexander Nott, an Indian, and Guerin, the men who unlawfully cut and carried away timber from the Chemong Reserve, came up this morning in the County Police Court before Magistrate Edmison, but was not disposed of. Nott had disappeared from the Reserve and therefore was not present to answer the charge.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell was present the interests of the defendant Guerin, and Crown Attorney Kingsford for the Crown. No evidence was taken however, and the case was enlarged until next Tuesday at three o'clock, p.m.

Special Services Were Held At S. A. Barracks

Brigadier Turner, the Provincial Officer, Was Here Yesterday and Delivered Impressive Addresses—Expressed Himself as Greatly Pleased With the Local Corps and the Work Being Done Here.

BAND IS AMONG BEST IN COUNTRY

Brigadier Turner, the Provincial Officer of the Salvation Army, for Eastern Ontario and Quebec, as promised, paid his quarterly visit to the local corps yesterday, when special services were held, beginning with "knee drill," at seven a.m. Between 9.30 to 10.30 a.m., yesterday he assisted at the services at the gaol. The other meetings during the day were the holiness meeting at 11 a.m., the Old Friends' Re-union at 3 p.m., and the Battle for Souls at 7 p.m.

In the morning service the Brigadier spoke on the subject, "My Brother's Keeper."

In the evening Brigadier Turner's address was on "Sin and Separation." The barracks was crowded to the doors. The Brigadier, by way of illustration, opened his address by referring to Christ's call to St. Peter; when St. Peter answered, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man." In St. Peter's reply there was a realization of sin and a confession, which is very seldom found among the people of the present day. Christians of to-day do not seem to have a true conception of sin. Sin as looked upon has a meaning of scandal, or outrage or crime. But the sin which the Bible most frequently refers to is the sin of omission and the inward sin. The sin of the head or mind is most dangerous inasmuch as it has the power of making one believe that much is wrong.

The popular opinion of to-day is that the old doctrine of eternal punishment is all a farce. But a man can build a hell for himself. He has those elements within him—memory, conscience and reason—which make for him hereafter what he is here. As every man makes and finds, and has his own place in this world, so he has in the next. As a man lives in this world his life in the next world will correspond.

Speaking last night in reference to the local corps the Brigadier expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the work being done. The corps is growing in influence and members. The Sunday school has been very successful, and the band is one of the best in the country.
